To Ease Women's Pain: "Build-Up"

Do you suffer periodically from headaches, nervousness, irritability, restlessness or cramp-like pains? If so, here's good news! These may be symptoms of functional dysmenorrhea, which is so often caused by undernourishment. By improving the appetite, digestion, assimilation, through the proper use of CARDUI, women by thousands find they are able to build strength, energy, and nerve-force. Thus periodical pain is relieved for many users of CARDUI. By taking it just before and during "the time," women by thousands report that CARDUI also helps to ease the pain and discomfort of the period.

DANGER!! Submarine!!

AS LONG AS the submarine is able to remain hidden under water, it menaces both shipping and the surface navies whose job is that of sweeping danger from the seas. Bring the "sub" to the surface, and it is no match for surface warcraft.

ALABAMA HAS FOUND A WAY to bring to the surface the few "jook joints" and "honky-tonks" whose submarine tactics, under cover of a State beer permit, have been a menace to public decency and a legitimate industry which annually pays more than $4,500,000 in wages to Alabamians.

A DETERMINED INDUSTRY is working hand in hand with Alabama's aggressive ABC Board in the drive against these "submarine" marauders. You can help—by patronizing only reputable establishments in which conditions are as wholesome as beer itself.

Clanton Methodist Church

Church School at 9:45 each Sunday L. J. Stewart, General Superintendent.

Morning Worship at 11:00 AM. Sermon by the pastor.

Young Peoples meeting at 6:45 P.M in the sub-auditorium of the Church.

Junior League at 6:45 P.M.

Evening worship, 7:30 P.M. Sermon by the Pastor.

We have lots of mighty good, loyal, hard-working members in our Church and Church School who boost. They never slow up, it seems, even in face of apparently hopeless slipping of the work and attendance. We have begun another church school year this month with a fine group of officials and we are looking to them for leadership, of course, but they are looking to all the members and friends of the church and church school for help, backing and support. Plans, new ideas, suggestions, prayer work and support in all ways given our officials will help make a better year.

The Junior League has been re-organized and is off to a good start. All young people of the Junior League age are invited and urged to attend each Sunday afternoon at 6:45.

Now let's all attend Church and Church School services each Sunday and especially next Sunday.

Looks as if England and France finally got the Thanksgiving Turkey. What Germany and Russia would like to do, is get his tough old neck on the chopping block.

Thanks to the Commissioners for selecting a 1940 1½ Ton Chevrolet Truck. They are now insured of excellent truck performance.

Pet Skunk Is Efficient As Collector of Bill

WILMINGTON, DEL. — A well-dressed man riding in an automobile driven by a chauffeur stopped at a gasoline station.

He offered a $50 bill in payment for $3.10 worth of gasoline and oil and ordered his chauffeur to drive off when the attendant said he didn't have change.

"Wait a minute, I can fix this," the attendant said. He went to his station, picked up his pet skunk, returned to the machine and thrust the skunk in the window.

"I want my money, and if you don't pay I'll drop this skunk in your lap," he said.

The chauffeur hurriedly paid the bill for his boss.

Black Hills Man Tells the Story of Wild Bill's End

Pioneer Relates True Tale Of Murder of Famed Western Marshal.

COALINGA, CALIF.—John Taylor, pioneer resident of the Black Hills, who recalls the shooting of Wild Bill Hickok, famous two-gun frontier marshal, as clearly as if it had happened yesterday, is thinking of settling down now that he has reached the age of 88.

Still an active real-estate operator, Taylor has a clear memory of the historic events in which he took part during a lifetime spent in frontier settlements. His friends say he can dive from the high springboard as well as the average youth of 20.

The most interesting of his many stories is the tale of the shooting of Wild Bill Hickok, whose feats are part of the Wild West of tradition and fiction, in Leadville, S. D.

Quarrel Led to Killing.

While Hickok sat in a saloon playing poker and Taylor stood talking to his friend, Tim Brady, on a nearby street corner, Jack McCall, a miner, entered the bar and shot Wild Bill. The two men had quarreled over a gambling debt.

A moment later McCall, gun in hand, came running down the street to where his horse was fastened to a hitching post only a few feet from Taylor and Brady. A loose cinch and a slipping saddle prevented him from getting on the animal.

With Taylor, Brady, the bartender and saloon frequenters in pursuit, McCall ran on down the street. His pursuers cornered him in a grocery in the next block and, for want of a jail, held him prisoner there until his trial the next day.

Taylor said he and others placed the body of Hickok on a door and carried it away for burial. The next day Taylor sat in the rude log theater while McCall was tried by a jury of miners without benefit of a judge. The miner was acquitted when the jury could not agree, but, taken into custody a month later, he was tried and sentenced to death by a judge in Yankton.

Knew Calamity Jane.

Taylor's first contact with Calamity Jane, famous frontier dance hall hostess who later became his close friend, was in a Custer City bathhouse. He was in a tub in one room while Jane and a woman companion were bathing in an adjoining compartment. Through the thin wood partition, he said, floated some of the most colorful profanity he had ever heard.

Taylor was in Philadelphia when he joined a band of adventurous men who were among the first to enter the Black Hills territory. When on December 29, 1895, Custer City was founded, he was named on a committee to stake out its boundaries. The group did the work with tape line and stakes.

Elected coroner of Custer City, Taylor was the first man to hold that job in the Black Hills. He was a friend of Poker Annie, cigar-smoking woman gambler, and the Dalton brothers, notorious stage coach robbers. In New Mexico territory he played cards with Billy the Kid shortly before the Kid was involved in a war between sheepmen and cattlemen and became an outlaw.

Patience Rewards Judge; Old Bill for $200 Is Paid

FORT WAYNE, IND.—The day was hot and the receivership report being read by J. Robert Newkirk to Judge Harry H. Hilgemann was long and boring.

Twice Judge Hilgemann interrupted to point out that he would be forced to reread it all when he retired to his chambers. Couldn't formality be done away with, he asked.

"Just a few more pages," Newkirk answered, so the judge settled back in a half-listening mood. Suddenly he cocked his ear.

"T—— to one Harry H. Hilgemann, a member of the Allen county bar, for legal services, $200," droned Newkirk.

"I suppose you want the court to check off that 16-year-old bill, too," the judge interrupted. "I'd forgotten all about it."

"No, Your Honor. This outfit has made a comeback. We have the money and here's your check."

Eels on Fish Ladders Are Snared by Indians

LEWISTON, IDAHO.—Indians in this district got a rich harvest of eels at the Clearwater River dam during the salmon run this spring and early summer.

The eels were caught with nets when they attempted to climb the fish ladders at the dam. Indians came with gunnysacks and went back to their tepees with all the eels they could carry.

The Indians consider fried or roast eels a real delicacy.

Concise Report

DES MOINES, IOWA.—A police radio squad, armed with sawed-off shotguns, their car siren screaming, rushed to the rescue of an east side community reportedly terrorized by a mad dog. The crew reported back to headquarters by radio: "Dog not mad. Dog hungry. Owner will feed."

"I wish I could do as you wish," said Kay. "Tell me about it, Barney. Who was it?"

He shrugged. "Someone you don't even know. A swamp angel named Jeff Butler. This morning he was drunk and I had to fire him. This evening he was twice as drunk, and we had a little trouble when we met in Mac's Bar-B-Q."

Her forehead crinkled. "He didn't attack you, did he?"

"No-o . . . not exactly."

"You attacked him?"

"Oh! Quit asking questions."

"But I want to know, Barney. Jeff didn't attack you . . . and you don't run around assaulting men like that without cause."

"Smart female, aren't you? Well, have it, then. Mr. Butler was indulging in some very obscene conversation. I walked in on it and got sore."

"Conversation about the Gardens —or about me?"

"What difference does that make?"

"It makes lots of difference."

He drew a deep breath. "You're either very foolish or very courageous, Kay. 'Or just dog-gone curious."

"Tell me."

"All right." He spoke slowly. "Jeff Butler has been spying on you and Miss Maynard. He was describing to certain friends of his the details of . . . well, of the picture-taking. That's all."

Her face was chalky. "I see . . . And by now the whole county knows."

"What of it? Get this, honey: I don't want you to kid yourself that you tricked me into telling you the truth. I told you because I knew you were going to hear it anyway, and I figured it was better for you to get it first-hand. But now you know. We'll agree that the yokels will gossip and that they'll be terribly shocked. But. Mother will start telling folks about what you and Miss Maynard have been doing, and that will spike several guns. The main point is that you're here with friends who would do anything for you that you'd let 'em do. So what more could a shy young maiden ask?"

CHAPTER VIII

Beverly buzzed with excitement. Good ladies abandoned housewifely duties, or reduced them to a minimum, and gathered to discuss this latest and most sensational outgrowth of what they were pleased to call Kay Forrest's carryings-on.

The general meeting place for those who could afford the time and money was the Woman's Exchange and Tea Room, an eminently respectable place on Monument Square, facing the White Star Hotel and operated by that elderly and unmistakably maiden lady, Miss Deborah Barton.

Miss Deborah was, at this moment, engaged in vigorously defending Kay Forrest for no particular reason except that she did not like some of the ladies who were sipping tea, munching pop-overs and enjoying themselves by ripping Kay's character to shreds.

They said, "Disgraceful — that's what it is! Running around the country naked!" They said, "I knew no good would come of all this. Murders and immorality and drinking and debauchery."

They would have said a good deal more had it not been for Miss Deborah, who had been hovering over the table like a dragon. Miss Deborah said, "Tommyrot and rubbish! It's just a lot of lies."

"But Miss Deborah, we know it's true that Kay was posing without any clothes on. Mrs. Hamilton admitted it was true. She said . . ." —and the speaker sniffed virtuously —"that it was artistic."

"Hmph! You-all wouldn't ever understand anything beautiful. It seems to me that the fact that Ruth Hamilton knew about it all the time would settle everything."

"Well, she never said a word to anybody until after the news got out through that Butler person. Not a single, solitary word."

"Why should she? It wasn't anybody's business."

Doc Morrison was consulted by several gossipy persons, but with none-too-satisfactory results. Doc was a venerable old man, gentle and kindly, a person who was—at one and the same time—both pious and unregenerate.

Doc had obtained his M.D. many, many years before when medical schools demanded little preliminary education of their matriculating students, and not too much of those who graduated. For thirty years he had practiced in Beverly with great moral success and small financial returns. He lavishly dispensed his cure-alls, calomel and quinine. He owned a battered, asthmatic old car in which he bumped over bad roads day and night, bringing cheer and solace and some degree of skill—borne of long practice—to those who were ill and poor. Not alone in Beverly, but all through Beauregard County, he was known and loved. Even those townsfolk who scoffed at his ability held him in high personal esteem. Men and women and children loved his kindly, quizzical good nature, his serene philosophy, his broad charity.

He gave ear to gossip for the sole purpose of chiding those who flayed the girl.

Doc Morrison had been startled, rather than shocked, by the revelation of Kay Forrest's photographic nudity. He gave ear to gossip for the sole purpose of chiding those who flayed the girl. And it was Doc Morrison who sternly advised Miss Trelane—the angular owner of Beverly's native beauty parlor—that it behooved only those who were without sin to cast stones . . . whereupon Miss Trelane, being unmistakably without sin, indulged in an orgy of stone-throwing and declared that she was doing it with Doc's approval.

At the lavish home of Jonathan Guinn, Mrs. Guinn was entertaining the Literary Circle. The good ladies had abandoned their fervid pursuit of culture in favor of a discussion of the previous night's affair.

Diana Guinn was an authoritative person, and, as the wife of the town's foremost industrialist, a prominent one. It was she who propounded the question, "I wonder what that awful Henkel woman is thinking," and who then elicited applause by declaring the meeting adjourned and stating that, in spite of the lateness of the hour, she was on her way to the White Star Hotel to get a finger-wave from Sonia Henkel and at the same time to make sure that the imported beautician knew all about the goings-on of Kirk Reynolds' bride.

Diana moved through the gathering dusk with firm, positive strides. She persuaded Miss Henkel to remain open just a little while longer. She delivered herself over to Sonia's deft ministrations . . . and she commenced to talk.

Her voice was sharp, her ideas definite and her choice of words excellent. To be sure there be no misunderstanding she started at the beginning. She authenticated her statements by saying that they must be true because no less a person than Ruth Hamilton herself had spent that morning on the telephone explaining to her friends that the whole Hamilton family knew what Kay had been doing, that Miss Maynard was an artist—not merely a photographer—and that she considered the gossip unwarranted.

Through all of this recital, Miss Henkel was silent save for an occasional "Yes" or "Is that so?" But inwardly the tall, sleek brunette was smiling.

She was humming lightly as she left the beauty shop and approached Kirk's door. Somehow, this latest development seemed to bring Kirk closer to her. She knocked once, lightly, and responded to his "Come in" by pushing through the door and closing it behind her.

He was standing at the window, looking down on the Square, his back to her. She said, brightly, "Deep thinking, eh, Kirk?"

He turned. And then a look of astonishment passed over her face. She stared incredulously, then found herself overcome by merriment.

He smiled thinly. "What's so funny?"

She pointed and said, through bursts of laughter, "Those glasses! Gee, they make you look goofy."

"Haven't you ever seen eyeglasses before?"

"Yeh! But not on you." She gazed again on the horn-rimmed goggles and appeared to find them irresistibly funny. She said, "What's the matter: Can't you read the spots on the dice any more?"

"You knew I saw an occulist the other day in the Capital. And they just got here by special delivery. So why should you be surprised?"

"I'm not surprised at the glasses. Only at how you look in them."

He glanced at himself in the mirror. "Have your laugh, Kid. Maybe you're right, at that. They do change me a lot."

"Wait 'til the others see you . . ."

"I'm waiting. And I'm glad you're in a good humor."

"Why?"

"Because I've got news for you."

"So."

"Can you take it?"

"I've done pretty well so far, haven't I?"

He nodded. "Things are getting pretty hot. That scrap at Mac's Bar-B-Q last night didn't help any."

"What do you mean?"

"It's given people something more to talk about—and they were talking too much to start with." His voice became flat. "I'm on the spot."

"I know . . ." The laughter was gone from her eyes. She took his hand and pressed it. "Let's get out of this burg."

He shook his head. "No can do, Babe. But I've decided to do something else."

"What?"

His cold eyes held hers. "You ain't gonna like it. Not a bit." He paused for an instant. Then, "I'm bringing Kay Forrest into town."

"You're what?"

"I'm bringing Kay into town. That room yonder—" he jerked his head toward a door, "—opens into mine. She's moving in there."

Babe's lips were dry. "I—I don't exactly get it, Kirk."

Everything Ready for Meeting Saturday

We Observe

By BONNIE HAND

The Meetings—

Standing room was at a premium last Saturday morning at the Court house when the meeting of the farmers and State officials was in progress. We attended that meeting, and learned first hand the predicament the farmers of this county are in. From the lips of representatives from every beat in the county we learned that if Federal assistance can possibly be secured, it should be, for the short crops of not only cotton but other products raised on the farm, which, ordinarily, assist in carrying them through the winter, have left them—many of them—without the bare necessities of life.

We are convinced that they are not looking for handouts but are willing and ready to work if work could be provided, however, there is not enough work for all those who are so in need of employment to offset the misfortune of a half-corp this year. There are, however, some who were fortunate enough to make fairly good crops, and are in position to go through the winter without undue hardships.

We were impressed with a statement by Mr. Johnson of the State Works Progress Administration, who said in part that although they well knew the plight of Chilton farmers—that assistance was badly needed—it must be remembered that Chilton County is only a portion of the farming population who are in dire circumstances. Perry County, for instance, produced only a twenty-five per cent crop this year.

Why not Chilton County bring into immediate effect the "good neighbor" policy among themselves. We mean—let those who have share with those who have not. We are of the opinion that if this were put into practice, little or no Federal assistance would be needed. Chilton County would then have solved its own problem.

Not to be ignored was the talk made at the meeting last Saturday by the Rev. W. P. Lowery, in which he brought out the need of equally as many or more prayers to the Higher Power as to the Federal Government. These remarks brought "amens" from several in the audience.

Another meeting has been called for next Saturday by Judge J. Lee Smith. Let's hope that these meetings will prove beneficial, and get the needed results.

Another Call For Help—

Remember when another call went out from Chilton County for assistance in time of suffering and found a response in the National Red Cross? And do you remember, also, that that response was quick and the help rendered [illegible] done so cheerfully? We speak of thsoe days in March, 1932, when the tornado raked the county. A call went out from Chilton County and was answered. Now a call is going out from the National Red Cross and we cannot afford to ignore it, although we have been hard hit by the short crops. Only a few more days until the annual Red Cross Roll Call gets underway. Got'cha dollar ready?

Mr. Stapp further states that the people of Chilton County well know the way the National Red Cross responds in tmes of disaster. That the National Red Gross has spent more for disaster relief in Chilton County than we have ever paid into the National Fund, or possibly will pay in for many years to come, is well known.

Fifty cents of every one dollar membership goes into the National Red Cross fund to be used here and elsewhere in times of disasters. The remaining fifty cents of each one dollar membership remains in the County Red Cross Treasury to be used in certain cases referred to the Red Cross by the County Welfare Department.

The letter from Mr. Sartain stated that Senator Bankhead has been making an active effort to secure money from the Federal government to aid farmers in areas where crops were damaged by execssive rains. Following is the clipping:

Washington, Oct. 24.—(A.P.)—President Roosevelt said today three Federal agencies would aid an estimated 115,000 farm families in drouth and flood areas without seeking additional funds at the special session of Congress.

Officials of the agencies—the Disaster Loan Corporation, Farm Security Administration and Federal Surplus Commodties Corporation—reported they had sufficient funds to carry on until the regular session of Congress in January.

These agencies will extend loans and

Ginning Report Shows Chilton Cotton Crop Off

According to V. C. McKee, Special Agent, census report shows that 6,008 bales of cotton were ginned in Chilton County from the crop of 1939, prior to October 18, as compared with 8,272 bales for the crop of 1938.

Chilton County's cotton crops last year, 1938, was off considerably and the crops this year is still shorter, due to a great extent to the heavy rainfall in this county just prior to gathering time.

Support Of Red Cross And Christmas Seal Sale Urged By Health Department

[illegible]ton Countians were urged early [illegible] week to continue their past gene[illegible] to worthy causes by making li[illegible] contributions this year to the Red [illegible] and the Christmas Seal Sale.

Dr. S. D. Last year we did [illegible]tionally well, Chilton County hav[illegible] highest per capita sale of Christ[illegible] seals of all rural counties in Alabama."

Pointing to the valuable work done [illegible] these agencies the Health Officer [illegible] of Brewers Yeast being distributed [illegible] the Red Cross to the poor sufferers [illegible] in the County and of the [illegible] liver oil donated by the local Red Cross Chapter to the Health Department for use in the Well Baby Clinic. "The work of the Red Cross," he pointed out, "is not limited to flood and disaster relief, as the job of furnishing relief to the needy must go on every day."

Speaking of the Christmas seals, Dr. Sturkie stated that without the money derived from the seals very little could be accomplished here in the fight against tuberculosis. At least two Chilton County families can be thankful for the saving of two lives, otherwise destined as victims of tuberculosis, whch was brought about through the use of Christmas seal money. "Every dollar," he concluded, "spent for the Red Cross and Christmas seals will help to buy health and happiness for the poor of Chilton County."

Increasing The Value Of Cotton

We had the pleasure of going with the Clanton Kiwanis Club recently through Alabama Mills, from the "pickery" to the shipping room, piloted by the accomodating and efficiest Sperintendent, Homer Roberts. It is wonderful all the way through, and this is the type of small industry, every county in the state along with Chilton needs. To illustrate: We heard a man say yesterday he got 8½ cents for his cotton—that was $45 for the bale. Alabama Mills takes the bale of cotton, and after processing, when the product is shipped the price of the bale of cotton has been increasel to two or threr times its original value. It is so with all our raw materials. We of Alabama have too long been selling our raw materials for "day wages" when we should have been processing them here at home, just as Alabama Mills is doing with cotton, and thereby doubling and trebbling their value, to the advantage of all the people of the County and State.

About the punkest propaganda we know anything about is "Gallup's Polls." They are just about as acurate as radio astrology broadcasts.

It can happen here! It has happened here! When calamity strikes it is usually swift as lightning. The first principle of Red Cross is to be prepared for any emergency—when and if it comes. It's main source of preparedness is you and I. The annual Roll Call isn't far away. Just fold up a bill now and tuck it away in one corner of your bill-fold and leave it there 'til the Greatest Helping Hand in the World is held out to you.

"It's simple enough. I made a dumb play Babe," said Kirk, "marrying the girl and letting her go back to the Gardens. That invited talk . . . and the people in this town ain't as sappy as I thought they were. They doped it out plenty quick."

"And so . . . ?"

"So I'm going out to the Gardens tonight and fetch Kay. That's all."

Babe walked to the window. She didn't want Kirk to see her face at that moment. A few minutes since she had been so gay—so confident that her jealousy of Kay was groundless. Now everything was different. She was afraid to speak—fearful that she might say too much. Her hands were behind her back when she turned, and Kirk could not see the long pointed, crimson nails biting into the flesh.

She said, "I figure you better look out for trouble."

He reached for his hat. His eyes were the color of ice.

He said, "Remember this, Babe. I'm always ready for trouble."

They sat on the veranda: Barney and Margaret and Mrs. Hamilton and Jim Owenby, forcing conversation because they wished to be quite sure that Kay would not think they were listening. This was difficult, of course, because Kay had been called to the telephone several minutes since and her voice—low and insistent—came down to them from the landing and try as they might, they could not avoid hearing occasional remarks. "But why . . . ?" "Yes, I know . . . but I can't . . ." Fragments of conversation, bits of protest in a voice which was freighted with worry.

They heard Kay say, "Well, if I must . . ." and they heard her descending the stairway. Slowly. Only Barney looked at her directly and he saw that she was nervous and worried. But before he could make up his mind whether to question her, she spoke.

"Let's take a little walk, Barney."

He rose with alacrity. "Surest thing you know. Need a wrap?"

"Never mind."

"What now, Princess?"

She traced hieroglyphics on the lawn with the toe of one tiny foot. She said, "I want you to promise me something, Barney."

"Consider it promised."

"This is serious."

"I'll put it in writing."

She placed her hand over his. "You're pretty fine—do you realize that?"

"Of course I do. I've spent my entire life being noble, virtuous and dependable. In fact, I might state that I'm a perfect example of what the well-dressed young man should be."

She shook her head. "I wish things were as simple as that."

"As me? Simple? My dear young lady . . ."

"Listen, Barney." Her voice was tight. "I want you to give me your word—"

"So you said. And I assured you . . ."

"I know. But this . . ."

"It's different. It's serious. I remember. Now, let's have it. What's eating on you?"

"Before I explain, I want you to promise that you won't do anything about it."

He grinned ruefully. "I'm becoming expert at doing nothing about things."

She looked thoughtfully at the black waters of the lagoon.

"That telephone call was from Kirk Reynolds."

"Hmmmmm!"

"You don't seem surprised."

"Should I be?"

She was silent for a moment. Then, "You're not going to like this, Barney."

"If by 'this' you mean Kirk, you're right."

"You must promise . . ."

"Listen, honey . . ." He dropped his arm from her shoulder and imprisoned one of her infinitesimal hands. "You're talking in circles. I've promised everything I can promise. You're worried about something. Suppose you tell Papa all about it."

"All right." She groped for words which would not cut too deeply. "Kirk Reynolds is coming here tonight. I want you to promise that you won't be at the house when he comes."

"So! Why?"

"Because I'm afraid there might be trouble."

"Not in my own home."

"Even here."

"Nix, honey—nix. I don't play the hero and host at the same time, much as I dislike this Reynolds gent."

"If anything happened to you . . ."

She said, "You might. Tonight."

"How come?"

"Because . . ." She moistened dry lips. "Because he's coming to take me back to Beverly with him."

She couldn't see Barney's face . . . for which fact the young man was grateful. It was dark under the trees, dark and still. Barney tried to speak lightly, "Am I supposed to ask questions?"

"It doesn't matter. You see, he's reserved a room at the White Star Hotel for me. A room next to his."

She felt Barney's fingers tighten over hers. He said, "I don't get it, honey."

"Kirk didn't do much explaining. He said he'd be out within an hour and told me to get ready."

"But this hotel business . . . ?"

"Can't you understand? He thinks that folks have been talking . . ."

"And that this will stop their gossip? I'm afraid your friend Mr. Reynolds isn't quite bright."

"He—he wants the town to believe I really am his wife."

"I see . . . and I'm to sit back and let you go with him?"

"Yes."

There was no mirth in Barney's laugh. It was short and harsh. He said, "I'll have to ask a few questions. First, must you do whatever Kirk orders?"

"Yes."

"Why?"

"We've talked about that so many times. You know I can't explain."

"I see . . . Second question, do you want to go with him?"

Her answer came sharply. "No!"

"Then," he said quietly, "you're not going."

"But you still don't understand. I've got to go."

"Like hell you do. Now you listen to me a few minutes, young lady. I've been playing the sap plenty long enough. I don't like it. And most particularly I don't like the idea of you living with Kirk Reynolds . . . and what's more! I'm not going to stand for it."

"Please . . . You promised."

"I don't care what I promised. That bird has been pushing you around long enough."

"But there's nothing you can do."

"No? We'll damn soon find out about that." His eyes were hot. "I'm going to have a talk with this lad. A nice, pleasant chat. I'm going to ask a few questions and tell him a few things."

"You mustn't!"

"Why not?"

"Because you promised. And because I'm asking you."

"Two lousy reasons."

"And also because I'm afraid. He's dangerous."

Barney made an impatient gesture. "Bad, bold guy, isn't he? Murdered Harvey Jackson without giving him a chance. Runs around playing big by frightening girls. Oh! he's tough, all right, but somehow, honey, I don't seem to be so terribly scared of him."

"Barney, listen. Believe me when I say that anything you do will only make things worse."

"Oh, yeah? And how could they be worse?"

"If anything happened to you . . ."

"I'm able to take care of myself."

She smiled bravely. "Barney . . . won't you do what I ask? Just this once."

He kissed her. "I'd better stay away from the house until after you've gone."

He turned and walked away. She gazed after his tall, slender figure with tear-dimmed eyes. Then she moved toward the house, trembling and frightened . . .

Barney walked along the edge of the lagoon. He was more disturbed than he cared to confess, even to himself. He kicked viciously at a small stone and heard it plop into the black water. He stood staring at nothing at all. He lighted a cigarette with fingers which trembled . . . and then he heard a voice at his shoulder, a pleasant, genial voice.

Jim Owenby said, "Saw your face in the matchlight, Barney. Who busted up your playhouse?"

Barney inhaled deeply, then spun his cigarette out over the water. It struck the ebon surface, spluttered hopelessly and went out. He asked, sharply, "Will you kindly put into plain English, Jim, your opinion of what sort of a prime sap I really am?"

"Sure. If it'll help." Owenby had moved closer. He was as tall as Barney, but broader and heavier. He said, "Want to talk?"

"Hell—yes."

"Shoot."

"It's this Beverly mess. That telephone call Kay got was from Kirk Reynolds. He's on his way out here to take her back to town with him."

Jim whistled expressively. 'And so . . . ?"

"He's taking her to the hotel. Wants the town to believe she's really his wife."

"And she's willing to go?"

Barney tried to be fair. "Not willing. But she says she must." His voice was edgy. "She wants me to play the innocent bystander, Jim. Made me promise blind that I'd stay away from the house while Kirk was here."

"Will you?"

"I don't know. Gosh! I'd like to have it out with that bird . . . just once."

Jim said, grimly, "So would I. The man he killed was the best friend I had." He paused briefly. "Suppose I have a little talk with him, Barney."

"Nope. If somebody's got to meet that guy, it'll be me."

"What's Kay got against it?"

"He's got her scared pink. She seems to think he's dynamite."

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LaBINE

Belligerents Fight for Favor Of European Neutral States; 'Flint' Incident Still Simmers

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

THE WAR IN BRIEF

Unorthodox warfare continued on the western front, original positions being assumed after Nazis forced the French to relinquish early gains. Though 1,500,000 German troops were massed at the Siegfried line, any offensive must come immediately or not until next spring. Three solid days of rainfall left trenches half-filled with water and stranded the highly touted mechanized artillery. Then came snow and sleet.

RIBBENTROP
Scornful.

Diplomatic activity continued at top speed, far overshadowing the actual war. Turkey's new pact with Britain to guarantee the eastern Mediterranean was the source of all efforts, which resolved into a frantic scurrying among belligerents to line up neutrals. At Danzig, German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop furnished divertisement by lashing at British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain for "breaking promises." He also tried to drive a wedge between the allies by wooing France. Two days later Chamberlain replied just as scornfully.

In the Balkans, Britain encouraged Turkish formation of a neutral bloc, using what some observers called poor strategy by apparently neglecting to consult Italy.

While the Reich wooed Rumania, Turkey and Hungary by threats, Britain was more subtle. Under consideration at London were trade pacts to assure the neutrality of Sweden, Netherlands, Finland, Latvia, Turkey and Russia. To soothe the latter nation, Chamberlain agreed that Dictator Josef Stalin's invasion of Poland had been necessary for protection against German aggression.

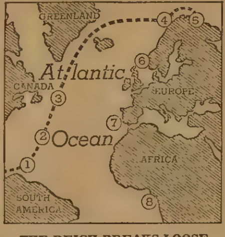
Russia continued negotiations with Finland, but their nature remained mysterious. Finnish Foreign Minister Eljas Erkko called "just as unfounded as all others" the latest report that Russia had demanded concessions in the Gulf of Finland, a friendship policy between the Kremlin and Finland, and destruction of all fortifications in the strategic Aaland islands. Some observers believed Russian demands on Finland were increased to offset the Soviet's diplomatic defeat in Turkey. But it remained unlikely that Russia would invade Finland.

CHAMBERLAIN
So was he.

MARINE:

'Flint' Saga

German seizure of the 5,000-ton U. S. S. City of Flint bid fair to affect world commerce far more than all the 100-odd vessels which bombs and torpedoes have sent to the bottom since November 1. Carrying contraband to Britain, the Flint was seized by Germany in mid-Atlantic, taken first to Norway and then to Murmansk, Russia, where her American crew was reported safe. But the Soviet indicated Germany would get the ship, thereby relieving Joseph Stalin of bickering with the U. S. Most observers agreed the Reich was justified in seizing the Flint, but few expected his next bold move. Berlin ordered a prize court hearing to determine whether the boat, crew or cargo should be freed.



THE REICH BREAKS LOOSE
Nazi raiders have broken Britain's North sea blockade to raid Atlantic shipping, and Britain cannot hunt them down without weakening her home defenses. Evidences of raiding: British liner Stonegate picked up torpedo victims at (1), was then torpedoed herself (2), probably by the Deutschland, which proceeded north to capture the U. S. S. City of Flint (3) and sail her to Tromsoe, Norway, (4) where Stonegate passengers were dumped. City of Flint was then taken to Murmansk, Russia (5). In the heavily protected North sea (6) a convoyed Greek steamer was sunk, while three British vessels went down 80 miles off Gibraltar (7). A French sub reported driving five Nazi raiders to an African port (8).

Britain began crowing prematurely about her "speedy" inspection of neutral vessels by contrast with German blundering. U. S. skippers thereupon complained to Washington that Britain's contraband control was actually pretty bad, often taking 18 days to clear a boat. Result: A "gentleman's agreement" to speed inspection.

Obviously the Flint incident put Russia on a spot. By releasing her to the American crew, Russia would snub an erstwhile ally, Germany. As it was, the Soviet incurred U. S. skepticism. If Russia again offers haven to a neutral vessel seized by Germany, the Kremlin might well be asked to tell how she stands in 1939's war.

There was a strong hint of her position in another Flint aftermath. At Moscow, British Ambassador Sir William Seeds was given a note rejecting Soviet recognition of Britain's war contraband list because it violates international law and impairs neutral rights. Incredulous at such effrontery, a London spokesman blurted: "Fantastic!"

COMING UP

NOVEMBER 15: Italy to inaugurate Rome-Rio de Janeiro-Buenos Aires airline. (In Washington, the U. S. bid for Latin-American business by combining a score of agencies. Pan-American airlines asked for an airline between Los Angeles and Mexico City. American Export lines asked to start a New York-to-France line.)

NOVEMBER 27: Communist Earl Browder, indicted on charge of obtaining a false passport, to go on trial. His comment: ". . . Even the reactionary Hoover regime . . . decided there were no grounds for prosecution (in the case). Now it is warmed over . . ."

DECEMBER 4: Unless member nations protest, the League of Nations, formed to keep Versailles' peace, will meet at Geneva while cannon are blasting.

CONGRESS:

Victory, Then What?

If an isolationist fillibuster was really delaying action on the neutrality bill, the City of Flint incident (See MARINE) was enough to end it. Next day the senate agreed to allow each speaker 45 minutes for the bill and an extra 45 minutes for each amendment. Lashed by acid-tongued John Nance Garner, who rebuked the senate for being a "horse-and-buggy outfit," battling solons called a truce to approve amendments (1) banning 90-day credits to either belligerent nations or their residents and (2) lifting shipping restrictions against American boats in the Pacific (except armament), Bermuda, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Tasmanian sea and Capetown. Rejected was an amendment to make President Roosevelt sole judge of the necessity for invoking neutrality. There was good chance another amendment would pass: To forbid any belligerent ship from flying the U. S. flag as defense against a foe.

As early as two days before the senate's final vote, Isolationists Borah and Nye conceded administration forces a two-thirds victory. But they were more hopeful about the house, where neutrality would run against pretty strong opposition. An attempt to invoke parliamentary rules (preventing amendments to the senate bill) was conceded little chance by argumentative representatives.

IN MEMORY

In memory of our much esteemed sister, Julia Neeley Huett, who was called from our midst on October 9th, to enter into that House not made with hands—eternity in the heavens.

Sister Huett was the mother of eleven children, five boys and six girls. Out of those eleven there are left to mourn her departure three boys and five girls and her husband, Brother C. B. Huett; two sisters, Mrs. Abbie Dees and Mrs. Carrie Boockholdt. It will be remembered that the late deceased Rev. A. D. Huett was the third son who left a bright and shining evidence that his dear mother has joined him in that bright eternal home.

Sister Huett had entered her sixty-eighth year. She was born in Coosa County in 1873. She united with the Baptist Church at Olive Branch the year 1887. She was a faithful affectionate Christian. It was our great pleasure to know Sister Huett in early girlhood. It is another great pleasure to say we both were members of the same Church in Coosa County; at Olive Branch. There we worshipped together for a number of years. Later we both moved to Chilton County where we were united again with Bethany Church where she remained for some years. She later made her membership with the Pleasant Valley Church.

I wish space would permit us to say the things we would like to say, but in conclusion we pray God's blessings and the comforting influence of His Holy Spirit upon the bereaved husband and children and sisters who are left to mourn her departure. Grant that they may continue to be faithful to their Lord and Master, that when He calls for them they, too, can enter that eternal home.—A devoted friend to the entire family, W. Y. KEEL.

"Build-Up": Way to Ease Women's Pain

Many weak, run-down women are in a vicious circle. Their undernourishment often leads to what is called functional dysmenorrhea and its symptoms—headaches, nervousness, irritability, intermittent cramp-like pains—from which many women suffer. Surest way to break the vicious circle is by building strength and energy, which so many find may be done with the help of CARDUI. It stimulates appetite, aids digestion, and thus helps in this "build-up" of physical resistance. Women also report that, if taken just before and during "the time," CARDUI helps to ease the pain and discomfort of the period.

During the recent Special Election held for the purpose of electing a Judge of the Inferior Law Court, I was a candidate for said office. On account of a serious eye trouble I was unable to do any campaigning, also a session of the Circuit Court was held beginning October 16th and in a number of cases set for that week, I was interested.

Quite a number of interesting events took place during the campaign, which I expect to write to you about in the near future. To those who voted for me in said election, I wish to express my sincere appreciation and thanks and to those who voted for the other two candidates, I hold no ill will and sincerely hope that the Court will be a success and of benefit to the people and tax payers of Chilton County. The campaign was most interesting and in some instances amusing and I shall, as stated above, write about it in the near future.

Sincerely yours,
J. B. ATKINSON.

Hints On Care Of The Teeth

Three essentials for maintaining a clean, healthy mouth and preserving the teeth were named today by Dr. S. D. Sturkie, County Health Officer: Nutrition, proper brushing of the teeth and dental care. Regarding diet which leading dental authorities now consider an important factor in the cause of dental caries the local Health Officer advises: 1. Select a blanced diet to protect the general health. 2. Correct selection of foods, including milk, green vegetables, and fresh fruits are especially valuable for good teeth.

The following technique for brushing was recommended: Brush across the tops of the teeth. Brush outsides of the upper teeth downward. Brush outsides of the lower teeth upward. Brush insides of the upper teeth downward, using the end of the brush. Brush insides of the lower teeth upward, using the end of the brush. Use a sweeping and rolling stroke, brushing the gum tissue with the same motion that brushes between the teeth. Requirements of a good toothbrush: A small brush with two rows of bristles. Six groups of bristles in each row. All groups of bristles should be the same length. Toothpowder is not better than toothpaste, and vice versa. On the selection of a tooth brush it was suggested that an unbleached brush is slightly stronger than a bleached brush and that a brush with bristles of medium hardnes is best for most cases. A paste or a powder can be used with equal effectiveness as a dentrifice, as stated above. The following is a formula for a good homemade tooth powder: Equal parts tooth powder: Equal parts of prepared chalk, soda, and salt.

Regarding dental care the following advice is given: Regular visits should be made to the dentist at least every six months. Cavaties should be filled early when they are small. Early dental care will cause the least ill health, pain and expense to the patient.

Other interesting facts concerning the teeth are: Teeth begin to form five months before birth. During their formation, teeth must be supplied with calcium (chiefly from milk) and vitamin D (chiefly from sunshine and cod-liver oil). All of the temporary, or baby teeth are in the mouth at the age of 2½ to 3 years. There are 20 teeth in the baby set. The baby teeth begin to shed at the age of seven. (But the back baby teeth must remain in the mouth until age 9 or 10 years). bad habits are often acquired in early childhood which wreck the positions of the teeth and destroy the natural form of the face. These habits should be stopped early. Such habits are: Thumb sucking, lip biting, and pillowing.

WOODLAND IMPROVEMENT

Farmers in this section find that it pays to begin making plans for fall and winter, cutting of fuelwool, poles, and saw logs from their woollands as soon as the harvesting of crops is completed, according to Mr. James H. Wood, Superintendent of the Soil Conservation Service in the Clanton CCC Camp area.

Care to utilize crooked and diseased trees for fuelwood needs, it is pointed out, will release the better and stronger trees for future woodland income for the farmer.

With dry weather usually occurring at this time and the trees shedding their leaves, the danger of fires damaging the farm woodlands is increased, according to Mr. Wood, who further points out that landowners and tenants should exercise care to prevent fires and suppress any that might occur during this danger period.

Now is a good time, farmers find, to begin making plans also for any tree planting that might be needed to increase woodland areas on farms having a shortage of wood for actual needs. Although it is too early actually to begin tree planting, areas may be selected where seedling trees can be planted as soon as the dormant tree season arrives.

SINGING AT NEW CEDRON

o

We had a singing at New Cedron Church, located on the Billingsley-Clanton road about eleven miles southwest of Clanton. A fine singing and a large crowd was the order of the day.

Mr. Ocie Williams acted as chairman. Pianists for the day were Mrs. Ernest Wilson and Miss Mary Esta Foshee. Everyone enjoyed the singing.

We will have a singing at New Cedron Church the second Sunday at 2:00 o'clock, in November. We cordially invite every singer and lover of music to come and be with us, and bring your new song books.

HOLLIS HITEN AT LIVINGSTON

o

Livingston State Teachers College, Oct. 25—Under the direction of Mr. Hollis Hiten, the NYA boys of the residential training project put on an assembly program which would have roused the green-eyed monster within many a Broadway producer. Quips, puns, and wisecracks bounced about the stage—and some of them to music.

Mr. Hiten's continuity script, management, and varied acts put him in a class with Jack Benny, Bob Hope, and Fred Allen. Mr. Hiten is a man to be watched.

Mr. Hiten left Clanton recently to assume his duties with the Livingston College. He has taught in the Verbena High School, and for several months operated a Cabinet Shop in Clanton.

Big Truck Turns Over, Field Mouse Is Blamed

GREEN BAY, Wis.—Field mice have been known to send elephants into hysterics, but a field mouse was blamed for causing a big motor truck turnover.

Clem Schuh, 33, while driving along the highway near here noticed a mouse scampering about in his car.

"Shoo," said Schuh. But as he looked down to locate the rodent his car ran over the center line and collided with the truck of Lloyd Preslawski, 22, causing it to leave the road and turn over.

Preslawski escaped injury. So did the mouse.

Short Circuit Caused by Static in Body of Woman

FAIRFIELD, CONN.—For a moment, Mrs. Charlotte Rasmussen thought she had been struck by lightning as she operated her switchboard at the local telephone exchange.

But a repairman explained it this way: Mrs. Rasmussen had been working at a typewriter during an electrical display preceding a thunderstorm, and stored up so much static in her body that when she returned to the switchboard she caused a short circuit. She felt 90 volts course up her arm and nearly toppled from her chair.

Nightly Thief Is Bared As 'Baskerville Hound'

LYNN, MASS.—They've been dog-goned. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Johnson decided to get up early and lie in wait for the thief who had on successive nights stolen: A blanket, a rug, rubbers and sneakers from the back hall.

The huge black dog that proved to be the robber ran with such speed that they could neither identify him nor rescue the slippers which he had purloined before being frightened away.

Letters in Wrong Box Arrive 5 Years Late

LITTLETON, N. H. — Better late than never. Miss Jeanne Antisdale of Pasadena, Calif., and Mrs. H. E. Busted of Somerville, Mass., must have been surprised recently to receive letters written to them in 1933 and 1934.

The letters were in an old rural mail box, having been deposited there by summer boarders.

Veteran of Navy Sees Both Poles

Is Happy at Accomplishing Lifelong Ambition.

PHILADELPHIA.—John Jacobson, 71-year-old retired navy veteran, sits in his chair at the Naval home content, for he has "achieved my lifelong ambition."

Jacobson said he had been all over the world, but did not feel content until he had reached both polar regions.

In 1900 he was a member of the Baldwin-Ziegler expedition that made an unsuccessful attempt to reach the North pole, and 27 years later he was with Admiral Richard E. Byrd in Little America.

Jake, as he is known to his shipmates, served in the navy from 1902 to 1925. He volunteered for the Byrd expedition in 1925 and was accepted. At the time he was 58 and one of the oldest members of the expedition.

He said that it was worth while visiting the pole if only to see the penguins.

"Say," he said, "you know those darn things are almost human, waddling along and gesturing much as humans do. We almost expected them to say 'Good morning.'"

The greatest moment of his life, he said, was when the admiral pinned the congressional medal on his uniform.

"I've received a good many medals during my lifetime in the navy, but that congressional medal is one they don't hand out very often."

Born at Tromso, Norway, Jacobson came to the United States aboard a British bark at the age of 17. He enlisted in the navy in 1896 and served in Cuba during the Spanish-American war. Then he attempted to settle down, but failed and became a member of the Baldwin-Ziegler polar expedition. Returning from the Arctic, he again enlisted in the navy, and served until 1925. He is one of the oldest men holding membership in American Legion.

Dust Bowl People Tell Stories of Wind's Speed

LAMAR, COLO.—Southern Colorado farmers, embittered by years of attempting to raise crops in a section of the dust bowl, nevertheless evidence humor in their [illegible] improvised tests for [illegible] velocity of the wind and intensity of the storms.

"I always depend on the goatskin method," one grizzled man of the soil said. "We wet a goatskin inside the house in the morning and hang it over the keyhole. If the four of us can't hold it there it's too darn windy to try to work in the fields."

His test, however, was disputed by several neighbors, supporters of the "log chain" test.

"We just hang a heavy log chain from the eaves of our ranch house," one of them explained. "If it stands straight out horizontally we know we'd better stay inside."

A Lamar pastor, too, has his dust-bowl standards. He said only one thing should prevent his flock from attending church.

"Stick your hand out," he directed. "Cup it for a few seconds, then bring it down to your side. If you can see where your hand was you're excused for staying home."

Boy Runs Away 6 Times; Says He Cannot Resist

NEW ORLEANS.—Mrs. O. S. Robertson is having trouble with her son again. He's got the wanderlust.

It's a deep yearning, said O. S., aged nine. He can't overcome it. It has made him run away from home six times.

The last time O. S. came home, he was apologetic.

"I love you better than anybody," he said to his mother by way of breaking the ice.

"Then why do you run away, O. S.?" Mrs. Robertson asked.

"I don't know, mama," O. S. said.

A few days later he said he had the old feeling again. Mrs. Robertson only sighed and went about beating up a cake. Maybe that would hold him a while.

His only exercise is climbing the narrow wooden stairs up the needle-shaped rock. Materials for the cabin's construction were carried up the rock piece by piece after being transported from the nearest road by pack animal.

A. A. JACKSON WRITES ABOUT MEETING HELD SATURDAY

Lomax, Ala., Oct. 30.

Dear Editor:

Will you please give me space in your good paper to say a few words in regard to the farmers meeting that was held at the Court house last Saturday. First we want to commend Judge Reynolds for calling this meeting. I don't think I have ever seen a better representation of the farmers of Chilton County, gathered at the Court house before in all my life. [illegible] the farmers of Chilton County, or the most of them are in a [illegible] condition, which was no surprise to me.

Now Mr. Farmer, stop and think a little. You are the class, or the people who produce food and clothes for all other classes, and now you have to look to a non-producing source for support. A strange condition of affairs, isn't it? Mr. Farmer, you are going to have to wake up and create you a new system of living. You should know by this time that the present system you are under is a miserable failure.

In conclusion let me say that the sun is still shining just behind the clouds. The farmers will have to come together for their own protection as most all other professions have done. There can be a system put in operation by which the farming classes will [illegible] just as well or better than other professions. It is my contention that the farmer should come first because he is the producer [illegible].

Respectfully,
A. A. JACKSON

Isabella Mustangs marched over to Verbena Friday, October 27, and dealt them a smashing blow, the score being 19-0 in favor of the Mustangs.

The Mustangs will have to hand it to those Verbena boys for playing a good game, and for being good sports. All during the game each side played hard, trying to reach the goal line, and it was pretty hard for the Mustangs to get there.

Verbena's team fought hard and if we had to say so, Douglas Ray can carry that ball.

All three touchdowns made by the Mustangs were made on passes, and a pass from Ray Davis converted the extra point.

Ray Davis, Earl Clenner, Ralph Evans, Allston Clenner and C. B. Lenoir made the backfield. Ray Davis did some good passing with Allston Clenner catching two passes, Earl Clenner one, and C. B. Lenoir one.

Mack Lecroy and Robert Cummings played that swift flying end. Bartley Giles and Cladd Atchinson did the tackling. Gordon Conway and Fred Veazey guarded the line, while William Oden, playing center, snapped the ball.

Bill Traywick, Jack Deason, Odis Giles and Carol (Jeff)Coburn played the substitute post.

The Mustangs will meet Marbury Friday, November 4th, on their own field.

OUR TRIP TO THE MOUNTAIN

Friday I had such a good time!
Now I'm trying to make a rhyme.
When we got into the car
We quickly crossed a road of tar.
For drinks we stopped at a store,
But didn't have to stop any more.
When we got upon the mound,
We could see far, far around.
Indeed, we had a very good view,
To me all things seemed strange and new.
We did have so much fun!
First we'd walk, then we'd run.
After that we'd run and play,
Then we ran to get some clay.
When we were ready to go home,
I chose to bring a great big cone.—
Sue Mahan.

OUR TRIP TO THE MOUNTAIN

We were off to Indian Mountain,
Such fun we hoped to have.
We tried to be quite careful,
So we wouldn't need the salve.
We were bound for Indian Mountain,
Three deep upon the seat,
All stiffled up a bit,
I wanted to retreat.
We wandered far and wide,
Our captain at the head:
And when we'd roamed and roamed,
I felt a bit like lead.
We hurried for Indian Mountain,
O'er thistle, brier, and stone.
Then looked across the way,
And found a bit of bone.
There's flint on Indian Mountain,
There's iron in the rock;
There were gullies deep and wide,
And holes came in my sock.
We were leaving Indian Mountain,
'Twas then we found some clay,
Upon the banks we scrambled
Before we were on our way.
That trip to Indian Mountain,
'Twill long our thoughts engage,
But when it does escape me,
I'll gaze upon this page.—Joan Christiansen.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

I was returning from preaching a commencement sermon and as I drove in front of a country home a flock of geese were holding a conversation by the roadside. As my car approached them a goose and a gander stretched their necks at full length and came toward me as if to take possession of my car. Without any trouble,I escaped and defeated them in their intention. Not so in regard to the human side. We have seen the human goose, the human gander, get ther hands upon the steering wheel of many a car. To say the least it was not safe for the public, it was not good for the car and neither was it well for the goose or the gander at the wheel. A feathered goose has no use for a car if she were to get it. Mr. Webster says that a human goose is a silly person, and that kind of a bird should not be allowed to drive.

I was sitting on the train and just across the aisle sat a beautiful mother and her bright eyed boy of seven summers. The little fellow aroused from his sleep and after a few moments he inquired: "Mother, where are we going?" Evidently he had not been told the real mission of the trp that he was taking, but his mother in a quiet manner replied: "We are going to Montgomery to have your tonsils and adenoids removed.' He wanted to know all about it and she told him in a way that made him to feel that it was all right and the subject was dropped without the lad even resenting or refusing to be satisfied. I thought to myself: "What a wonderful thing is a mother." The boy had faith in her and without a murmur he traveled with her. This would be a happy world if we had that much faith in God. God knows what is best.

In the afternoon I took my little four-year-old grandson to a hardware store and I bought him a hammer, a hatchet, saw, screw driver and some nails. We returned home and business started. I showed him how to hold a nail and drive it. He then held the nail and hammered away. Just then his little dog set up a yell in the yard and he looked at the dog but kept hammering. The next moment he was howling with the pup. He called for his little sister to hold the nail while he did the hammering and the innocent little thing obeyed without question. Soon she had her vocal chords keyed to the same pitch of the dog and the brother. As I listened in it occurred to me that it was blessed to know how to do things. It is never safe to hold a nail for someone else to drive and it is not good for the finger to look off from your work even when you are hammering and holding.

As I drove into the little city of Monroe, Georgia, men were in huddles everywhere. About an hour before the trial of a negro man for rape had closed. I was told that this negro went to the home of a man in the midnight hours and told the woman that her husband had sent him to her with some money. The husband was away at that hour on a drunken spree and the negro knew it. When the trial was over the crowd made an effort to mob the negro, but with tear gas bombs the crowd was dispersed. Wonder why people did not have the same indignation for the whiskey traffic and the drunken husband. If it had not been for whiskey that man would have been at home to protect his innocent wife and children. Folks, you had just as well wake up and do something about this whiskey business.

I was awake in my room at a hotel in Atlanta, Georgia, at an early hour. I heard the crying of rubber tires on the pavement and then a crash. When I came down later the sidewalk was covered over with human blood. Two cars went together and a human life was snuffed out. The report was that the uninjured man was drinking. When you travel, or even if you read the papers, and your blood does not boil with indignation against the whiskey business, there is something wrong on the inside of you. If you love your fellow man, it is just out of the question for you to witness the tragedies connected with the whiskey traffic and not be stirred with indignation.

REPRESENTATIVE OF BRAILLE PUBLISHING HOUSE VISITS HERE

The Alabama Field Secretary of the Christian Record Benevolent Association, Mrs. Ora F. Lightcap, finished her fifth annual visit to Clanton last Thursday.

This association furnishes large quantities of wholesome, inspirational materal to the blind readers.

Mrs. Lightcap informs us that the Christian Record is the oldest magazine published for blind and has the largest circulation of any magazine in its class. It was first printed in American Braille and is now printed in both the New York Point and Revised Braille Systems of finger reading.

Three other magazines have been added of which the Children's Friend is the latest, first published January 1938. The children use Revised Braille, only, as that system was adopted in the United States in 1917.

Mrs. Lightcap also tells us that the Association sends out three to four tons of material every three months free of postage including the four monthly publications and their large circulating library.

For forty years this work has grown and fourished with no other financial backing than funds solicited from the general public.

Six megazines reach the Clanton readers each month.

The association also provides Braille lessons to any who need to learn modern Braille or to learn their first lessons in finger-reading.

A number of Alabama blind have been made happy through this service.

THE WAR AT SEA
Will Nazi air might outpoint Britain's battlewagons?

THE WAR:

Diplomacy

In early 1938 Germany's conservative Field Marshal Werner von Blomberg married blonde Erika Gruhn, a carpenter's daughter whom other Nazi officers termed "socially impossible." This month Erika Gruhn felt the news spotlight again in a British "white paper" by Sir Nevile Henderson, pre-war ambassador to Germany. Wrote he to Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax:

"I drew your lordship's attention (in 1938) to the far-reaching and unfortunate results of the Blomberg marriage. I am more than ever convinced of the major disaster which that—in itself—minor incident involved, owing to the consequent elimination from Herr Hitler's entourage of the more moderate of his advisers, such as von Blomberg . . ."

VON BLOMBERG
His wife's war?

Recalled by diplomats was the general army shakeup that followed, in which Baron Konstantin von Neurath lost control of German foreign policy, and pro-war advisors fastened themselves to Hitler. It made a pretty news story: Is a woman the cause of Europe's war?

At Sea

In 1919 the proud but beaten German navy scuttled 72 warships in Scapa Flow (see map) rather than lose them to the allies. In the war of 1939, Germany remembered Scapa Flow. Day after Nazi raiders had bombed the Firth of Forth naval yard at Edinburgh, long-range airships again set out (probably from Wilhelmshaven) and unleashed the full fury of Herr Hitler's air might against Scapa Flow. Five times in four hours they struck, damaging the old Iron Duke and giving Britishers a bad case of jitters. Next day press and parliament railled at Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain for sloppy defense work. The cries grew stronger when Chamberlain revealed the Royal Oak had also been sunk at Scapa Flow by a daring U-boat.

But Britain was not idle in this battle of airship vs. warship; she was merely less communicative than the Nazis, who boasted of their conquests. Next day Hollanders reported the Emden naval base had been bombed, and possibly Wilhelmshaven. Both Danish and Norwegian fishermen scurried for cover when the foes clashed somewhere west of Skagerrak. But the sum total of war at sea, which far overshadows the western front, is that Nazi air might is humbling the supposedly invincible British navy.

(U. S. ships got tangled in the war zone. The liner President Harding was buffeted by stormy weather off the Irish coast and had to seek help from home. The freighter Independence Hall picked up 300 torpedo victims from the City of Mandalay.)

Western Front

Whether by choice or convenience, French-British troops began fighting a defensive war whose principal feature was "strategic retreat." On the 100-mile northern flank of the western front, Nazidom's fighting men opened a vicious offensive which drove allied troops back to their main line. Paris reported one part of this drive, on the Moselle and before Saarbrueken, had cost the Germans 5,000 casualties in two days. The French were apparently content to dig in, letting Germany pay the cost of offensive warfare. But they were also waiting for a clearer definition of Russia's intentions (see THE NEUTRALS). Meanwhile reports persisted that the 20 German divisions massed on the Belgian-Netherlands frontier were not there to enjoy the scenery. The burning question: Will 1914's route of invasion be used again?

THE NEUTRALS:

Search for Security

From Scandinavia down through the Balkans to Turkey, diplomats scurried madly after an elusive quantity called security. The reason was Russia, whose grisly head had been shoved into eastern Europe the moment Adolf Hitler opened the door. Although Moscow shipped 17½ tons of gold to Berlin (presumably Polish gold), and although German engineers were busy supervising the Soviet's new five-year plan, the happy wedding of Communism and Naziism seemed to have cost both principals a lot of friends:

Balkans. Russian-Turkish talks in Moscow broke down and Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu left for Istanbul, presumably refusing (1) to close the strategic Dardanelles to all but Russian warships and thus imperil the allies' chances to aid Rumania; (2) to permit Russo-German domination of a Balkan neutral bloc; (3) to recognize the Polish partition, and (4) to permit expansion of Bulgaria and Russia at Rumania's expense. Next day Turkish friendship with the allies was cemented by mutual assistance pacts whereby France, Britain and Turkey agreed to protect the eastern Mediterranean. Meanwhile Turkish troops rushed to northern frontiers.

Commented irked Germany, which promptly snuggled closer to Russia: "It can be taken for certain that other states of the Balkan entente will see in Turkey's attitude a renunciation of the preservation of neutrality which is one of the most important aims of the Balkan states."

SUKRU SARACOGLU
Italy also watched his work.

But Berlin could not be sure. There was every indication that Italy, which fears a Russian-inspired pan-Slavic movement in the Balkans, would start collaborating with Turkey to preserve the Balkan status quo. Moreover the Italians knew their valued Dodecanese islands off Turkey's coast would be gone the instant Il Duce teamed up with Hitler against the allies.

More than ever, little Turkey held the balance of European power.

Baltic. Fearing that Finland might meet the fate of Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia, all victims of Russia's westward drive, the four Scandinavian powers (Finland, Denmark, Norway and Sweden) met at Stockholm to declare their solidarity. President Roosevelt sent his best wishes, having received the day before an answer to his note to Soviet President Michael Kalinin. Said the answer: "The sole aim (of Finnish-Russian negotiations) is the consolidation of reciprocal relations between the Soviet Union and Finland." There was still no official announcement of Russian "demands," but everyone knew Russia wanted naval and air bases on Finnish Baltic islands.

CONGRESS:

Budding Friendship

Three weeks of neutrality debate had passed before the word "fillibuster" was mentioned on the senate floor. Yet isolationists were making a fillibuster in everything but name. West Virginia's Rush D. Holt began vying with North Dakota's Gerald Nye as No. 1 speechmaker. Idaho's D. Worth Clark offered the best oratory: "If Germany is destroyed, her people will be driven into the arms of Stalin . . . This holier-than-thou attitude of England is a pretext . . . It ill-behooves England and France, with their records of persecution within their own borders, to refuse to at least treat for peace The trail of the British empire is built on two things—blood and treachery."

McADOO
A good lobbyist.

But behind scenes there was compromise on the two most debatable points. Repeal of the arms embargo was certain, but isolationists demanded "cash-on-the-barrelhead" instead of 90-day credits to belligerents. Shippers and seaboard states demanded that proposed restrictions on U. S. shipping be relaxed. One of the latter lobbyists whose word carried weight was former Sen. William Gibbs McAdoo, now a west coast shipping executive, whose call at the White House was followed quickly by modification proposals.

Key Pittman, administration leader, called his foreign affairs henchmen into council and observers were pretty sure they'd win most isolationists with these concessions:

1. Designating areas where U. S. ships could carry all materials except armament, i. e., lands like Australia and New Zealand.
2. If a U. S. vessel is destroyed with loss of life, the President would automatically stop trade in that vicinity.
3. The U. S. would not support a shipper's claim against a foreign government if a cargo is destroyed.
4. Vessel masters would be required to give the U. S. a statement of their cargo, detailing consignees and scheduled ports-of-call.
5. The entire western hemisphere would be opened to commercial aircraft.
6. "Cash-on-the-barrelhead" would be imposed not only against foreign governments, but upon residents of those countries.

From such compromise, Democratic wheelhorses saw hope for 1940. If the President disowns third-term ambitions before congress opens next January, and if he avoids any new reform or spending program, observers were pretty certain the once-disheveled Democratic party would hang together until election time.

MISCELLANY:

Jews

Meeting at Washington, the international executive committee on refugees received an appeal from U. S. Jews to consider the plight of 5,000,000 Jews in eastern and central Europe, including those made homeless by the Polish partition. Meanwhile, President Roosevelt was handed a petition bearing 238,000 names, urging steps to make Palestine a Jewish haven. Next day the committee recessed for two weeks to query member governments.

News Quiz Answers

1. Al Smith Jr. is running for alderman in New York.
2. Pact with Argentina. Because U. S. manufactured products would be exchanged for Argentine farm products, allegedly working a hardship on American farmers.
3. Brazil.
4. False—definitely! The ruling was unprecedented, however, and it bans all belligerent submarines except those forced to seek haven by force majeure—an emergency due to natural or "act of God" causes.
5. Henry Ford.

1939 WAS A GOOD YEAR FOR ME
NOT FOR ME—but I'm going to use enough POTASH in 1940!

START PLANNING FOR 1940 NOW

IT IS not too early to be making plans for more profit from your crops next year. Start now, while this year's results are still fresh in your mind, to provide for the use of plenty of potash to insure greater yields and quality in 1940. Rusted cotton, low yields and poor quality of tobacco, corn, vegetable, fruit, and legume crops result if the soil and fertilizer do not supply enough potash. Wherever legumes are grown, more potash is needed because of the large amounts removed by these crops and to balance the nitrogen and organic matter supplied when legume crops are turned under.

Talk over with your county agent or experiment station your yields this year as compared with what you can expect from your soil if given the right amount of the right fertilizer. Ask your fertilizer dealer or manufacturer about fertilizers high in potash. You will be surprised how little extra it costs to apply enough potash for the crops which you will plant next spring.

Write us for further information and literature on the profitable fertilization of Southern crops.

Dear Editor:

Please allow me space in your paper to express my thanks and appreciation to the people of Chilton County.

First, may I say to those who supported me in my race for the Julgeship of our Inferior Law Court, that words cannot express my gratitude to you. It shall be my ambition in life to prove to you that your confidence in me was well placed.

To the voters who saw fit and felt it their duty to vote for either of my opponents, permit me to say that I am truly glad you had that privilege: that both my opponents were worthy of your consideration and support and that I consider your having done so, does not, and shall not, in the least, lessen my obligations to you in the fair and impartial administration of the duties of the office.

To my opponents in the race, it is a privilege to me to say that we were friends before the race began and it is a greater pleasure and satisfaction to me to know and to say that we are bigger and better friends since the race has been run. It gives me pleasure to know that I was able to win in a fair race over such noble men as you are.

To the entire citizenship of the county, I wish to say that in the race for the Judgeship, I was the candilate of a great host of my friends and supporters but now, since I have been elected to the office, I consider myself and I wish you to consider me, your servant.

Again thanking you, each and everyone, who assisted me in the race for the Judgeship.

RAYMOND MIMS,
Judge of Inferior Law Court.

NEGRO THIEF

[illegible] and sent Jackson on his way.

Not to be outdone, the negro came back toward Clanton where he stopped at the home of Mr. G. T. Guy, two miles south of Clanton, and told him he wished to get some gas, and told him another hard luck story. Endeavoring to help the negro by driving him to a nearby service station, Mr. Guy was shoved from under the wheel of his car and Jackson took off down the road but got only a few yards until he landed in a ditch, wrecking the auto.

Patrolmen Dailey and Searcy happened along about that time and Jackson now reposes in the Chilton County jail, probably awaiting another ride.

FARM RELIEF

provide food to needy farmers under a program drawn up at a White House conference attended by a committee of senators and representatives from drouth and flood-stricken areas.

Senator Bankhead (D), Alabama, chairman of the congressional committee, said the White House conference disclosed that the Disaster Loan Corporation had an unexpended and unobligated $20,000,000 in flood relief funds which could be used to aid families in the flood-affected areas of Alabama. Mississippi, Georgia, Florida, Tennessee and Kentucky.

The Farm Security Administration was said to have $9,000,000 available for loans and relief grants to farmers in drouth states, while the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation was said to have $78,000,000 which could be used for food.

The Agriculture Department has asked the railroads to reduce rates on feed shipments into drouth areas.

Senator Bankhead said the "program will see to it that no farmers go hungary."

Whatever steps are necessary to feed them and their stock and keep them on their farms will be taken through use of Federal grants and loans, he said.

"We had a very satisfactory conference," Bankhead asserted, "There was a sympathetic attitude from the President for distressed farmers in flood and drouth areas."

No effort will be made, he asserted to obtain additional appropriations for relief at the special congressional session.

Farmers will be given subsistence, Bankhead indicated, through the medium of ouright grants. Livestock, he said, will be taken care of through Federal loans.

City Gets Gift Of 4,002 Feet Sewer Pipe

Early this week the City of Clanton received by rail 4,002 feet of 12-in. sanitary sewer pipe to be used on the project now underway over the city. This came as a gift from the Federal Government, and is being laid over the city now.

This is almost enough pipe of this size to connect with the cotton mill village, Mayor C. Fenn Jones stated. He pointed out that an 8-inch pipe will branch out in the Willis Addition in North Clanton from the eight-inch pipe. The Reynolds Addition will also connect with this main line.

Another main line will extend from beyond the High School to the Candler Terrace, and will serve South Clanton, which will connect near the Clanton-Birmingham Highway.

The laying of this pipe is going forward rapidly with pipe being placed out Second Avenue toward the Selma Highway and at other sections of the city. When completed Clanton will have the most complete and modern sanitary sewer system in the country.

Mayor Jones hinted that he believes the Government will furnish the City with 4,000 feet of 4-inch cast iron pipe to be placed throughout the Negro section of the City.

Meeting Saturday

These State, County and Federal and County representatives all stated that they were aware that the reports from the farmers as made by the representatives from the various beats, were true.

From the talks by the farmers it was gathered that they were not seeking doles but were willing to work for money with which to buy the necessities of life and continue sending their childern to school.

Talks were made by several of the County Commissioners and C. E. Stapp, former Chilton County Farm Agent.

A resolution was voted by the gathering, appealing to the various State and Federal agencies to render whatever aid they could to the county's needy. and requested that copies of the resolution be sent to local reprsentatives and senators in Washington.

Representatives from every community in Chilton County are requested to attend the meeting at the Court house at 10:30 A.M., Saturday, November 4th.

FOSHEE THANKS FRIENDS FOR SUPPORT IN RECENT ELECTION

I want to take this opportunity to thank each voter of the County who supported me so loyally in the recent election. I appreciate the large vote given me. It assures me of the confidence and good will of my fellow Chilton Countians in my first political endeavor.

From the congratulations and words of encouragement received on every hand since the election, I feel that I made many new friends and that I may in part be worthy of the confidence and esteem imposed in me by your most sacred right—your vote.

Best of all I have come to know my County and its people better. Besides meeting and knowing more good people in the County, I have seen at first sight the County's good farm lands; its good schools; its churches; its good roads; its good pasture lands; its many saw mills; its power plants and many, many other things of interest. I regret most the dire condition of practically every farmer in the County. You have without exception, lost a crop this year, and something must be done to save your farms, your homes and your property from being sold for your taxes.

These or similar conditions in other sections of the country have been remedied, and in my judgment can be in part remedied immediately in this County if individual gains and partisan politics be left out and the interest of the farmers and their needs one time be made known to those in high places by the cooperative endeavor and immediate action of the farmers, as a group themselves.

I congratulate my good friend and schoolmate, Raymond Mims, the winner, on his election. I trust that he will hold with individual distinction the office to which he has been elected.

I thank each one again for your support and vote.

Most respectfully,
A. B. (Buster) FOSHEE.

VOL. XVII — CLANTON, ALABAMA, NOVERBER 9, 1939 — NUMBER 56

We Observe

By BONNIE HAND

An Institution Has Served It's Purpose—

Last week the Alabama Welfare Department ordered a Chilton County institution closed. This institution has existed for many years in the midst of it's quiet and peaceful surroundings on the outskirts of Mountain Creek. We speak of the Alabama Confederate Soldiers Home. At the time of its closing the Home was occupied by no Confederate veteran—only by five widows of the men who fought under the Gray colors. This Home was closed only after it was no longer really needed. A $5,000 yearly appropriation supported the institution, occupied by only five of the aging women who hold memories of the days when the United States was fighting itself. These ladies have been placed in private homes and hospitals and will no doubt be well cared for, and at far less expense. Many have been the visitors to this haven of rest for those in declining years. Many only rode by in their cars, all showing the due respect of quietness. This institution, the location of which was chosen in Chilton County, has served its purpose and no longer exists.

American Education Week—

This week is "American Education Week," and may we ask this question: How long has it been since you visited the schoolhouse in your community and observed what is being carried on there. In the world of your own success, great, mediocre or small it may be, have you taken the time since you left your last classroom to review the importance of the education you gained in those classrooms in years gone by? This week should refresh our minds and cause us to redouble our efforts in behalf of education in our own community, our own state and nation. We note with interest the special observance of "American Education Week" by the civic clubs and organizations of Clanton and the entire County.

Deadline Nearing—

Midnight, November 14, which comes around next Tuesday, is the last chance auto owners will have to purchase those license plates sans an extra fee. Those obliging and genial clerks at the Probate office will certainly appreciate car owners buying their tags before that date, as this has always been a hectic day for them, with applicants clamoring for their tags by the hundreds. You people who have in the past made it a habit of waiting until the last day to turn loose the cash, just keep in mind that if you operate your car during the next year you must purchase the tags, and that it is about as easy to raise the money a few days early as it is to wait until the final day.

Not So Bad—

Reports are that business in general is looking up, especially in the larger cities. With crops short in our county, naturally business will be off from that source, however, as winter comes on business here seems to be holding its own as compared to other years. An increase in the number of automobile tags purchased last month over the number sold the same month last year is seen from the figures in the Probate office here.

Now's The Time—To Advertise—

We would say that business is going to be pretty good in Clanton and Chilton County this year. At least our opinion is that a larger portion of what there is will go to those progressive merchants who avail themselves of the columns of the News to advertise their wares. Advertising pays and will truly [illegible] in the next few months. So, Mr. Merchant, the people of Chilton County will be looking for bargains this winter, and with the holiday seasons coming on you can't go wrong by advertising regularly in the News. Business, you know, goes where it is invited.

They'll Be Around—

On this page appears a list of Red Cross workers for the various sections of the city and county. Those persons who are to solicit enrollments in your community will appreciate it if you [illegible] them with a smile—and with a dollar or more in your hand.

YOUTH LOSES LIFE IN TRUCK ACCIDENT FRI.

CHARLES TERRY DURHAM, AGE 25, INSTANTLY KILLED WHEN LOADED TRUCK OVERTURNS

Charles Terry Durham, age 25, was instantly killed early last Friday morning when a truck loaded with asphalt he was driving overturned just east of Plantersville on the Selma Highway.

Reports stated that young Durham, whose home is in Standing Rock, Alabama, in Chambers County, was driving a truck loaded with asphalt, and was employed by the W.M. Ford Construction Co. at the time of the accident. On the truck with Durham was a Mr. Ford, who was not injured. Closely following another car, Durham swerved his truck to avoid a collision when the car turned off the main road. This caused the truck to overturn. Durham was instantly killed, crushed by the load on the truck.

The body was brought to Clanton where it was prepared for burial by J. Mell Martin & Sons, and shipped to Standing Rock for funeral services and burial.

D. L. BLACKKETTER BECOMES MANAGER OF STORE GROUP

D. L. Blackketter, well known and popular manager of the Yellow Front Store in Clanton for the past several years, has just recently been made supervisor of several of the Yellow Front Stores, owned by the Sumter Farm and Stock Company of Tuscaloosa.

Under Mr. Blackketter's supervision will be the following stores: Brent, Maplesville, Clanton, Camden and Centreville.

The News heartily congratulates Mr. Blackketter on being entrusted with this responsibility by the well known Sumter Farm & Stock Company. Since coming to Clanton as manager of the local store, Mr. Blackketter has been a consistent user of newspaper advertising, and has built up a splendid patronage under his efficient management, and strives at all times to offer the buying public of this section the very best bargains possible.

Thorsby Applies For Sewerage Project

Application for a W.P.A. sewerage project has been filed by the City officials of Thorsby, according to a weekly bulletin from the Health Department. The plans are for a system to serve both the business and residential districts of the town. A preliminary survey has been made by a firm of sanitary engineers of Birmingham and action on the application is expected within a few weeks, it was shown in the Health Department's report.

The estimated cost of the project to Thorsby is about $12,000. A local health official says he is informed that the town plans to finance the project by voting a bond issue. Thorsby citizens were urged by the Health Department to exert every possible effort to raise the needed funds.

Th County Health Officer declared that the project is badly needed in Thorsby, particularly to serve the stores and cafes on the main highway. Raw sewage from these buildings is being emptied directly on the ground next to the highway creating a real health menace to the citizens of Thorsby, according to the Health Department's report. While the property owners are legally responsible for maintaining this condition due to the lack of a field for underground disposal of the sewage, the assistance of the City is imperative in solving this problem, it was brought out in the health bulletin.

Farmers Are Receiving Subsidy Payments

County Agent J. W. Fant stated this week that Chilton County farmers are now receiving their subsidy payments for 1939. The AAA office here has received 2012 checks up to Monday night and are receiving them at the rate of approximately 300 checks per day. These 2012 checks amount to a little better than $46,000.

The total subsidy for Chilton County will be approximately $110,000. Each farmer who planted within his acreage allotment and cultivated his farm in 1939 will receive a portion of this payment. There are approximately 250 farmers that are not qualified for this payment.

Miss Olive Rainer Elmore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. J. Elmore who is attending Stephens College in Columbia, Missouri, has recently pledged Phi Phi Phi, one of the college's leading sororities.

JUDGE OF PROBATE ISSUES RED CROSS PROCLAMATION

With Europe at war, the American Red Cross is confronted with tremendously increased responsibilities, and this year it is redoubling its appeal to the Amercan people for support in the battle against human suffering.

During the past year we have been drawn closed to the Red Cross through its far-flung disaster relief, its aid to the innocent non-combatants of war, as well as through its daily services designed to stamp out misery in the form of disease and the ever-present threat of accidental death.

Those of us who have seen the Red Cross grow in recent years and realize the great demands the European situation places on it, can understand the need for a great membership increase. The natural phenomena of disaster and the dangers of a mechanized age continue to be the source of suffering and accidental death. We must recognize that the ability of this great organization to serve is directly proportionate to the membership support of the public.

This year's appeal of the Red Cross for your support will be made November 11-17. Our County has never failed to respond to the Red Cross call for assistance; and for this reason, I feel confident that we shall be proud to enroll our share of the million more members.

As Judge of Probate of Chilton County, I designate this period as the time all members will have an opportunity to renew their affiliation and to afford those who have not enrolled an opportunity to help the Red Cross help others.

J. LEE SMITH,
Judge of Probate

FARMERS UNION TO MEET

The Chilton County Farmers Union will meet Saturday, November 11, beginning at 10 o'clock. We will have with us the Shelby County Junior String Band and a number of good speakers. We invite the public to be with us in the afternoon.—Gresham Smith, County Secretary.

Distressed Farmers Assured of Relief

Senator Bankhead Says Federal Government Will Prevent Any Extreme Suffering

One of the most representative and earnest gathering of Chilton County citizens ever assembled at the County Court House listened intently Saturday morning to U. S. Senator John H. Bankhead, Col. Gray Henderson, Miss Loula Dunn, Miss Nolan Meroney, Marvin Durbin, Julius Brown and others discuss the pressing needs of Chilton County farmers, many of whom are near destitution as a result of almost total crop failures.

The mass meeting called by Probate Judge J. Lee Smith and the County Commissioners, was the second such meeting—the first having been called by former Probate Judge L. H. Reynolds the Saturday previous at which time extensive reports from all parts of the county were made.

County officials and others interested in obtaining relief for these needy ones feel greatly encouraged after getting first-hand information from these Federal and State representatives.

Hugh Sparrow, veterans News-Age-Herald staff writer, was present and reported the meeting in Sunday's paper as follows:

Clanton, Ala — Alabama's [illegible] hard-pressed far[illegible] a condition border[illegible] cause of [illegible]rop fa[illegible] last Summer's floods and other [illegible] setbacks, were assured here [illegible] by Senator John H. Bankhead that the federal government stood ready to protect them against extreme suffering.

After outlining to a capa[illegible] in the Chilton County courthouse ste[illegible] taken by senators and representatives [illegible] the recent special session of C[illegible] to provide emergency relief [illegible] ers in a numb[illegible] states [illegible] failures were widespread, Alabama's senior senator added:

"I left Was[illegible] this week [illegible] the assurance that no farmer or member of a farmer's family would be permitted to starve or suffer as a result of poor crop conditions which prevailed not only in Alabama but in widespread areas from the Atlantic to the Pa[illegible]"

Senator Bankhead mentioned the probability that fully $21,000,000 would be available immediately for em[illegible] farm relief, $20,000,000 of which would be in the form of lending money and $1,000,000 for outright gr[illegible] added that the Surplus C[illegible] Corporation also would be [illegible] soon to distribute emergency [illegible]stuffs to needy farm areas.

Red Cross Seeks Greater Membership Support In Roll Call To Meet European War Needs And To Strengthen Domestic Operations In 1940

Faced with a growing demand for Red Cross assistance to the stricken populations of Europe's warring nations and a need for strengthening its domestic operations, the American Red Cross will embark November 11 on the greatest membership campaign since the World War, Cohen E. Stapp, Chairman of the Chilton County Red Cross Chapter declared today.

The appeal, he said, will be carried by the 10,000 Chapters and branches of the organization located in virtually every community in the country. Starting Armistice Day, Roll Call will extend through November 17th.

"Prior to the outbreak of hostilities in Europe," Mr. Stapp said, "the American Red Cross planned to appeal for a million more members in an effort to strengthen its services in this country. War, however, has increased the responsibilities of the Red Cross to the point where even greater membership support is needed to meet the appeals from abroad.

"The Red Cross is obligated to the Treaty of Geneva to assist in allevaiting the sufferings of war Our Chapters throughout the country already have started the production of garments for the needy civilian populations of belligerent countries, while a limited number of Chapters are now preparing hundreds of thousands of surgical dressings for use at the front."

The success of Roll Call this year, will gauge the amount of assistance the American Red Cross can give the sick and injured of war, and the comfort that can be brought to refugees and other non-combatants fleeing the danger zones, Mr. Stapp said.

"At the same time, the Red Cross must be prepared to continue its battle against human suffering in this country," the local Chairman said. "The Red Cross has been constantly increasing its volume of service during the past few years.

"Along the nation's highways, in the homes of the underprivileged, in hospitals, military stations, schools and at the scene of disaster, the Red Cross is facing a challenge for greater service."

The 12-month period extending through June of this year, he pointed out, brought to this country the largest number of disasters in history. Tornadoes ,floods, hurricanes, mine explosions and calamity in its various forms struck in 157 communities in 43 states.

During 1938, Mr. Stapp said, 32,400 lost their lives as a result of automobile accidents. To help curb this alarming spectre of death on the highway, the Red Cross established, in 1935, its Highway Emergency First Aid Stations. After four years, he said, extensive campaigning and training of first aiders, 5,362 stations and mobile first aid units are in operation, standing ready to treat the injured and to save the dying. This newly-introduced service, he said, is being coupled with the 30-year-old First Aid program which combats all forms of accidental death. During the past year the two millionth First Aider was trained.

"Red Cross public health nurses made 1,046,933 visits to or on behalf of the idigent sick during the past 12 months," he stated. "They are carrying out their work in communities where nursing and medical aid are not readily available, such as rural and mountain areas and on isolated islands along our coast. These nurses, numbering 655 also examined 595,575 children for possible physical defects and arranged through Red Cross chapters for proper treatment where it was judged necessary."

The Junior Red Cross, it was explained, is recognized as the largest youth organization in the country. It has a membership of approximately 9,000,000 young Americans of grammar and high school age. In addition to their regular services of assisting disaster-stricken children and their many local programs, the Junior Red Cross carries on a system of international correspondence in an effort to create a better understanding between nations.

Last year, Mr. Stapp said, the Red Cross trained 100,361 persons in life saving, bringing the total number trained since the service was organized in 1914 to the million mark. He pointed out that 7,500 persons lost their lives in water sports during the past 12 months. This was a reduction of approximately 33 per cent over the 1914 figure, despite the increasing number of persons seeking recreation on our coastal and inland waters. He said a recent Red Cross survey indicated that 80,000,000 take part in water sports annually

TRUTH about ADVERTISING

By CHARLES B. ROTH

TRADE MARKS AND DOLLAR MARKS

WITHOUT giving the matter much thought you might define a trade mark on a package or an advertisement as a mark of identification which protects the interest of the seller against imitators; a selfish symbol, you know, which exists to help some one man or firm to get rich.

Actually a trade mark is as much to your interest as it is to the man's who owns it and has it registered in his name.

Charles Roth

For it is a buying guide for you which you can absolutely trust. You can buy anything under a trade mark and know that the quality, the quantity and the price will be right. You do not even have to examine the package before you buy. If the trade mark is there, so also will the quality be there.

The merchant knows that. He prefers to sell trade-marked, that is, advertised, goods, because they have the confidence of the public and can be sold easily, quickly and in quantity.

Back of the trade mark is advertising. It stands for the trade mark, for the trade mark itself is merely a design etched on paper, until advertising gives it life in the minds of consumers like yourself.

The trade mark which saves you money and time need not be a formal design of a national manufacturer or advertiser. It may be merely the familiar name of your grocer or haberdasher, appearing at the foot of his advertisements in the newspaper.

Wherever you see those familiar words or names or marks you know that you are in the presence of a man who is doing his level best to be worthy of your trade and who wants to keep you coming back.

He is advertising for that purpose, notifying you that he is in business to stay and that you can buy from him and he will stand back of his goods. For you the trade mark, like the dollar mark which we all respect, stands for full value wherever it happens to be found.

But unidentified goods are as uncertain as counterfeit money, and the wise man or woman avoids both.

And how close these trade marks are to our lives and how comforting they are to us when we buy! You go into a store. On the shelves are familiar marks you have seen all your life.

You recognize them as you do familiar faces in a strange crowd—and they give you the same comforting feeling of familiarity and respect.

Trade marks exist to help you buy more serenely and profitably.

Women: "Build-Up" To Relieve Pain

A weak, run-down, undernourished condition calls for attention!

Such a condition often enables functional dysmenorrhea to get its foothold. That's one thing which leads to much of women's suffering from headaches, nervousness, those cramp-like pains. A good way to relieve such pains, women by thousands have found, is by the proper use of CARDUI. It stimulates a lagging appetite, assists digestion and assimilation; thus helps build physical resistance to periodic pain. Taken just before and during "the time," many women also report that CARDUI helps to ease the pain and discomfort of the period.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LaBINE

Soviet-U. S. Relations Strained By Molotov's Attack on FDR; Italy Protects Her Neutrality

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

EUROPE:

Double Feature

All Hallow's eve found every European ear cocked to Moscow, awaiting history-making utterances from Premier Viacheslav Molotov. Adolf Hitler had 1,500,000 men poised at the front; so did the allies. But war hung in abeyance. For as Russia swung so would the war, because every other European state had declared its status, neutral with leanings either toward Germany (like Italy and Hungary) or toward the allies.

Stolen Thunder

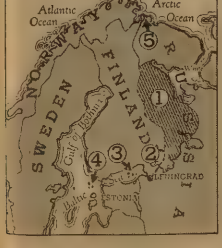
A few short hours before Molotov's speech, Il Duce Benito Mussolini pulled a coup that must have stunned his erstwhile colleague in Germany. Ousted was Propaganda Minister Dino Alfieri, close friend of Nazidom's Propagandist Paul Joseph Goebbels. Ousted were Fascist Secretary Achille Starace, close friend of Deputy Fuehrer Rudolf Hess and the man who gave a signal for the Italian chamber's demonstration against France last winter; Gen. Alberto Pariani, friend of Hitler's Col. Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch and author of the Italian "blitzekrieg" plan for a German - Italian - Spanish drive against France; Gen. Giuseppe Valle, friend of Field Marshal Hermann Goering. Replacing them were middle-of-the-roaders like Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, chief of staff. Retained were other favorites like Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano (Mussolini's son-in-law) and Count Dino Grandi, minister of justice.

IL DUCE'S STARACE
His demotion . . .

In Paris there was a feeling the Rome-Berlin axis had broken down completely. London was also happy, for a few hours earlier Italy's Ambassador Giuseppe Bastianini had made a strong anti-Communist speech. In the Balkans it was thought Mussolini disapproved Russia's expansionist policy, especially since Il Duce did not even wait until Molotov spoke. But in Italy it was a simple indication that Mussolini had his ear to the ground; Italians wanted no pact with the allies, they merely wanted strict neutrality.

Ominous Talk

First allied reaction to Premier Molotov's speech was relief over his failure to declare a military alliance with the Reich, even though he did charge Britain and France were warring not to preserve democracy or restore Poland, but to safeguard their world empires. But sober reflection made the allies worry about:



RUSSIAN DEMANDS

The Soviet would give Finland part of Karelia (1) in exchange for moving back Finnish frontier northwest of Leningrad (2); Russia wants (3) islands of Seiskari, Hogland, Lavansaari and Tytarsaari; would lease land (4) at mouth of Finnish gulf for naval bases: asks for Finnish part of Rybachi peninsula (5).

Finland. Molotov revealed, much to the Finns' chagrin, the stalemated proposals which have occupied these two countries for the past month. Besides a mutual assistance pact, Russia wanted territorial exchanges (see map) which Finland declared would "rob us of the chance of defending the independence . . . of our land."

Germany. He said Nazi-Russian friendship was getting thicker. Next day it was revealed trade discussions were going forward successfully. One report from Stockholm said Russian submarines would be given the Nazis in exchange for German merchant ships, providing a subtle way of staying "neutral."

Poland. He said there can be no question of restoring Poland and that it was absurd to continue the war for that cause. Two days earlier, Britain's Prime Minister Chamberlain had acknowledged Russia's right of invasion to "protect" her Polish blood brothers from Germany.

Balkans. He gave no hint of expansion there, but shook a nasty finger at Turkey for signing mutual assistance pacts with the allies after shunning a treaty with the Soviet.

United States. He precipitated a heated argument which observers thought might end with severance of Soviet-U. S. diplomatic relations. Commenting on President Roosevelt's earlier note expressing hope for continued amicable Finnish-Russian relations, Molotov said: "One finds it hard to reconcile that with the American policy of neutrality . . . One might think that matters are in better shape between the United States and . . . the Philippines . . . than between the Soviet Union and Finland, which has long ago obtained both freedom and political independence . . ."

STALIN'S MOLOTOV
. . . stole his thunder.

Next day, while Massachusetts' Rep. John McCormack demanded from the house floor that Ambassador Laurence Steinhardt be recalled from Moscow, the President dug from his files an exchange of notes with Soviet President Michael Kalinin last April, when Kalinin cabled an unsolicited "expression of profound sympathy" with the President's efforts to safeguard peace. This cable had come one day after Mr. Roosevelt sent peace pleas to Dictators Hitler and Mussolini. Thus the U. S. put Kalinin on record as supporting the President's peace efforts in contrast to Molotov's declaration. Suggested White House Secretary Steve Early: "It would seem that he (Molotov) had the embargo in mind rather than what he termed the President's moral support of Finland."

(Unspotlighted, the neutrality bill wormed its way through the house which voted 237 to 177 for sending it to conference with the senate, conferees to have definite instructions. One instruction: To repeal the arms embargo, by a vote of 243 to 181. Thus congress expected to get out of town immediately. Britain hailed the repeal; Nazidom was enraged. One suddenly discovered danger of cash-and-carry is that the allies will indeed buy more arms but will cut other imports from the U. S. One Britisher thought imports of U. S. industrial products and foodstuffs may fall off $150,000,000 a year.)

Western Front

Abandoning purely defensive positions, German "shock troops" stormed the French frontier at scattered points as murky weather gave way to sunshine. Fears grew that Belgium and the Netherlands might be invaded. The Dutch proclaimed a state of siege in eight provinces, flooding frontier positions to check any Nazi advance.

At Sea

While the embattled U. S. S. City of Flint steamed carefully down the Norwegian coast to Germany under a Nazi prize crew, the U. S. asked both the Reich and Britain to protect her interned American crew. Washington also reported 27 U. S. ships have been detained by belligerents since the war began. The war at sea came too close to American shores when the British freighter Coulmore was reportedly torpedoed 450 miles off New England. Nazi planes and U-boats continued successful raiding of allied shipping, but Britain retaliated by naming Lord Nuffield (her "Henry Ford") to a key post in the air ministry. His instructions: To intensify the navy's North sea blockade against Germany.

POLITICS:

Candidate-of-the-Week

Rooseveltian third-term talk, which took a back seat in early days of the war crisis, loomed again in San Francisco when Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace boomed the President for re-election. Next day Secretary Steve Early made it clear that Franklin Roosevelt wanted no boom, and Iowa's Sen. Guy Gillette left a White House conference where the President had reportedly asked that Iowa's delegation to next year's convention go unpledged. The deduction: That Mr. Roosevelt will not seek re-election, and certainly wants the matter hushed for the present.

But Henry Wallace had started the political pot boiling again. Into the Republican picture jumped Oregon's Sen. Charles McNary, who tentatively consented to run. Into the Democratic picture jumped a brand new name, Montana's Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, who tried to win the vice presidency with the elder La-Follette in 1924.

Writing California's Gov. Cuthbert Olson to protest a meeting of "progressive leaders" scheduled next month in Salt Lake City, C. I. O.'s John Lewis gave, among other reasons: "The slight to Senator Wheeler and other great liberals of the west, who have not been consulted . . ."

SENATOR WHEELER AND WIFE
Plenty of friends.

Lewis apparently considered the meeting (some of whose participants may be violating the Hatch "no politics" act) as a third-term boom. Certainly it was made clear that Senator Wheeler should be consulted in any future "liberal" discussions about 1940. Washington observers, realizing that Lewis support may be a kiss of death to any political aspirations the senator may entertain, nevertheless admitted he has A. F. of L. backing, a big railroad following and plenty of friends in the senate.

Billingsley Hallowe'en Carnival, Coronation Of Queen, Was Beautiful Affair October 27th

The people of Billingsley and the surrounding neighborhoods were entertained with a Hallowe'en carnival at Billingsley High School auditorium, Friday night, October twenty-seventh.

Spirits, which were already high from the fact that the Billingsley Bears had tied the Prattville Lions that afternoon on the home sod, heightened as the fun of the evening progressed.

In the first part of the evening a spooky Hallowe'en program gave atmosphere to the carnival. Vida Smoot, impersonating an owl, gave a reading. W. H. Ousley, in a clear, ringing voice, boldly asserted that he had seen no spooks nor witches and that he was not afraid. His reading was followed with a witch's song and dance by the following girls in appropriate costumes: Dorothy Mims, Vida Smoot, Augusta Williams, Mattie Lou Turner, and Margie Cox.

Vida Smoot then entertained the audience with tap dancing while the stage was being set for a short play. This play, entitled "The Ghost That Walked At Midnight," had as it's cast of characters the following:

Beatrice—Dixie Smoot.
Jack Green—Lofton Hilyer.
Frank Mann, or the Ghost—Woodrow Deason.

After the program proper, all the audience took part in penny-pitching, fishing at the fish pond, going through the Hall of Horrors, and the like. Ice cream, hot dogs, home-made candy, and cold drinks refreshed the people as the evening grew.

In the latter part of the evening the gong was sounded, and Principal Story awarded the prize for the best costume to Margie Cox.

Now came the crowning of Miss Billingsley High, Queen of the Carnival. Competition was high among the seven contestants. The final results, disclosed by Coach McMillan, revealed Miss Mary Alice Wyatt as runner-up.

The Queen's court marched to stately music down the aisle to the stage for the crowning ceremony. Two little flower girls, Joyce Weldon and Annette Simpson, dressed in blue, led the way Next came the crown-bearer, little "Bubbles" Smedley, dressed in white, bearing the crown on a white satin pillow

The Queen, Miss Opal Deason, attired in pink, with a train of the same color, marched next in the procession. Two little train-bearers, Fletcher Harris and "Bozo" Burkhalter, dressed in black and white as little pages, bore the Queen's train. Their blouses were of white taffeta with jabots and sashes

Then, two by two, came the Queen's attendants, dressed in blush pink, wearing corsages of yellow peas and fern. They were Misses Mary Alice Wyatt, Mary Esther Foshee, Jean Smith Woodard Herred, Annie Lee Donoh and Magdalene Thomas.

Leon Hampton, captain of the boy basketball team, who sponsored the contest, crowned the Queen. The court sang a song, hailing her queen.

Thus was the evening's merriment concluded

What Is Wealth?

Wealth, according to a recent survey made by the University of Notre Dame, is not money that is used in everyday trade, and which is being passed from hand to hand, but property that people actually own, use and enjoy.

The research disclosed that the Nation's physical assets are about $2,750 for each person, which is approximately three hundred billion dollars, and was evidently made for the purpose of answering those who hold that the wealth of the United States is concentrated in the hands of a few people.

While it is true that most of this wealth is in the hands of the masses, it is also true that although the "holder" is in possession, and pays every kind of tax imaginable for the privilege of thinking he is the owner, the fact remains that under the present prevailing credit system, based on a fictitious metal money value, the actual ownership lies with a comparatively small percentage of the Nation's population.

Wealth is inded property that people actually own, but there are so few people who "actually" own property.

Bible Institute To Open At Courthouse

Evangelist C. F. Graves announces the grand opening of the Bible Institute to be conducted in the Courthouse in Clanton. The first lecture will be held Sunday night, November 12, beginning at 7:00 o'clock. There will be a special musical program from 7:00 to 7:30, the lecture closing promptly at 8:30. The subject for Sunday night will be, "Will Stalin, With All His Diplomacy and Intrigue, Mould Europe Into A Mighty Empire? Is Europe Ripe For Communism? Is the Present Struggle Armageddon?"

According to Mr. Graves' announcement, the Bible Institute will prove to be a very highly educational and inspirational program which the general public, including all Bible lovers, will enjoy. One-half hour of musical numbers will be greatly enjoyed by the Chilton County music lovers. It is stated that there will be a special feature for the children, a story period conducted by Mrs. Sadie Walleker, Bible teacher, and a part of the personnel of the evangelistic party.

Evangelist Graves says that nearly all the lectures will be beautifully illustrated on a large screen, something new for Clanton. Also a large number of songs will be shown on the screen. Opportunity will be given for written questions to be asked, and it is promised they will be answered each evening.

Services will continue every night throughout the week at 7:00. No meeting on Saturday night. The subject for Monday night is one of great interest, "Why Doesn't God Kill The Devil?" All the programs are free and the public is cordially invited.

Young Peoples meeting 6:30 P.M.

Evening worship service 7:00 P.M. Sermon by the Pastor; topic, "Is There A Personal Devil?"

Would there were space to print a reminder the many commands and exhortations in the Bible urging us to worship God. Would that each member and friend of Clanton Methodist Church take Deuteronomy 6 as a motto and standard of living and read it daily along with other daily readings of scriptures. If we will, just read how blessed we shall be. If we will, we shall attend Church School and the worship services and our record of attendance will not ever again be low like it was last Sunday. Read this chapter and think of our Church School. Read this chapter and think of our good pastor and the Worship services he, by the guidance of our Heavenly Father directs. Then pray. Then follow the directions of your God-directed conscience.

The furnace in the church has been fixed and all are promised a warm church throughout the winter. Come to Church School and worship services and all the other church services and be comfortable physically and blessed spiritually.

LOCAL GIRLS TO BE HEARD IN ALABAMA COLLEGE CHORUS

The girls at Alabama College this week went on the air wth their traditional pasttime of "Step-Singing."

Several generations of Montevallo girls have been accustomed to gathering on the steps of Main Dormitory where one of their number leads an informal songfest. Now parents, friends, and kinfolk around hundreds of firesides over Alabama will be privileged to listen in.

The first Thursday of each month, at 9 P.M., Radio Station WAPI, Birmingham, will broadcast "Step-Singing" as a chorus of nearly one thousand girlish voices are raised in songs both old and new.

Girls from Chilton County who sing in this chorus are: Flora Jane Abney, Mary Balk, Lera Dee Conway, Mary Lou Gaines, Doris Guy, Paralee Henson, Geraldine Hollis, Frances Mims, Margaret Kelly Moore, Kathleen Langston, Ola Mae Parrish, Emily Arline Sawyer, Frances Sexton and Jane Shanks.

NEXT TUESDAY IS DEADLINE FOR TAG BUYERS

PURCHASE LICENSE PLATES BEFORE LAST DAY TO AVOID RUSH, IS ADVICE

A timely reminder is being issued this week by the office of the Judge of Probate that midnight Tuesday, November 14, is the deadline for purchasing 1940 automobile license plates without an added fee—and probably a [illegible]

Figures at the Probate office show that during the month of October this year there were 736 applications for tags. This is an increase of 46 over the number 690 during the same month last year. however, clerks in the office here are reminding the auto owners of the county that the deadline is fast nearing, and that there are several hundred purchases yet to be made.

During the month of November last year 1,812 tags were sold. Assuming that there will be the same amount sold during this November, and we see that there will be an increase of 1,076 tags to be purchased this month over last month

The last day always finds the Probate office crowded to overflowing with last-day tag buyers. This works a hardship on the clerks there, and also greatly inconveniences the buyers, so every auto owner who has yet to get his or her license plates would save themselves and others quite a bit of added trouble by not waiting until the last few hours to apply for their tags

Automobile drivers are also reminded that the [illegible] drivers [illegible] become delinquent on that date, and those who have not secured their [illegible] permits should do so at once

An Appeal

There are still some children in the county who have not enrolled in school because of lack of clothes. There are many who are in school who cannot continue without some help. The clothes which have been given to the attendance officer have been a great help in getting and keeping some children in school.

Anyone who helps to keep a child in school is doing the child a real service. If you have anything which can be worn, leave it at the office of the Board of Education or call the office and the attendance officer will be glad to call for them.

The officers were installed by Opal Pruitt of the Jemison Chapter.

The new president took charge of the meeting then, and a motion was made by Willie Jean Northcutt and seconded by Audelle McCarty that we adopt the constitution of the local chapters with a few changes, for our County organization.

Refreshments were served by the Jemison Chapter and the meeting adjourned to meet the first Wednesday in February at Clanton.

IN MEMORY OF LITTLE MARSHALL PRICE

No one knows how we miss you;
No one knows the bitter pain,
We have suffered since we last saw you.
Life has never been the same.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly, tender, fond and true.
There is not a day, dear little Marshall,
That we do not think of you.
More and more each day we miss you,
Friends may think the wound is healed,

Jim shook his head. "No matter what else that guy Kirk can do, he's a bear-cat on scaring women. Margaret has talked my ear off for the past two weeks begging me to keep out of it."

"I know. And look what I'm up against. Good Lord! Jim . . . suppose it was Margaret instead of Kay . . . and that she was going into town tonight with Kirk—against her wishes . . . what would you do?"

"I don't know."

"Yes you do. You'd meet him when he got here . . . Man! A fellow's got to do something."

"I know how you feel. But suppose Kay's right? Suppose there really is something behind all this that we haven't thought of?"

"Well . . . suppose there is?"

"Then for all we know we'd be throwing a nice big monkey-wrench into the machinery."

"So you're asking me to take it sitting down?"

Jim put a kindly hand on his friend's arm. "I'm not asking anything, Barney. I'm not advising anything. I don't know what the devil I'd do if I were in your place." The eyes of the larger man were grim and steady. "Meanwhile, I'm getting busy."

"Doing what?"

"Got to paddle through the Gardens. Two or three of these night vistas I'm not entirely satisfied with. Promised myself I'd give 'em the once-over tonight." He selected a bateau and untied it. "Why not come along?"

Barney shook his head. "No, thanks."

"Any particular reason?"

"No. Just figure I'd like to be alone."

CHAPTER IX

"There," said Mrs. Hamilton, "you're all packed."

Kay nodded. The packing had been simple enough, a few things thrown into her suit-case, thrown in gaily as though she were going on a pleasant trip.

She had tried to smile it off. Mrs. Hamilton and Margaret had helped, as she had known they would. She had explained briefly. She begged them not to argue against her decision. She told them about Barney's promise to stay outside until after she had left with Kirk. And although Margaret did not comment specifically, she hoped that Jim Owenby would not stumble on Kirk.

A knock at the front door summoned them, but it wasn't Kirk, It was Kay's father. And her brother. Kay opened the door and said, "Oh! It's you!"

Andrew Forrest nodded, and Kay looked over his shoulder at the stalwart figure of her brother Andy. She said, "Won't you come in?" and they came in . . . and she closed the door against the chill of the April night.

She thought, "I must get them out of here before Kirk comes." She thought, with sudden fear, "I wonder if they know he's coming?" She thought, "I wonder why they're here?"

Mr. Forrest answered her unspoken question. He said, almost apologetically, "We were just driving by . . ." and then went on to explain that he had been compelled to make a trip to some tiny cross-roads hamlet to straighten out the family tree of a deceased gentleman who had left considerable property. "Like all these swamp angels," smiled Mr. Forrest ruefully, "they never seem to remember all their relatives. Andy drove me out this afternoon and I've been talking to uncles and aunts and cousins for hours."

She conversed nervously. She wanted them to go, to go quickly. She was afraid all over again—afraid that Kirk might come while they were with her.

Actually, they remained at the house less than 20 minutes . . . but it seemed like that many hours. And when they told her good night and walked off toward the parking place under the live oaks some 200 yards back of the house, Kay dropped onto a chair and sat staring. She was trembling with nervous reaction.

Margaret came downstairs first. She crossed the room and put her hand on Kay's shoulder. She said, "You've got to pull yourself together, Kay."

"Yes. I know . . . But I was so afraid that Kirk might walk in on them . . ."

"But he didn't. And now I'm going to say my last word on this. I'm pretty fond of you, and I'm older. I think you're making a mistake—"

"You don't understand."

"No?" The voice of the slim, blonde girl was gentle. "I wonder if you do?"

"Yes . . ."

"Then you've got to play it as you see it. I just wanted you to remember that we all want to help."

"I know you do."

"And any time you'll let us in on the secret . . ."

Mrs. Hamilton joined them The three women tried to talk. Time dragged. Then the front door opened and Barney came in. His face was white and stern and he said, "You still here?"

"Kirk hasn't shown up."

"I see. And you haven't changed your mind?"

"No, Barney."

He fidgeted uncomfortably. "Think I'll run along upstairs."

Kay noticed that he walked heavily. She was dreadfully sorry for him. She was glad when Jim Owenby returned. At least there were two men in the house now. Jim settled his big figure on the arm of Margaret's chair, and Margaret whispered to him that they had heard nothing from Kirk.

Jim's dark face was grave. He said, "He'd have 'phoned if he'd changed his mind."

"You think so?"

"Sure. I know that lad."

Kay's nerves were jumpy. She fought against a crazy impulse to laugh; not mirthfully, but with hysteria. Anything, she felt, would be better than this: this sitting around waiting for a ghastly inevitability.

At 11 o'clock Kay felt that she could stand it no longer. She said. "Kirk's had time to get here a dozen times over. I'm going to 'phone the hotel."

She went to the telephone on the landing halfway between the first and second floor. She called the White Star Hotel and asked for Mr. Reynolds' room. A man's voice at the other end said, "Hello."

She said, "I'd like to speak to Mr. Reynolds."

"Who is it wants him?"

"This is Kay Forrest."

"Oh!" The tone changed. "I'm Dan Creedon. I work for him."

"Yes. I know."

"Kirk ain't here."

"Do you know where he is?"

"No'm. He said he'd be back before 10 o'clock at the latest. Shall I tell him to call you?"

"Yes. Please."

Again they settled into the awkward tedium of waiting. Conversation lagged. Even for persons like these, it was not easy to simulate interest in ordinary things.

Eleven-thirty. Midnight . . . with the ancient grandfather's clock tolling the hour with nerve-racking slowness. They were exhausted with the strain of it. At one o'clock Margaret said, "He evidently changed his mind."

"Don't you think he'd have 'phoned me?"

"Maybe not."

At one-thirty Mrs. Hamilton suggested that they all go to bed. "He's certainly not coming tonight, Kay. There's no sense waiting any longer."

"But suppose he does?"

"Then you can dress and go with him—if you still think you must."

Jim Owenby remained in the living-room with Margaret. Kay and Mrs. Hamilton walked upstairs. At the door of the girl's room, Mrs. Hamilton put her hands on Kay's shoulders. She looked ten years younger than her age, confident, competent—and even beautiful. She said, "You poor child."

Kay blinked back the tears. She said, "Oh! Mrs. Hamilton, I don't know what to do."

"And you still feel that you can't trust even me?"

"I know I can't. It would mean danger to everyone. To Dad . . . and to Barney."

Mrs. Hamilton smiled gently. "Barney's a pretty lucky boy . . . to have you caring for him that way."

Kay tried to shake off the horrible oppression. "Thanks, Mrs. Hamilton. And anyway, it seems as though I've got another night to think it over."

"Yes, dear. But you must try to sleep."

Not until four o'clock did she sleep, and then her slumber was mocked by evil dreams. At seven-thirty Flagrant, the overly buxom cook, rapped on the bedroom door and then entered bearing a breakfast tray: crisp waffles and butter and maple syrup, poached eggs and bacon, orange juice and a pot of steaming coffee.

"Goodness goshness Miss Agnes!" exclaimed Flagrant as she deposited the tray on the bed—"You sho' looks peaked this mawnin', Miss Kay."

"I—I didn't sleep very well."

"Shuh! When I was yo' age—sleepin' is the most thing I always done good."

Kay heard sounds from the parking place. Tourists arriving. She heard them calling to one another, heard them pass the house on the way to the lagoon where the little boats nuzzled against the bank. It seemed so normal, so gay, so bright . . . the sun was so clear and warm.

The tourists were early this morning. Lots of them. There was a thin little man and his angular wife. Mrs. Parkes was insisting loudly that the Gardens were divine, exquisite, superb.

Mr. and Mrs. Parkes went to the edge of the lagoon and seated themselves in a tiny craft which was propelled by a very black Negro who announced that his name was Joshua. He followed the regular sight-seeing route, and the stupendous beauty of the place eventually silenced even the loquacious Mrs. Parkes. Only occasionally did she feel called upon to voice her approval of Nature, only occasionally did she remember to chide her nervous husband for his inarticulateness

Crazed Captain Gives 20 Tourists Terrifying Ride

STOCKHOLM.—Twenty tourists returned with shattered nerves from a pleasure cruise between Oscarshamn and Oland island aboard the steamer Jarl. They said that Capt. E. Anderson suddenly went mad. He first ordered the ship full speed ahead, then full speed back, over and over again.

When the first mate tried to persuade him to leave the bridge the captain knocked him down. Passengers joined the crew in subduing the captain. Before being locked in his cabin, however, the skipper assaulted one passenger, nearly strangled a stewardess, and broke loose long enough to toot the SOS signal whistle.

The first mate took the ship to Oscarshamn, where the captain was detained. He pleaded that he had suffered a nervous breakdown and did not know what he was doing.

At right, Aunt Vil stirs up a cake. In her eighty-fifth year, she still does all her housework and "takes care of Riley."

Marry And Settle Down, Is The Advice Of Clanton Couple, Wed 70 Years

By George Nagel, in The Birmingham News-Age-Herald

All you fellows who haven't taken a bride heed the word of a man who has had one for right on 70 years.

Go out in the country, or "sticks, boys," he says, and get you a good woman who has her feet on the ground. Get one who knows how to cook, how to take care of a house and especially one who knows how to take care of you.

Riley Robinson was in his nineteenth year when he married Savilla. She was just a country lass. Never had much education to speak of, but she was a good God-fearing woman who knew how to do things and was willing to do them.

That was a long time ago. "Uncle Riley," as he is better known, remembers it like it was yesterday. How they went over to the preacher's house and said the vows anl how they went over to a friend's house and danced on hewed log floors most of the night.

That was the beginning for 70 years of married life. They have raised five boys and five girls and have seen 22 grandchildren, 32 great grandchildren and two great, great granchildren grow up around them.

Riley and Savilla Robinson have lived in Chilton County all their lives and their fathers lived there before them. Uncle Riley is 88, Aunt Vil 85.

Uncle Riley spent his youth in the country where Clanton stands today. His old home stands on the site of the Baptist Church. His boyhood memories are rich in ante-bellum and Civil War lore.

Although, he was a little too young to go, he says he remembers one experience he had during those days that will stick in his mind always.

It was in the Summertime. He and two of his friends were enjoying an afternoon swim in Walnut Creek, just playing around in the water enjoying the freedom of the days before bathing suits.

Suddenly they heard a pack of dogs coming. They knew what it meant. The soldiers were rounding up new recruits. He and his two friends crawled out of the water and broke for the nearest house. They didn't have time to even snatch up their clothes.

"I'll never forget it," he explained. Me and Ali Baker and the other fellow [illegible] and jumping fences trying to outrun the dogs. Well just about the time we got in sight of the house, I happened to remember that I didn't have any clothes on and although I knew the man who lived there I just couldn't bring myself to rush in on him stark naked, so I switched off and climb a tree. But Ali didn't give it a thought, he went flying right on in the house.

"To make a long story short, the dogs smelled me out and gathered around the tree keeping up a howling until the soldiers rode up. There I was sitting there out on a limb without a rag on and the soldiers trying to get me to come on down

"But they didn't get me. I finally convinced them that I was just a kid and they went on off about their business. I guess that that was the nearest that I came to getting in the war."

Uncle Riley also recalls the time he went to Montgomery with a fellow to get a bunch of slaves and the man made him walk back and let the slaves ride as it was raining and he didn't want to take a chance with his slaves getting sick.

For nearly 50 years, Uncle Riley has been superintendent of the Providence Baptist Church Sunday School Department.

"And he goes every Sunday, rain or shine," Aunt Vil added. "I guess that has been one of the things that has made us so happy. We have been brought up in the church and we been living in it all our lives."

Uncle Riley and Aunt Vil moved out about seven miles from Clanton in 1874 on a 200-acre farm. Through the years they have lived close to the land and today it still keeps them

Uncle Riley doesn't do much farming now. He spends most of his time hunting and fishing and Aunt Vil keeps house. They live in their old home by themselves, and their children live within calling distance.

They've never had to look to the children for support. Through a life rich in humble love and devotion they have laid by part of their returns so today, they carry on much in the same way as they did that first day they got married.

They are both in good health despite their age. Last Summer Uncle Riley fell out of a boat while he was fishing on Walnut Creek and swam to shore.

On the twenty-fourth of this month, all their children, grandchildren, great grandchildren and the two great, great grandchildren will come home for an anniversary dinner.

Aunt Vil expects to cook most of it herself and it wouldn't be suprising if some of the fare isn't the result of Uncle Riley's skill in the stream and fields.

Durbin and Julius Brown, representing the Farm Security Administration.

Senator Bankhead not only outlined steps taken to prevent extreme suffering in farm areas because of crop failures, but told his audience that the proposed emergency aid was in addition to the regular farm benefits which he said average about $29 a bale.

Senator Bankhead said that at the beginning of the recent special session complaints of crop failures were so general and the need for emergency farm aid so widespread that a number of congressmen and senators held a meeting and considered sponsoring an emergency appropriation.

A joint committee, headed by himself, was appointed, he said, to consider the emergency, and at the same time a resolution seeking a $50,000,000 appropriation was proposed. The committee did not offer the emergency appropriation bill, however, Senator Bankhead added, because administration leaders said such a proposal might cause other appropriation bills to be offered and obstruct consideration of the embargo repeal bill.

Senator Bankhead said his committee then called at the White House and found the president in sympathy with efforts to head off destitution in the poor crop areas. The President, he said, suggested there was an unexpended balance to the credit of the disaster loan fund, totaling $20,000,000. This money, Senator Bankhead said likely will be available soon—when released by the RFC—for lending purposes. In addition, Senator Bankhead said, about [illegible] was suggested as available for direct grants out of the FSA appropriation.

As a further step in the emergency relief plan, Senator Bankhead continued, it was suggested that ample food commodities Corporation principally for distribution to relief clients in congested areas, would become available to farm folk lacking in food supplies.

While he assured his audience that there would be no starvation or severe privation in the areas where last Summer's floods and drouths were so widespread, Senator Bankhead warned farmers that they "should not expect too much."

Senator Bankhead, in addition, outlined measures enacted in the past for the aid and protection of farming areas, declaring that on cotton alone the farmer receives under the domestic allotment and parity payments about $29 a bale from federal sources.

Chilton County, he added, will receive in all about $320,000 in farm benefits this year.

President Roosevelt was declared by Senator Bankhead "to be the most farm-minded president America has had in many years."

Miss Dunn and others spoke briefly at the meeting, outlining how their agencies are operating in cooperation with the federal government to aid the farmer.

CLANTON YOUNG LADY APPRECIATED FOR MUSICAL TALENT

A Clanton young lady, who has been in charge of the department of music at the Millport, Alabama, school for the past three years, is appreciated by the people of that city and school. The fact is evidenced by an item recently published in The Lamar County Democrat, commending the excellent work of this fine Clanton young lady:

"When Miss Lois Thompson, instructor of music in the Millport school stands up and talks you listen, when she stands up and sings you listen. And when she is through you go on listening and hearing the beautiful tones that come from both her speaking and singing voice. Miss Thompson's personality is like a pretty melody and 'This and That' this week salutes her for the splendid contribution she is making to the musical culture of Lamar County."

Miss Thompson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Thompson, is a graduate of Thorsby Institute, and graduated in music at Alabama College, Montevallo. She studied one season at Eastman Conservatory of Music, New York City

VOL. XVII CLANTON, ALABAMA, NOVEMBER 16, 1939 NUMBER 57

By BONNIE HAND

The Red Cross Drive Nears End— It seems pretty hard to part with a dollar and receive in return only a button and a card, but there remains with you long after the dollar has departed, a feeling that you received your money's worth and that the dollar was one well spent. Our hat is off to those who gave of their time in collecting the Red Cross memberships over the county. Some—many we will say—wanted to enroll but were forced to say no due to their financial status. Then there were some who saw no real need in subscribing their dollar to the cause. These people have their right to refuse, and we hope that their time was not monopolized or their patience taxed by the worker soliciting their membership. We believe that when the final count is made, Chilton County will not have let this mercy organization to which they owe so much, down in time of their need. But may we remind you that if you have not enrolled there is still time to do so.

The Mayor's Report— In his article in this issue of the News Mayor C. Fenn Jones takes time to enlighten the people of Clanton on every detail of the street paving project. A recent settlement with the contractor brings another progressive improvement to a close. The Mayor is delighted over the way the people cooperated in the undertaking, and may we take the authority to say the people of Clanton are well pleased over the way the Mayor and the Council handled the job.

We Say Again— Clanton needs more traffic lights. The recent series of accidents at intersections where there are no lights will substantiate that statement. Some months ago we pointed out the need for these lights, and again we say that the City officials would do well to consider investing in these needed precautionary items.

Says Marvin— Marvin Marcus of this city has boldly made the statement that automobile tags should retail for one dollar per car. There are many of us who would rush to support that statement, but Marvin is not just talking. His theory is that instead of the several dollars which prove a hardship for many auto owners to raise each year in one lump sum, the owner should be allowed to pay on the tax as he operates his car during the year. His idea is: Let the State levy an additional tax on gasoline that will serve the same purpose of the tag income. By this method he says the auto owners will not be burdened with raising the lump sum, and the tax on the abler through gas consumption would lighten the load on the little fellow who consumes less. By distributing the plates for one dollar, he says the actual cost of producing them wuold be taken care of—and everybody would be happy. That sounds like it might work, but if it did, why would the the tags be necessary? It appears to us, Marvin, that the tax would turn out to be another gas tax instead of a car tax, and with the Legislatures always looking for something to tax, they'd be sure to forget that the auto has been taken care of through the new method and wind up by again taxing the auto—and then where would we be?

The Associated Press newspapers under Washington date line carried the news Wednesday that former Governor Bibb Graves was being considered for appointment as Assistant Secretary of Agriculture to succeed Harry Brown, who is slated to go with the TVA.

STAPP ASKS FOR MORE RED CROSS MEMBERS

DRIVE TO CONTINUE THROUGH SATURDAY OF THIS WEEK; HOPE TO REACH GOAL

Expressing his sincere appreciation to those persons who have shown their loyalty by contributing to the annual call of the National Red Cross, chairman Cohn E. Stapp at the same time stated that he was not yet satisfied with Chilton County's contribution so far, with the drive scheduled to come to an end Friday of this week, November 17.

Mr. Stapp stated that the drive has been continued through Saturday of this week and that he sincerely hoped those who had not yet become members of this year's call would immediately make their contribution to the cause. Last Saturday booths were stationed over the city and young ladies wearing the Red Cross uniforms were receiving the memberships. This will be done again next Saturday, Mr. Stapp stated.

So far workers have been doing a good job of collecting the memberships, but Chilton's quota has been increased again this year, and of course everyone knows of the debt our county owes the Red Cross for its splendid aid during the 1932 tornadoes.

Montgomery Fire Officials Speak Here

At the regular practice drill meeting of the Clanton Volunteer Fire Department Wednesday night of last week, members of the local fire-fighting group were honored with distinguished fire-fighting officials of Montgomery, who offered suggestions and gave information as to how the local firemen could better carry on their important duty.

The visit of these men was sponsored by the State Department of Education. They are namely: Lt. T. A. Henderson, Drill Master of the Montgomery Fire Department; R, L. Lampley, Assistant Fire Chief of the Montgomery Department, and Ben E. Harris who is assistant state supervisor of the Trade and Industrial Education in charge of Public Service Education, University of Alabama. Also guest of the local firemen was Ben E. Evans, head of Vocational Guidance at the Chilton County High School.

Visits by these men to the various fire departments over the State is sponsored by the Education Department, and have as their aim to assist in better safeguarding property from the ravages of fire. These gentlemen all made interesting talks, which will prove helpful to the local fellows in their future fire-fighting activities.

Before the night meeting Mayor C. Fenn Jones was host to the visitors and carried them on a tour of the city and inspection of the wate rsupply and fire plugs. Favorable comments were made by the visitors on Clanton's system.

IMPORTANCE OF FAIR MEETING STRESSED BY FAIR OFFICIALS

Again this week stress is being placed on the importance of the meeting today (Thursday) of those citizens interested in the welfare and future of the Chilton County fairs. The meeting is to be held at 2:30 P.M. at the courthouse and the presence of those interested is urgently requested.

As stated last week, the Fair is being incorporated and already several have become members of the corporation. Plans for the meeting today call for the completion of this and the laying of plans for next year's presentation. If you want to see the Fair continue to be an annual affair you are invited to attend.

Dr. V. J. Gragg, who has served for the past three years as president of the Fair Association, is urgently re- the Fair Association requests that those interested be sure to atend and have in mind who they wish to vote for president for the coming year, as he believes someone else would be as well qualified to serve as he.

Anyway, this is an important affair, one which we should be interested in for the future of the Chilton County Fair.

CURB MARKET FOR CLANTON IS REALITY

LUTHER FOSHEE ERECTS CURB MARKET EXPECTED TO SERVE FARMERS, HOUSEWIVES

For the past several years attempts have been made by several interested groups to secure a Curb Market for Clanton and Chilton County. Not much headway has been made until now and something of a definite nature has appeared on the horizon within the past few days.

Luther E. Foshee, prominent Clanton business man has recently leased a lot below the Union-Banner office on Sixth Street and the necessary building is at present being erected by carpenters. Mr. Foshee plans to open this market for business next Saturday. This curb market for the retail trade, will be operated according to the established customs with probably some new added features. In charge of the establishment will be Mr. and Mrs. Jess Sorrell. The view in mind is to create a markte for Chilton-grown produce. The cooperation of the farmers and truck growers is solicited. All farmers are being urged to get in touch with Mr. Sorrell in regard to marketing what produce they have.

It is expected that this market will eventually grow into a large business, outstanding and appreciated by the whole of Chilton County. It will cater especially to every housewife and her needs. The freshest vegetables will be carried and at reasonable prices.

A formal opening will be announced in the News next week.

MAYOR JONES MAKES REPORT ON STREET PAVING PROJECT

Final Settlement With Contractor For Paving And Drainage Leaves City With First-Class Job, Made Possible Through Local And Govm't Cooperation

"To The People Of Clanton:

"We have made final settlement with the contractor for paving our streets, installing storm sewers and for building culverts where necessary, and a report to you of the cost of these improvements is now in order.

Application to the government for assistance in doing this improvement was hurriedly made in 1935 thru P.W.A. and before our application was approved, P.W.A. suspended business late in 1936 and did not resume operation until 1938. Then our request was approved as filed in 1935 without changes.

"Soon after work began, which was under the direction and supervision of an engineer who did not make the first survey of our streets, it was discovered that sufficient pipe and drainage was not provided for in the first survey to properly drain the streets and protect the paving. And as the work progressed on the several streets paved, the question of inadequate drainage confronted us, and a prompt decision was very necessary to be made. In each case, so long as I believed we could afford the cash, and get the approval of the government, I directed that additional pipe be placed in order to protect our investment in the paving. It was my opinion then, and is today, that to pave a street or a road and not properly drain it, would be like building a house

RELIEF IN SIGHT

The News received the following telegram Tuesday morning from Arthur Sartian, Secretary to Senator John Bankhead:

"Chilton County News, Clanton, Ala

"Senator Bankhead received a telegram this morning from his brother, Speaker W. B. Bankhead in Washington advising that Col. Harrington, Administrator of the Works Progress Administration has authorized the State Administrator to employ an additional eight thousand persons in flood areas in Alabama, to be effective immediately for a period of two months.

"Arthur Sartian,
Secretary to Senator Bankhead."

The telegram was sent from Jasper. W. G. Henderson, State WPA administartor, said this meant that about $40 a month for two months would become available to heads of 8,000 farm families in central and south Alabama, or an aggregate sum of about $640,000.

It was said that 8,000 two-months jobs would be in addition to Alabama's present WPA quota of 41,000.

Mr. Henderson said it was planned to employ the farmers on highway construction, some of State Highways, but a majority on county roads.

Authorization of the special work was made, at Washington, by Col. F. C. Harrington, national WPA administrator, according to the telegram dispatched Tuesday by Speaker Bankhead to his brother, Senator John H. Bankhead, at Jasper, Alabama.

Probate Judge J. Lee Smith stated Wednesday of this week that he had received numerous letters and telegrams from State officials regarding the recent meeting at the Courthouse here. A telegram received by the Judge from Congressman Pete Jarman informed him of the additional allotment of jobs to the stricken farmers of Alabama. Other letters and telegrams he received were from Senator Bankhead, Senator Hill, W. E. Morgan, FSA official, and other outstanding persons of the State.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Jones of Montgomery spent Sunday in Clanton with his mother, Mrs. Willie Phillip Jones.

Temporary Licenses Remain In Effect

A communication from the Department [illegible] Public Safety received [illegible] Probate [illegible] the following to say regarding the new 1940 drivers licenses:

"In planning the operations of this department, it was anticipated that we would receive around 400,000 applications for drivers licenses during the so-called rush season and our entire equipment and personnel was set up on that basis. However, to date we have already received around 300,000 applications which would indicate that before the November 14th dead-line is past the number will far exceed our original expectations.

"In any event we may advise all parties making inquiry of you regarding their licenses that their Temporary Receipt and Driver's Permit [illegible] until they receive their permanent license from this office even [illegible] five day limit has expired. [illegible] information will of course be transmitted to all law enforcement agencies [illegible] State and adjoining States."

Further Borrowing Unnecessary

Montgomery—Alabama's six-cent gasoline tax yielded $1,306,478 in October—the largest for any month since its inauguration.

A. B. Tucker, revenue department gasoline chief, said the 1939 collections topped those of October, 1938, by $123,000.

Each of the state's 67 counties, which divide one-half the total collection, will receive approximately $9,500, Tucker said.

With more than a million dollars a month in cash going into the State and County treasuries from the gasoline tax collections there is certainly no need for further borrowing in connection with road construction by State or County, and to do so with this steady stream of ready cash flowing in daily, cannot by any stretch of the imagination be considered as economy or good judgement and most assuredly it would not be in the interest of the taxpayer.

Only a small portion of the gasoline tax is required for payments in connection with the amortization of the remainder of the $25,000,000 road bond issue. To expend efficiently, honestly and intelligently a million dollars a month, plus Government and County cooperation through "matching" projects—Alabama should soon have a highway system second to none in the South.

It is worse than foolish to pay interest on loans for road construction when more than a million dollars in cash is flowing in each month for that purpose alone.

"The war cost the United States more than $1,000,000 an hour for the 25 months from April, 1917, until May, 1919.

"Uncle Sam's total war bill excluding loans to the Allies was $22,000,000,000, about as much as the entire cost of running the United States government from 1791 until 1914. Only about 13 per cent of the war bill represented pay to men and officers."

U. S. Is Building "Slide-Rule Army

Morgan M. Beatty, AP Washington correspondent, tells about Uncle Sam's "Slide-Rule Army" thus:

"While war roars in Europe, the Congress seethes with the neutrality United States is calmly building the world's only silde-rule army.

"Compressed into its present peacetime minimum, it boasts fewer than 200,000 highly trained officers and men—a smaller defensive force than guards such secondary powers as Argentina, Portugal, Switzerland or Sweden.

"Extended under the energy of the PMP, it could be transformed, within six months, into a force of 1,000,000 men. Nothing to compare with the gigantic armies of Europe, but enough, in the eyes of the general staff, for the secondary defense of the nation, assuming that the navy would intercept an enemy far from our shores.

"If and when the enemy should break through, it is calculated we could have any number of men equipped to meet the situation, depending on the desires of the American people.

"That compares rather modestly with the army of 4,000,000 we produced in the World War, but it fits more smoothly into our productive capacity.

"That's the general base for M-day in America, a day nobody wants but a day every nation must, in troubled times, be prepared to face.

"What is the PMP?

"It is the Protective Mobilization Plan, evolved by the Army General Staff in 1937 under War Secretary Harry Woodring, and now a full series on blueprints for emergency action.

"Under the limited emergency recently proclaimed by President Roosevelt, PMP is, in effect, already being oiled for action. The regular army strength is being boosted slowly beyond the 200,000-mark. When 'a sufficient emergency exists,' the president may increase the regular army to 280,000. By the end of next June the strength is expected to be 210,000, and an addition of 17,000 men is provided for after that.

"If further emergency should arise, the next step would be creation of the IPF—the Initial Protective Force. With the regular army as a nucleus, the IPF would total, almost at once, more than 400,000 men, by the addition of the partially trained national guard.

"From there on, M-Day plans are strictly slide-rule; it's that way because nobody can foresee what kind of emergency would arise.

"If we should face, say, a small-scale invasion of Brazil, there would be no need of an M-Day; we have at hand right now the force to meet such a threat.

"But if an enemy were about to pounce upon us along the Canadian border, after having subdued the small force in Canada, millions of men would be required, double-quick.

"That's why the army general staff has developed the slide-rule plans.

"Here's how the idea would work in case of an "average" emergency:

" 'First, the IPF would be created. Then the War Resources Board would be transformed into the War Resources Administration, headed by an industrial czar, to get equipment and munitions together for a hugh army. Present supplies would furnish the IPF.

"Average M-Day visualizes an army of 1,000,000 men within six months. Various reserves would be called up, such as the 20,000 enlisted men and the reserve officers and ROTC men. Perhaps part of the CCC.

"Next comes the SSP—the Selecti Service Plan, if needed.

"Let Louis Johnson, assistant seci tary of war, tell you how that work

" 'The first step would be registr tion of all male citizens between t ages of 21 and 30. This registrati would take place on a single d through the election machinery of t states at the usual polling places.

" 'Each registrant would be furnish with a numbered card, and names a numbers would be published in each l cal community. After that, a nation drawing would decide who should first and who last.

" 'It would then be the task of 6,0 local boards in that many communiti to decide whether their neighbor shou serve his country as a soldier or sail or whether he would be more valuab as a munitions worker or a farme After physical examination, if h neighbors decide that a fellow citiz should go, he would join the next quo going from his community to do h full share in the defense of his cou try." '

Suffering Women Welcome "Build-Up"

A simple method is saving many women much pain and discomfort! It is based on the knowledge that women's headaches, nervousness, and cramp-like pain often are symptoms of functional dysmenorrhea due to a weak, run-down, undernourished condition. That so many women find relief from these painful symptoms through the CARDUI "build-up" is easy to explain. By improving the appetite, assisting digestion and assimilation, CARDUI helps to build physical resistance against periodic pain. Thousands of women also report that CARDUI, taken just before and during "the time," helps to ease periodic pain.

And then suddenly the morning air was split by a shriek from the throat of Joshua. He screamed, "Oh! my Gawd!"

Mr. Parkes jumped and almost overturned the bateau. Mrs. Parkes, who was made of sterner stuff, swung on Joshua. The boatman's face was ashen. His craft had ceased to move and he was sitting in rigid horror, mouth agape, eyes popping. One palsied finger was pointing downward, into the shallow water.

"Oooooh Gawd . . . Oooooh Gawd . . ."

The passengers followed the direction of his eyes. They saw something which made them ill.

They saw, just below the ebony surface of the water, the body of a man. It was Kirk Reynolds.

It wasn't pretty, that scene at the edge of the lagoon after they had dragged Kirk Reynolds' body from the black, shallow water and stretched it out on the grass near the wisteria-covered log-cabin where the Negro boatmen lounged during their hours of unemployment.

The white boatmen stood and stared. Tourists crowded around in fascinated horror. They said that it was terrible and that they weren't going through the Gardens any more that day. But they didn't return to Beverly, either. Not immediately. They were too impressed by this sight of stark tragedy against a setting so unbelievably beautiful, as though a generous nature had provided the flowers for Kirk Reynolds' passing.

And so he lay alone on the grass, and Barney looked down at him and spoke to the tourists, and tried to comfort Mrs. Parkes, who had helped discover the body and was indulging in violent hysterics; and Mr. Parkes, who was silent and frightened and bewildered. Barney's face was pallid, and he tried to keep himself under control, but it wasn't easy. He insisted on escorting Mrs. Parkes and her husband to the house, where he bestowed them in the living-room. Mrs. Hamilton produced smelling-salts and aromatic spirits of ammonia and then joined the group on the veranda, Barney and Kay and Margaret. She said, "I just telephoned Sheriff Griffin. He's coming right out."

"Did you tell him what happened?"

"No. I said there had been an accident . . . He's coming alone."

Kay Forrest had been standing rigidly, staring at the group which hovered over the body of Kirk Reynolds. She was trying to think. Then words came through dry lips.

"How could he have drowned in that shallow water?"

Margaret glanced swiftly at her brother and hastened to answer. She said, "He didn't drown. He had been stabbed."

Back of the house a car whirled into the parking place and Jim Owenby got out. He moved toward the lagoon and met Zero, the houseman. Zero's face was livid. He said, "Golla! Mistuh, Jim, I sho' is glad to see you."

Jim frowned. "What's wrong?"

"Plenty wrong, Mistuh Jim. They jist found Mistuh Kirk Reynolds lyin' daid in the lagoon."

"Drowned?"

"Drowned an' stobbed. Stobbed right thoo the neck."

"Where's Miss Margaret?"

"Standin' on the front po'ch, suh. Jist standin' there lookin' skeered."

Jim circled the house and approached the group on the veranda. Margaret saw him coming and moved forward to meet him. She put her hand on his arm. "What are you doing here, Jim?"

"I was worried."

Fear was in her eyes. Fear and doubt. She spoke in a whisper. "Kirk Reynolds is dead."

"I know."

"How do you know?"

"Just met Zero. He told me."

"You didn't . . . ?" She had started to ask, "You didn't know before?" but she bit the words back. She said, "What were you worried about?"

"Kay. I wondered what happened after I left last night."

"What made you think anything happened?"

He answered carefully. "I telephoned the hotel this morning and asked for Kirk. Got that fellow Creedon on the 'phone. He said Kirk hadn't showed up."

"Why didn't you 'phone here?"

"I thought I'd better come."

She looked up into his eyes. They were black and grim. His lips were grim, too. Margaret didn't like his expression. It frightened her—frightened her more than the mere fact of Kirk's death. There were a hundred questions she wanted to ask, a hundred doubts she desired to voice.

"Oh! my Gawd!"

Jim Owenby nodded to the others and walked down to the lagoon. They made way for him and he looked down upon the body of the man who had murdered his best friend. It wasn't a pleasant sight, but Jim's face gave no hint of his inner feelings. He did not touch the body, simply looked. He saw the narrow, deep gash in the throat. He saw a cut under the right eye. A cut and a bruise, as though it had been caused by the impact of a fist. Unimportant, that bruise. The knife wound in the throat had caused Kirk's death.

Jim Owenby turned away abruptly. He rejoined the others, and with them greeted Sheriff Griffin. The sheriff was short and broad and stocky. He had keen gray eyes and spoke with a pronounced drawl. He talked with them for a minute and then went to view the body.

"Plumb daid," he announced calmly. "Somebody hit him an' then stabbed him with a knife. Anybody found the knife yet?"

They said No, they hadn't heard of anybody's finding the knife. Griffin's bright eyes scrutinized their faces.

"How come him to be heah last night?"

Kay said, "He came for me."

"Fo' you? What you mean by that, Miss Kay?"

"He telephoned me about half-past eight. Said I had to go to town with him."

He paused long enough to rub his hands on a large, red handkerchief. He asked, "What happened when Reynolds got here last night?"

Mrs. Hamilton answered. "We never saw him."

"None of you?"

"No."

Sheriff Griffin was not stupid. He asked, "Was all of you in the house all the time?"

Barney spoke, "I was in the Gardens for an hour or so."

"Doin' what, Son?"

"Just walking around."

"Why?"

Barney's face was white. "I knew he was coming out here and I didn't want to meet him."

"Any special reason?"

"Yes. But I think you know the answer."

"Mmm-hmm! I reckon I do." The sheriff paused briefly. "Didn't happen to run across him, did you?"

"No."

"I see . . . Anybody else leave the house?"

"I did," said Jim Owenby. "Twice. Once to make a trip through the Gardens and the second time to go home."

"What times was them trips, Jim?"

"The first about nine-thirty. I didn't go home until after one-thirty."

"Didn't see Reynolds nowhere, did you?"

"No."

The sheriff blinked. "Anybody else drop in durin' the evenin'? Friends or anybody?"

They looked at Kay. Her face was chalky, but she answered firmly. "Dad was here. With Andy."

"So? 'Bout what time, Miss Kay?"

"Around half-past nine. Maybe ten o'clock. I'm not sure."

"Did you tell them about Kirk telephonin'?"

"No."

"Why not?"

"Because . . . well, because . . ."

"Kind of 'fraid, eh?"

"Well, not exactly . . ."

"Sho 'you was. And I don't blame you. Now le's see, Kirk could have got heah any time after nine, couldn't he?"

"I suppose so."

"And there was four men here who wasn't very fond of him. And this mawnin' he''s daid." Sheriff Griffin gestured. "Me—I still say it's good riddance."

Barney spoke tensely. "What are you going to do about it, Sheriff?"

"Me? Shuh! Son—I ain't fixin' to do nothin'. Not now, anyway." He chuckled. "I don't hardly reckon you-all are fixin' to run off."

He moved toward the lagoon. Kay touched Barney's hand.

"I want to talk to you," she said. "Alone."

"Right."

They moved off together. Her deep hazel eyes were wide with fear. She said, "Tell me the truth, Barney—did you meet Kirk in the Gardens last night?"

His gaze was level. He said, "No."

"If you had met him . . . if there had been trouble . . . wouldn't you be saying just what you're saying now?"

"I don't know."

"But you might lie to me, mightn't you?"

"It's possible."

Her voice was choky. She said, "Oh, Barney—why don't you tell me the truth?"

"I am telling the truth."

"But if you didn't kill him . . . who did?"

"I don't know."

"It could have been Jim. Or Dad. Or Andy."

He said, "I'm getting pretty cold-blooded, honey. I'd say something if you'd promise not to think it was rotten."

She sighed. "I don't believe words matter. What is it?"

"If I said I was sorry about this thing, you'd know I was lying. So why pretend? Somehow, I can only seem to think of one thing."

"What . . . ?"

"I've been thinking—and I can't help it . . . I've been thinking, 'Now Kay is free.' "

Lion Hunter Is Given Sentence For Auto Death

Scion of Ancient British Family Is Guilty of Killing Cyclist.

LONDON.—As a penalty for killing a young cyclist, a member of one of England's richest families has been sentenced to three years' penal servitude and disqualification from driving for 20 years.

He was told by Mr. Justice Charles, who presided: "You have been found guilty, and very properly, of as bad a case of manslaughter by driving a car in a criminally negligent manner as I can well imagine. You drove like a lunatic.

"It is only by the intervention of Providence that you have not more deaths at your door. Your sentence must necessarily, not only from a punitive point of view, but as a deterrent to others, be severe."

The judge's words were listened to without a sign by the prisoner at the bar.

Capt. Raymond Vincent de Trafford, 39 years old, of Birmingham, England, salesman, lion hunter, point to point rider, former guards officer, divorced husband of Chicago's Alice Silverthorne, son of the late sportsman, Sir Humphrey de Trafford, brother of the present baronet of that name, a line descended from William the Conqueror.

Manslaughter Is Charged.

De Trafford was accused of the manslaughter at Cheltenham of Victor Edwin Drinkwater-Lunn, 19 years old, of Cheltenham.

Prosecutor Cartwright Sharp stated that the case related to a section of about seven miles of the Evesham road from Beckford to Cheltenham race course.

De Trafford had a glass of beer at the Beckford hotel, but showed no signs of intoxication.

At the Beckford hotel a gardener, William John Hopkins, 63 years old, wanted to get to Cheltenham, and De Trafford gave him a lift.

Hopkins asked him not to drive so fast, but De Trafford said: "Are you nervous?" laughed, and drove on even faster and on the wrong side.

After they had gone three miles De Trafford bumped into the back of a truck, but drove on.

Cautioned by Passenger.

He drove on, and came to where a cyclist was approaching.

He was still on the wrong side of the road, and Hopkins shouted to him to get on one side and avoid the cyclist.

There was a collision and the cyclist shot over the hedge and was killed.

When the police arrived De Trafford kept on repeating that it was the cyclist's fault because he had not got a rear light.

This, Prosecutor Sharp commented, was rather peculiar, as the cyclist was approaching him.

De Trafford, in evidence, stated he had had a number of riding accidents, and some years ago he was shot in the stomach and nearly died. He had always been of a nervous temperament and was worse after the shooting accident.

The reason he was on his wrong side when he struck the cyclist was that he was overtaking a car and the cyclist was hidden by an oncoming car. He did not see the cyclist.

The first he knew of the accident was his windscreen breaking and Hopkins saying: "You have killed a man."

The jury was absent 13 minutes before finding De Trafford guilty of manslaughter.

Purse Finder Returns $5 But Keeps Remaining $15

KENT, OHIO.—Virtue may be its own reward, but there's one person here who needed something a little more substantial—and in advance.

Mrs. Robert Blake, of California, visiting here, lost a billfold containing $20, valuable papers and California and Ohio driving licenses. She received a letter from the finder after she had advertised. It contained $5, her papers, driving licenses and a note.

"I have been out of work for some time and spent part of the money, but I am expecting some money soon, and when I get it I will return the rest."

Doctors Are Amazed at Recovery of 'Stone Girl'

TACOMA, WASH.—Nature, aided by medical science, is curing Nona Noyes, the "stone girl" who attracted national attention a few years ago.

Her body started to turn to stone four years ago, her skin became hard and leathery and was stretched so tightly that she could barely move.

Now she moves freely about her parents' farm in the shadow of majestic Mt. Rainier. She even dreams of romance and marriage.

She has been seen by hundreds of doctors and made a trip to the Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minn.

Today she is under the care of Dr. H. G. Willard of Tacoma, but he refuses to take credit for her great improvement to the point where only a small patch of skin on her back is affected instead of her entire back, chest, arms and thighs as was the case four years ago.

Garden Chats

By Edward Bialas

Well, folks, the fair season is over, so it's time to start the garden chats of more interest than in the past. Mr. Jack Frost got the largest portion of annual flowers. Of course there are a few that are still blooming that were covered during the night when our visitor came. Have you planted your tulips? Do not fail to get Holland bulbs only. To get the best results also hyacinths, daffodils and narcissus, also a few crocus. Have you planted your Italian rye grass for your front lawn? Have you prepared your rose bed so that you can add a few of the newer varieties? What about the climbers that you were planning to add to your collection?

Are you planning to add a few fruit trees this spring or fall? Do not forget to add a few grape vines. Have you room to add a shade tree or two? Get the picture in your mind of what you want to do so that when you start, there will not be any delay.

Will the lucky winners of the Garden Quiz please write to the doners of the prizes, who are Mrs. Annie Thacker, Route 5 Box 12, Clanton, and the writer, whose address is 2122 Elder Ave., Birmingham, at once. We want the winners to receive their gifts, but at least write us now and do not wait until the last minute.

U. S. MARINE CORPS INCREASING UNDER PRES. AUTHORIZATION

According to an announcement received from the Officer in Charge Marine Corps Recruiting Station, Birmingham, Ala., the U. S. Marine Corps has already increased its strength [illegible] men. The President authorized an increase of 6,000 men, to be enlisted over a period of time. In order to enlist that many men within the time set, the Recruiting Service was expanded, three new recruiting offices being established in Alabama alone.

The Marine Corps is unique among military services in that it [illegible] to all marines to complete their education through the Marine Corps Institute. Many of the men now being enlisted give this as the reason for their enlistment, since for financial or other reasons they have been deprived of a high school education.

Promotion is more rapid [illegible] Marine Corps advantages to be [illegible] from technical training, etc., can be learned by applying at or writing to the Recruiting Officer, Marine Corps Recruiting Station, Room 220, Clark Building, 20th Street and 4th Avenue, North, Birmingham, Alabama

Facts About Chilton School Attendance

We are indebted to Miss [illegible] McKee, attendance supervisor of Chilton County Schools, for the following information about attendance of our schools this year.

A total of 5,489 white and [illegible] negro children were enrolled in the public schools of the county at the [illegible] of last month. 2,682 pupils were absent 6,407 days for the following reasons:

Illness, 845 pupils, [illegible] days
Work, 1,320 pupils, [illegible] days
Miscellaneous, [illegible] pupils, 1,180 days

It should be the concern of all interested citizens when children do not go to school regular. Poor attendance on the part of a few children in a class room affects the entire group. It takes extra time on the part of the teacher to help these children to learn the things that they missed while absent.

It is an added expense to the school system when these children fail to be promoted and find it necessary to repeat the grade. Most of the funds to carry on the schools are based on the number of days which the children attend school. The cost per pupil per day averages around twenty-four cents. One can easily estimate the loss when 2,682 pupils are absent 6,407 days during one month. We hope that next month that these figures will be smaller.

"THE VAGABOND SWEDE" AND COMPANION VISIT CLANTON

One day last week the News received a visit from a tall, tanned middle aged man of Swedish descent and his campanion, Mary, a black ringtail monkey.

Nels Holmes is his name. He is 39 years of age and his home is in Chicago. He is known as the Vagabond Swede, "Follower o' the Fruit and Sun." He and his companion are travelling on a motor-driven scooter, and have travelled far and near on this conveyance. They are visiting all U.S. capitals and Mexico. To date they have reached 31 capitals, Mexico City, New York World's Fair. Their travels in miles total 25,000 in two years and three months.

This carefree lover of nature has gone from Chicago to New Orleans by canoe, and from coast to coast by bicycle. His scooter is a Cushman auto glide, one cylinder, with a 1½ horsepower motor and a speed of 30 miles per hour.

Nels was formerly a commercial artist, giving it up for a more natural outdoor life. He is champion cherry picker of Michigan and Wisconsin.

An Old Home Passes

(From The Tuscaloosa News)

Over in Chilton County a few days ago, an institution was closed by order of the Alabama Welfare Department. This institution had existed for almost 40 years in a quiet and peaceful site on the outskirts of Mountain Creek. We speak of the Alabama Confederate Soldiers Home.

As The Chilton County News points out, the Home had not a single veteran there at the time of its closing, and there were only five widows of those soldiers who had fought with the South. The Home was closed only after it was no longer needed. An annual appropriation of $5,000 supported the institution, and this was a large amount for the five women. Thus, they have been placed in private homes and hospitals, and there will get care equally as good, and perhaps better, at less expense.

The Home was established back in 1902 through the efforts of Capt. Jefferson M. Falkner of Montgomery. For years, the state had been granting pensions to needy Confederate soldiers and their widows, but Captain Falkner believed that something more should be done, and he determined that a home should be erected as an asylum and refuge for the veterans who might need the comforts of such an institution.

He called to his assistance a number of sympathetic friends in Montgomery, and Camp Jeff Falkner, No. 1382, United Confederate Veterans, was organized and a charter secured. The camp had the same objects and purposes as other Confederate organizations, but its chief duty was the building of the Home proposed by Captain Falkner, whose name had been given it.

A campaign was at once instituted for the raising of funds, and it met with a generous response. It was decided to place the home at Mountain Creek, a high and healthy location between Birmingham and Montgomery on the Louisville and Nashville Railroad. For the site of the home, Captain Falkner deeded 40 acres to the camp. Actual work was begun on April 7, 1902. A number of cottages were erected and several old soldiers were soon admitted.

At the next session of the Legislature, in 1903, the state took over the institution, and provided a board control. A $25,000 appropriation was made to complete the buildings. At the time it had 60 inmates. An initial appropriation of $125 a year per inmate was made, but a limit of $12,500 a year was fixed as the gross that could be employed. The total number of inmates could not at any time exceed one hundred. Wives of the indigent veterans were admitted when accompanied by their husbands.

The Home continued to do a great work for years, but within the last decade, its numbers had steadily declined until finally there were no veterans at all left, and only those five widows. There are less than one hundred veterans now alive in the entire state, and they all receive $50 a month from the state. Time has made the old home no longer necessary. There are few things which time does not change.

American Cotton Supply Enough For Two Years

If Chilton County farmers and all other cotton growers in the United States agreed not to grow a single stalk of cotton next year, the present supply would more than take care of normal needs for American cotton during the lay-off, and still leave some carry-over.

That is the way J. W. Fant, county agent, pictures the present record supply of American cotton. With an estimated 11.9 million bales from the 1939 crop added to the 14.1 million bales carried over from previous crops, the supply for this season was set at 26 million bales. This compares with a world supply of all growths of 50 million bales.

"The national farm program set up by the Agricultural Adjustment Act makes it possible for farmers to protect their incomes without stopping production of cotton for a whole year," Mr. Fant points out. "Through the use of acreage allotments and marketing quotas, cotton farmers are following an orderly course in working toward a solution of their problems.

"If cotton growers approve marketing quotas again for the 1940 crop, they can continue to make advances in improvng incomes of benefit to cotton farm families. We can carry out more practices within the AAA program to improve and conserve our soil and to grow more food and feed for home use on farms where needed."

Marketing quotas will be in effect for 1940 only if approved by at least two-thirds of the cotton producers voting in the referendum on December 9. Quotas were approved for the 1938 and 1939 crops by more than 84 per cent of the growers participating in the two referendums.

Methodist Church

Dear Church Member:

The Church is a Divine Institution, possessing physical, moral and spiritual values.

Physically, it enhances the value of your property, making possible higher standards of living than can be found in heathen countries.

Morally it has a restraining influence that gives us a certain amount of security which would be impossible without it. Mr. Babson, the great statistician ,said that he would support the Church for its police protection if not no other reason.

Spiritually, it has a message for all the race. It's a message of redemption through Christ ,who said, "and I if I be lifted up from the earth will draw all men unto Me." The spiritual message is the message the world needs today.

If the world gets this spiritual message you and I will have to give it. Can you and I let humanity, for whom Jesus gave His life, grope in darkness through life and in the end slip into eternity without a knowledge of God? Our Church has said no, we will do what we can to give the Gospel to the whole world. Our founder said, "The world is my Parish." So for us to be the true sons of Wesley we must be world citizens.

Realizing the church must have financial support, as well as moral and spiritual, the board of stewards has adopted a budget for the coming year, which will take care of the running expenses of the church. A copy of this budget is enclosed with this letter. Please read it carefully, and prayerfully, so you can intelligently make your pledge. Your pledge must be larger for the coming year, because there are several items in it that were not included in last year's budget.

Our canvass for this budget will begin Sunday, November 19, and we hope to have it completed by the following Sunday Please be ready to make your pledge when the canvassing team calls on you.

MISS FRANCES SEXTON TO ASSIST IN PLAY PRODUCTION

Montevallo, Ala.—Miss Frances Sexton of Maplesville is a member of the costuming committee now making arrangements for the production of "Romances By Emma," the senior class play to be produced at Alabama College Nov. 24. "Romances By Emma" is based on the famous novel, "Emma," by Jane Austen. Setting for the production is London of the Regency period.

The play was first produced in 1937 at the Pasadena Playhouse, having been adapted by DeWitt Bodeen. Dramatizing "Emma" presents many problems of designing, costuming, and music not usually encountered in College productions, and it is in the solution of these difficulties that Miss Sexton will lend her talents.

Miss Margaret Flory, a newcomer to the speech faculty this year, is directing the senior play.

Decides to Sail, Goes 30,000 Miles

Woman's Three-Year Voyage New Saga of Sea.

NEW YORK.—A barefoot woman skipper and a crew of six men came to port recently in a 90-foot ketch and completed a new saga of sailing, a story of a woman who never sailed before, but decided she liked it. So she sailed 30,000 miles and stayed out three years.

"I thought it would be nice to go for a trip," said Mrs. Marion Rice Hart, captain and owner of the ketch and sister of Mrs. P. Hal Sims, the bridge expert. "It just happened. We got around to the East Indies and I thought, 'We may as well go on.'"

The peacock blue hull of the steel ketch Vanora, built in 1902 on the lines of a fishing boat, and bought by Mrs. Hart from a British naval officer, was bleached to an uneven aqua shade by the sun and water.

Her square sail and topsail, jib and mizzen were weather marked from 1,040 days at sea. She'd been in 101 ports since Mrs. Hart—bored with her life as a sculptor and with her house, garden, and servants at Avignon, France—bought the ketch and started out from Portsmouth, England, on an August day in 1936.

When they reached a new port the captain and crew would inquire, "What new wars have there been?" They got a radio at one port, but it never worked; so in their leisure they trailed fishing lines or played rhummy. Once they caught a shark and dined on shark meat. They seldom used the vessel's auxiliary motor.

Except for a cruise around the Greek islands once before as a passenger on a 70 foot vessel, when the sails weren't used, Mrs. Hart was a neophyte sailor.

On completion of the three year cruise the members of her crew expressed admiration for her nautical ability.

The Youth in Business

By C. E. Johnston

Dean, Schools of Business International Correspondence Schools

THE production of office equipment is one of the leading industries of the United States. In 1937, the value of the products sold by 108 manufacturers of office equipment was approximately a quarter billion dollars. In these 108 companies there were 45,070 workers in the manufacturing divisions alone. Add to this number, office employes, servicemen, and salesmen, and we find over 160,000 men and women today employed in the manufacture and distribution of office equipment.

American office equipment is known throughout the world. The value of shipments abroad is from one-fourth to one-third of domestic sales. Many of the companies producing office machines have distribution facilities in almost all the nations of the world and manufacturing or assembling plants in a number of foreign countries.

There are opportunities for the youth of today in the office equipment industry. Sales representatives in this industry are more than salesmen. They sell methods, rather than office machines. They serve other businesses by making careful studies of their needs for office equipment, by designing records and developing office systems, and by helping them to obtain the maximum benefits from equipment purchased. Some of the leading companies in the industry provide elaborate training plans for selected young men and women who are expected to become sales representatives and servicemen in the field.

Mine Lost for Years Believed Found in Idaho

Partners Fight, Survivor Is Unable to Locate the Diggings Later.

MOSCOW, IDAHO.—A legendary hole of fortune—the lost Wheelbarrow mine—is believed to have been discovered at last on a brush-covered slope of Gold hill in the Panhandle of Idaho.

A story relayed from person to person the last several decades told of a mine that yielded $20,000 in gold before the two partners who operated it quarreled, and one left the other for dead to return years later only to find he was unable to find the diggings.

Finally, the remaining partner died—his search still futile. Behind he left the story of the mine he said could be identified through the wheelbarrow and pots and pans it contained. As time went on and the tale circulated, it became known as the Wheelbarrow mine.

In June, workers of the Fitsum Mining company, north of Potlatch, found the weed-grown entrance of an abandoned mine. Curious, they dug out the front. Thirty feet into the mine was the remains of an old wheelbarrow, its whisky barrel staves crumbling to the touch.

Human Bone Found.

But perhaps more important was the discovery of what officials of the company said was a bone—part of a human backbone. Also, lying on the wheelbarrow were several pieces of gold-bearing quartz.

The company plans to build a road into the mine and re-timber it to determine whether it is the lost digging from which $20,000 in ore was taken more than a half century ago.

A pioneer of the Palouse country, W. H. McGahan of Troy, knows the legend of the lost mine well. In 1903 McGahan met an old-time miner named Casper, who assertedly was the surviving partner. As McGahan tells it, this is the story Casper related to him:

"My partner and I packed into the district from Walla Walla, Wash., the closest town in the early days.

"We worked over the different mountains around Moscow and opened up a rich vein of gold-bearing ore. We crushed the rock by hand and panned the gold. As Indians still roamed the district, we lived in the mine.

"After taking out $20,000 in small nuggets and dust, we prepared to return to civilization.

"Getting ready to leave, we quarreled. I struck my partner with a pick, took the gold and left, believing I had killed him. I went down to California, lost most of my money and then came back to Portland. There, I heard that my partner had not died.

"Twenty years had passed, but I thought I could find the mine again. However, the shrubbery and trees had grown up and I was completely lost. I remembered the mine was on the south slope of a mountain and inside of it was a wheelbarrow and pots and pans."

McGahan said Casper spent a year looking for the mine before he died. The fact Casper returned to this territory voluntarily and was convinced the wheelbarrow and cooking utensils would be found in the mine made McGahan believe Casper's partner died in the tunnel.

'Don'ts' Ruled Lives of Students Back in 1839

SHREVEPORT, LA.—The rules of the last century's colleges were dominated by "don'ts." Centenary college records of 1839 contain the following commands:

"No student shall be permitted to carry a dirk, sword, cane or any deadly weapon whatsoever.

"The hours of study shall be from sun rising until breakfast, from eight o'clock to Meridian, from two o'clock to five o'clock in the afternoon, and from twilight until bedtime in the evening. During the hours of study, every student shall keep his room, unless called from it to recite, or by some urgent necessity of which later he shall always be ready to give an account to any officer of the college who may observe his absence.

"No student shall absent himself from his room after twilight."

Bees' Heralded Virtues Are Dampened by Beer

KILMORE, AUSTRALIA. — The traditional virtues of the bee got a bad jolt here when a number of them got drunk on beer. A party of young men camping nearby found their camp becoming infested with drowsy bees. Investigation developed that the bees, not finding water and vegetation sufficiently plentiful, had quenched their thirst among the beer bottles stacked about the camp. Becoming intoxicated, they were unable to return to their hives.

Sparrow Tries Tobacco

VENTNOR, N. J.—A sparrow that made its nest in the eaves of Frank Tabasso's house in Ventnor, N. J., picked up a lighted cigarette on the sidewalk and carried it home. The nest caught fire and so did the house. The damage was slight.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

The philosophy of Will Rogers still lives in the minds and hearts of the people of the world. In his philosophy we have a real solution to the traffic problems when he said: "Take every car off the streets and highways that have not been paid for." Should this be done we would have parking space on our streets and plenty of safe driving room on our highways. It has been said: "Jumping at a conclusion is not half as good exercise as digging for facts." Will Rogers dug for facts and he was brave enough to speak them. We all know that many an unpaid-for car occupies parking space and many an unpaid-for car cripples a pedestrian.

I sat with a group of men and they discussed with ease the up-to-date thinking in Art, Literature and Science. I sat with another group and they discussed the latest events in social life. The recent proceedings in the political world and the international attitudes of the day were discussed. I sat with still another group who discussed people, their temperaments, peculiarities and faults. I knew that there was a wide difference between these groups but I was not quite able to understand until I saw this statement: "Great minds discuss ideas, average minds discuss events, while small minds discuss people." It does not require much brilliance to talk about people and criticize them. Average intelligence enables a man to speak fluently about the headlines in the dailies. It takes genuine brain power to think the thoughts of real thinking men after them.

At one time I was a country school teacher. One day a lad of about ten years of age came out of the school bulding whistling a familiar tune. Another lad addressed him thus: "Hey there, is that the best you can whistle?" "Let me hear you do better," said the first boy. Whereupon the lad whistled almost to perfection the tune that the other boy had stumbled through. When he had finshed he said: "Now you try it again." The boy did so and this time his whistling was much better. "Well, that was all right," replied the boy, "but what I want to know is why you were not whistling that way when you came out of the school building?" Anything that is worth doing at all is worth doing well, whether it be whistling a tune or flying an airship. No one will ever learn the fine art of doing his best until he does his best all the time.

Yugoslavia has a way all its own in dealing with speeders along the highways of that far-away country. When a road patrolman locates a speeder, he follows in close pursuit until he can maneuver the offender into a safe place by the roadside. Then without bickering or argument, the policeman quietly goes from tire to tire and lets out the air. Then he tips his hat to the man in the car and rides away. Of course the offender is red in the face and is so mad until he could pull up trees but what can he do about it? He is master of four flats and it is up to him to pay the sentence of his fine by jumping up again. The policeman leaves no smart lawyer to get him out of his trouble and neither can a lenient judge make his fine light. This kind of traffic law in Yugoslavia has decrease accidents fifty per cent in one year. A like law could get results in America. It would be real fun to some of us to pass by an offender who had all but pushed us into the ditch with his speed and see him pump up four flat tires.

The Sunday School teacher was having a good time with her ten boys telling to them the story of Babylon and Nebuchadnezzer. In the midst of her story she paused to ask: "Now James, can you tell me why Nebuchadnezzer built his hanging gardens" James thought for a moment and then replied in all seriousness: "I am not sure, teacher, but it must have been because all of his neighbors had chickens." At least James was up-to-date in his thinking. We all knew that when all of our neighbors have chickens and dogs, if we plan for vegetables or flowers, we must build for ourselves a "hanging garden." It would be real nice if the folks with the dogs and chickens were wise enough to see and appreciate this.

Montgomery To Get Disaster Loan Office

Washington—Four Federal agencies completed have a joint plan to extend loans, direct relief and emergency food supplies to meet drouth and flood emergencies affecting 115,000 farm families in 34 states.

The plan was drafted at the request of the President and congressmen from stricken states.

The Farm Security Administration will make available $8,500,000 for emergency rehabilitation loans and direct relief to families which cannot obtain adequate help from other sources.

The Farm Credit Administration will provide a maximum of $20,000,000 for emergency crop and seed loans secured by first liens on crops or livestock.

The Disaster Loan Corporation will lend a maximum of $5,000,000 to eligible flood stricken farm borrowers in counties in Mississippi, Alabama, Florida and Tennessee. Legal limitations restrict its operations to flood areas.

The Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation will increase its shipments of surplus foodstuffs to drouth and farm families needing the services of these agencies may apply to the county offices of the Farm Security Administration or the crop and feed loan offices of the Farm Credit Administration, or may obtain information from county agricultural agents.

The Disaster Loan Corporation was arranging to send examiners into the flood area and to open an office in Montgomery, Ala., to review loan applications. Its offices in Birmingham, Ala., Little Rock, Ark., Nashville, Tenn., and Jacksonville Fla. also will handle loan applications.

TRUTH about ADVERTISING

By CHARLES B. ROTH

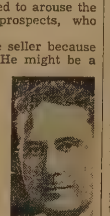
TODAY ONLY: $5 BILLS FOR $1.98

MANY times, on a wager, men have tried to sell $5 bills to strangers for as little as $1.98—legitimate $5 bills worth $5 anywhere. They have usually failed.

The reason is simple to see: Lack of confidence.

Their proposition sounded too good to be true, failed to arouse the confidence of the prospects, who were afraid to buy.

No one trusted the seller because no one knew him. He might be a counterfeiter. Who knows? He might have some trick up his sleeve. Who knows? Better have nothing at all to do with him.



Charles Roth

Confidence is the mainspring of business. Without it no business can succeed and no product can be sold, because before any one of us is willing to part with a penny, we must have confidence that that which we are going to buy will give us value received.

Confidence is not a matter which can be bought. It must be earned. It is a process of growth. The idea of confidence grows from one customer to the next one. It gives vitality to everything about a business.

When confidence enters into a business transaction, everything about it becomes pleasant. But whenever confidence is absent, no amount of any other qualities can take its place.

You have often bought something from someone you did not know, say a solicitor who succeeded in taking away your money at the door. Will you ever see him again? Will you get the goods you have paid for? Was it a miniature swindle? You wonder and worry.

You spend hours in painful doubt. Perhaps everything turned out all right. Even so, the profit went out of the transaction when you had to worry about getting your money's worth. Buy goods that are advertised from merchants who advertise. There lies confidence.

One of the chief services of newspaper advertising to consumers is that it denotes which merchants or products are worthy of confidence.

Because newspaper publishers are so jealous of their advertising colums and are quick to reject anything which does not live up to their standards, readers know that if a thing is regularly advertised in the newspaper it is worthy of their confidence.

As a matter of fact, the appearance of an advertisement in a newspaper is recommendation of the character and quality of the goods being advertised.

Dutch-Belgian Arbitration Bid Lost in Beer Hall Excitement; Fear of Nazi Invasion Mounts

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

STEEL MILLS BLOSSOM AT GARY, IND.
Some industries expand; neutrality stifles others.

TRADE & INDUSTRY

Repeal of the U. S. arms embargo, which keeps American ships out of combat zones and allows belligerents "cash and carry" rights, not only set off a partial business boom at home but also brought major repercussions in world diplomatic, trade and maritime circles. A survey by the Northwestern National Life Insurance company showed luxury and semi-luxury goods began moving swiftly in September, but Federal Works Administrator John Carmody spiked any boom hopes: Only 500,000 of the 9,000,000 unemployed can expect new jobs.

There was cautious expansion in U. S. industry, where building awards for October totaled $49,910,000 against $12,814,000 a year ago. Many firms announced stock dividends payable in December. Railroads, which coupled their expansion with a plea that they might be permitted to operate without government interference in times of emergency, were offered a new recovery program by Jesse Jones, federal loan administrator. This plan, used first by the Boston and Maine line, calls for postponing debt payments and reducing annual interest charges through a refunding process to be financed by Reconstruction Finance corporation.

MAX TRUITT
"Completely sound."

The government restricted foreign commerce in some quarters and expanded it in others. Approved was a new reciprocal trade pact with Venezuela, "freezing" tariff schedules on exports of wheat flour, oatmeal, lard and lumber. In return, the U. S. will reduce import taxes 50 per cent on Venezuelan crude petroleum.

Meanwhile, an inter-administration squabble flared over the U. S. maritime commission's transfer of more than 40 ships to foreign registry as a means of avoiding the ban on American shipping in belligerent zones. Secretary of State Cordell Hull objected, not because the step was illegal, but because it would violate the integrity and spirit of the neutrality law. Commented Maritime Commissioner Max O'Rell Truitt. "I don't see any element of a dodge at all; I think it's a completely sound, bona fide situation all around." President Roosevelt finally decided against the transfer, promising to change his mind later if tension eased. Meanwhile, C. I. O.'s maritime union estimated 10,000 U. S. seamen were thrown out of work by the neutrality provision banning nationals from combat zones. (At Washington the President consulted A. F. of L.'s William Green and C. I. O.'s John Lewis on this problem, also discussing the chances for labor peace.)

Trade with belligerents zoomed. Even Switzerland, minus a navy, chartered two ships. The state department warned shippers to demand cash from their foreign customers, and the cash was apparently forthcoming because Britain's parliament rushed through a billion dollar fund to carry on the war.

EUROPE:
Cause Celebre?

"This," said Prime Minister Chamberlain, "is not a state of war but a state of siege." He was not far wrong. The French claimed nine of their U. S.-made planes had downed one-third of a 27-plane German force over the western front. There was also a mysterious battle in the North sea from which the Ark Royal reportedly limped home with a captured vessel. But, as usual, the biggest war news was made far from the front.

WILHELMINA AND LEOPOLD
Their peace exploded.

Some 20 Nazi divisions stationed on their frontiers worried Belgium's King Leopold and The Netherlands' Queen Wilhelmina. Moreover, they heard rumors that Adolf Hitler would invade on November 15, claiming as an excuse that the allies would do likewise if Germany didn't invade first.

Though steadfastly denying any German "ultimatum" for a statement of their positions, the king and queen held all-night consultations with their foreign ministers. Result: A peace appeal was dispatched to all combatants offering Belgian-Dutch mediation services. Britain rejected it politely.

Fuehrer Hitler was less polite. Not waiting to reply directly, he hastened to the beer hall at Munich where his notorious putsch took place in 1923. There, on Naziism's sixteenth birthday, he scorned peace: "There can be only one victor—that is we."

Hardly had Hitler left the beer hall before a mysterious blast in the empty attic upstairs sent its heavy ceiling crashing on the hangers-on who had stayed behind. Next day, while the Nazi press railed at Jews and the British secret service as "instigators" of the plot, the Wilhelmstrasse offered a $200,000 reward for capture of the perpetrators. While seers wondered if the Munich explosion might not prove another cause celebre like Sarajevo or the Peiping bridge incident, pro-Hitler sentiment began crystalizing in Germany. Dead as a dodo was the Belgian-Dutch peace plea; in fact, the Dutch opened their dykes in self defense following border clashes that smelled suspiciously like those before the Polish invasion.

CONGRESS:
Committee Time

Home to the stamping grounds went most senators and congressmen when the special neutrality session adjourned. But between sessions is a fine time for committee hearings. Still in session is Martin Dies' un-Americanism group, ballyhooing for another appropriation. Two other groups, working out legislative suggestions for next January's term, are:

House Tax Subcommittee. Opening its hearings under Tennessee's Rep. Jere Cooper, the committee talked about broadening income tax bases. But there was a disinclination to offer concrete proposals. It was announced final determination of a program will await the opening of congress. Two official reasons: (1) The treasury is studying taxes, soliciting suggestions from business and industry; (2) National defense needs for the next fiscal year are not yet known. Besides, the committee is wondering about taxes on excess war profits, not knowing where to turn. Equally important, how would tax revision be received in an election year like 1940?

(At Washington, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau told reporters any initiative for raising the U. S. debt limit above $45,000,000,000 must come from congress, not from himself or the White House. Present debt: About $41,000,000,000.)

NLRB Investigating Committee. Deferring hearings until its Chairman Howard Smith (Dem., Va.) gets well, the house labor committee found new kindling for its campaign against the labor board in a new strike technique, the "slowdown." Defined Ohio's Rep. Harry Routzohn: "The slowdown is almost the same as the sitdown." Its origin, he said, could be traced to the northwest lumber camps, thence to the recent Chrysler strike.

AGRICULTURE:
Cotton and Wheat

Three items made news for cotton and wheat farmers as November got underway:

(1) With 10,100,000 bales of surplus cotton stored under government loan, and with an 11,845,000-bale crop (slightly less than 1938) forecast for this year, the agriculture department announced loans based at 8.3 cents a pound on seven-eighths inch middlings would be available to 1939 growers who planted within their acreage allotments. A week earlier the loan program seemed stymied by increased cotton consumption thanks to the war.

(2) The bureau of agricultural economics forecast the same wheat acreage for 1940 as for 1939, i. e., 64,600,000 acres, which would produce about 760,000,000 bushels of spring and winter wheat. But next year's yield will be under par unless unusually favorable weather comes along. Reason: Drouth has already damaged much seeded winter wheat beyond recovery.

(3) Closing its first year, the federal crop insurance corporation was sad. Having taken 6,769,120 bushels of wheat as premiums from 165,551 farmers, the corporation had claims from one-fourth its customers. Indemnities paid, totaling 9,461,730 bushels, brought a loss of about $1,885,000.

RUSSIA:
Unhappy Birthday

Twenty-two years ago a bloody revolution gave birth to the U. S. S. R. Only a month ago Soviet Premier Viacheslav Molotov showed Russia's strapping maturity by denouncing President Roosevelt's intervention in the Finnish-Russian scrap. When Moscow began its three-day anniversary celebration, Premier Molotov again slapped the U. S.: ". . . in the case of certain countries neutrality only serves as a mask to conceal their activities . . ."

HANS THOMSEN AND WIFE
Most radiant of all.

On that same day in Washington, the Soviet embassy decorated Lenin's statue with red roses, assembled Scotch whisky and Russian soda, green sherbet in crushed raspberries, and cakes smothered in rum sauce. Awaited were the guests to help Charge d'Affaires Dmitri Chuvakhin celebrate. But he was embarrassingly disappointed.

Absent were all Supreme court justices, cabinet members, senators and high ranking state department officials. Only China, Turkey and Ecuador sent their diplomats. Only prominent New Dealers: NLRB's Edwin Smith, SEC's Leon Henderson, and Mrs. Thurman Arnold, wife of the assistant attorney general. Most beaming visitors: Hans Thomsen, German charge d'affaires, and his pretty wife, accompanied by four staff members. Next day observers noticed Franklin Roosevelt had sent the U. S. S. R. no message of congratulations.

POLITICS:
No Ham, No Eggs

The tumultuous 1930s have brought an unprecedented thirst for security taking form in unorthodox pension schemes. Most schemes were born in California, like Townsendism and EPIC. In November's elections two more panaceas went down to defeat, but there were signs many a politician might follow them.

Ohio's Rev. Herbert S. Bigelow promised to "continue the fight" for his badly snowed-under plan to give all persons over 60 a pension of $50 a month via state income tax and a levy on real estate.

GOV. OLSON
Soothing words.

In California died "ham-and-eggs," the scheme to give $30 every Thursday to everyone over 50. It even trailed in Los Angeles county, its birthplace. One reason: Gov. Culbert Olson had fought ham-and-eggs by promising "useful and productive employment" to all who wanted it, as a reward for defeating the plan. As pension leaders began a recall move against Mr. Olson, the governor soothed them: "This defeat doesn't mean that California is against the further development of sound social security . . ."

Other results: In New York, voters ignored Mayor Fiorella LaGuardia's protest by legalizing pari-mutuel race betting. Tammany won most local elections, while Republicans won a single upstate congressional race. In Kentucky, New Dealer Keen Johnson succeeded Sen. A. B. Chandler to the governor's chair. In Pennsylvania, Boies Penrose II, a Republican, lost a congressional contest.

MAYOR'S REPORT

and not putting a roof on it. The amount of pipe used more than the original estimate called for, was 3,904 feet varying in size from 15 inch to 30 inch, and we installed 34 additional water inlets, and 13 manholes. I am pleased to inform you that the government approved of every foot of additional pipe we used and has agreed to pay 45 per cent of the cost. I was told by the government inspector that our drainage system was the best he knew of in a small city, but I think there are some streets yet not sufficiently drained.

"It was learned also in the final adjustment and accounting of all matters connected with the paving, that the engineer overlooked making a charge to the owners of property for the cost of paving street intersections. Street intersections, as you well know, are not the property of individuals, but belong to the city, and in measuring the lot, or property of each person, the street intersections were omitted in arriving at the estimated cost of the paving.

"You recall the engineer estimated the cost would not exceed 80 cents per lineal foot. The bid of the contractor being much less than 80 cents per foot caused some men to arrive at the conclusion there would be a refund of money to those who had paid 80 cents per foot cash. There would have been a refund had we not done more improvement than the first application and first estimate called for, and remained within the bid price of the contractor.

"In trying to arrive at the amount of this anticipated refund, some men did not take into consideration the charge of the engineer for his services in surveying the streets, making blue prints of all streets and all work, and finding the number of feet of property each person owned, and making up the cost of all work to be assessed to each person, and for the general supervision of the paving from the beginning to the completion of the work. This required a great amount of time and careful handling, and the work was performed by men educated in that line of work. The contractor had nothing to do with this expense, and did not include the cost in his bid, but it is a part of the cost of the paving, and is included in the final charge.

"In order that each individual may have a clearer understanding of all matters connected with the paving and be prepared to arrive at fair conclusions as to cost, I wish to explain that our contract was based on a 'UNIT PRICE.' Unit price means that if the engineer estimated there was 50 yards of dirt at a certain point in the street to be moved, and the contractor bid a certain price per yard for moving the 50 yards of dirt, but it was found later there was 100 yards instead of 50 yards, the contractor was paid for moving 100 yards. Again, if 50 feet of 12 inch pipe was considered large enough to carry the water at a certain place, and it was decided later a larger pipe should be used, the contractor was paid for the larger pipe. If rock was found underground where storm sewers were to be placed, the contractor was paid the price of moving rock, instead of the price of moving dirt. In some instances the material used and work performed was less than the estimated amount, and the contractor was paid for what he did. Therefore it would be very impracticable on the part of the city or contractor either to agree on a total cost of work of this kind, and this is why the total bid of the contractor did not prevail when the final settlement was made.

"On account of the foregoing conditions, and especially do I call your attention to the extra pipe for drainage used, the water inlets and manholes, and the cost of the street intersections, we spent more than $11,000.00 than the bid of the contractor, and the actual cost of the street improvement is $6,895.98 greater than the estimated cost of 80 cents per lineal foot. The more than $11,000.00 spent extra is the difference between the low bid of the contractor and the estimated cost of the paving on which the government allotted to Clanton 45 per cent of the estimated cost. Had we not used this $11,000.00 as we did, 45 per cent of it would have been returned to the government, and 55 per cent to the property owners, and our streets would not have been properly drained. We tried to spend up to 80 cents per lineal foot and quit, but we overstepped the amount by $6,895.98. Our part to pay of this is $3,792.79, and the government assumes $3,103.19.

"Due to the fact that street drainage benefits all property owners, and all tax payers, especially in a lower upkeep cost of the streets, and the fact that street intersections are the property of the city, and not the property of individuals, the City Council has by a unanimous vote directed that this additional cost of $3,972.79 be paid out of the general fund of the city, and that it not be charged to the owners of property as a part of the cost of the paving. I heartily agree with the Council in disposing of the matter as they did. You are therefore notified that the paving, drainage and all improvements to our streets, will cost those who own property on the streets paved, 80 cents per lineal foot 20 feet wide. Those who had the street paved more than 20 feet, and to the curb, paid extra for the paving. The city did not pay any of it.

"I am well pleased with the paving. Splendid material was used from the foundation to the finishing coat, and it is going to last a long time. I have not a single regret for having spent the additional money for proper drainage, rather than had the real pleasure of returning to you a small amount of money, and failed to give the paving greater protection. Isn't it fine to be out of the dust and mud, and the paving cost was so small. Smile, and help those who are trying to make Clanton a better place in which to live.

"Respectfully.
"C. FENN JONES, Mayor."

Thanksgiving

-- an Opportunity

This is indeed a day of Thanksgiving for many young men and young women in Chilton County and throughout Alabama, who have recently reached the age whereby they can qualify as full-fledged citizens of their County, Alabama, United States of America. What an opportunity!

The world stands sharply divided today in its political, social, economic opinions. On one side is the freedom of Democracy—freedom to think, to speak, to act. On the other side is found almost every kind of political, social and economic ism and ideology that the human mind can conceive—where tyranny and the lack of freedom prevail.

Young man, young woman, it is yours to embrace this great opportunity in a spirit of thankfulness—that you are living in a nation where you can take your place alongside of every other citizen—and where you are free to record your opinions and make your own choice on all questions of governmental policy.

No more sacred duty confronts you than that you pay your poll tax, register, and then vote in every election as long as you live. On this foundation rests our National freedom.

"Which Day Will Clanton Eat Turkey?"---Well, Nobody Seems To Be Getting Excited Over That

Evidently Thanksgiving is Thanksgiving to the hard-working masses that compose Clanton's population—and that means Thursday, November 30, the original date, despite proclamations pro or con.

To tell you the truth, this writer hadn't given the matter much thought until he read an article in another newspaper about the dilemna Lanett, Alabama and West Point, Georgia found themselves in as a result of the President's decree.

You know, of course, that Lanett and West Point are practically one town. Well, it seems that Governor Frank Dixon proclaimed the 30th as Alabama's Thanksgiving day and along came Georgia's Governor E. D. Rivers and opines that Georgia would "eat the turkey" on November 23, as the President designated. (November 23 was yesterday; we'd given it such little thought that we clean forgot that you people would not get your Chilton County News until Friday of this week, due to the fact that all Federal institutions including Uncle Sam's post office, would be closed yesterday).

But to get on with the West Point-Lanett situation. As we said, Governor Rivers and Governor Dixon sorta left Lanett and West Point mixed up on when to kill the fatted turkey, which meant which day was they to close the doors of their business establishments.

But here comes the hero in our story. We've forgotten his name since we read the article on the matter, but anyway, he is the Mayor of West Point, and he saved the day by proclaiming November 30 as the day, which made the Rivers declaration nil, so far as West Point was concerned. So West Point will eat turkey with Lanett and Lanett will eat turkey with West Point, and the whole Chattahoochee Vally is happy.

Well, we stated in the early part of this narrative that Thanksgiving is Thanksgiving around Clanton, and since the former National date has passed due to the fact that Uncle Sam's post office was closed yesterday, throwing your paper a day late and making it a fact that you are reading this story after the National Thanksgiving date has passed—whoa, hold everything—didn't we cross that bridge twice? Anyway, Clanton will observe next Thursday as Thanksgiving—all the stores will be closed; all the employees of the Chilton County News will not work on that day—but Uncle Sam will carry the mail as usual, and that means that you will get your News on Thanksgiving Day, November 30.

Fourth District Music Club Meeting Held In Clanton Nov. 16th Was Inspirational Affair

On November 16th delegates from the Wetumpka, Auburn, Montgomery and Tallassee Federated Music Clubs convened in Clanton with the local Club acting as host. The meeting was held in the auditorium of the Baptist Church. Mrs. P. L. Hebson, district director, presided.

The welcome address was given by the Clanton Club president, Mrs. Reid Mullins, and the response was given by Mrs. J. T. Alley of Montgomery.

In answer to roll call the nine senior clubs represented gave reports. An open forum was then held to discuss club and federation problems.

Mrs. Stuart Washburn, editor and publicity director, gave an inspirational talk on federation aims and the value of publicity. The feature of the convention program was an address by the State president, Mrs. J. Greely McGowin of Chapian, Ala. Mrs. McGowin spoke interestingly of the progress made and the future aims of the federation, with special emphasis on the plan to place a collection of old music and musical instruments in a room assigned in the new building of the Department of Archives and History at the State Capitol in Montgomery.

At the noon hour a delicious luncheon was served by Circle No. I of the Baptist Church with Mrs. Percy Pitts as toastmistress. Beautiful vocal selections were rendered by Miss Kathryn Foss, a member of the Clanton Club. A piano selection was given by Miss Helen Parrish, guest of the Club. A short welcoming address was made by Mayor C. Fenn Jones. Appreciation for the Clanton Club's kindness in acting as host was expressed by the State presi-

FARMERS ASKED TO STUDY QUOTA PROPOSAL

ELECTION TO DETERMINE IF NEXT YEAR'S CROP TO BE REGULATED SET FOR DEC. 9

Chilton County cotton farmers were asked this week to study all angles of the 1940 cotton marketing quota proposal before going to the polls December 9 to determine if next year's crop will be governed by quota regulations

"Farmers normally consider the factors of supply, carry-over, production and consumption," County Agent J. W. Fant said. "But a new factor—the war in Europe—also must be considered if the farmers get a true picture of the current situation."

The County Agent said the best guide the farmers have as to what is likely to happen to cotton as a result of the European development is the experience they had during the World War. He said most of them may recall the [illegible] cotton prices that prevailed during the latter years of the World War and how cotton lagged behind the general commodity price level for several years after the outbreak of the war.

"Just before the opening of hostilities in 1914, cotton prices were about 12.5 cents a pound," he said. "When the exchanges were closed August 1 to November 17 1914, prices dropped with the diminished market to nearly half this level. It was two full years after the war began before domestic prices recovered to the levels existing immediately before the war."

Mr. Fant said the cotton crop in the United States this year was held to approximately 11.9 million bales due to the fact that most farmers cooperated in the farm program and planted within their acreage allotments. He also pointed out that the world carry-over of 14.2 million bales of American cotton resulting largely from the record 19 million bale crop of 1937 still hangs over the market.

"Marketing quotas can be authorized only when the supply of American cotton is more than seven per cent above normal," he said. "For 1939-40 the normal supply, as defined by law, would be approximately 18.2 million bales, while the actual supply is 26.3 million bales. This is more than 44 per cent above normal. The world supply of foreign growths of cotton is also abnormally large."

Thanksgiving Week

(From The American, Atlanta)

The people of the United States have come happily upon an opportunity this year to observe, not a Thanksgiving Day, but a THANKSGIVING WEEK.

Because the President has designated by proclamation Thursday, November 23, as a day for the giving of thanks, and because the Governors of several states have adhered to the traditional observance on Thursday, November 30, we have this fine opportunity.

The national observance should, of course, BEGIN on the one day and CONTINUE THROUGH THE OTHER.

For a nation with So much to be thankful for, a week of thanksgiving is certainly not too much.

And for all the reasons which President Roosevelt cites and for a multitude of other reasons, we are indeed this year a thankful and a grateful nation.

No one could say it better than the President does, that:

"As a nation we are deeply grateful in a world of turmoil we are at peace with all countries, and we especially rejoice in the strengthened bonds of our friendship with the other peoples of the Western Hemisphere."

All of us say with him, in humble and reverent gratitude that the opportunity is ours to say it:

"Let us give thanks to the Ruler of the universe for the strength which he has vouchsafed us to carry on our daily labors and for the hope that lives within us of the coming day when peace and the productive activities of peace shall reign on every continent."

One day is not sufficient for the expression of American thankfulness.

A week is not sufficient for it.

As Americans, year in and year out, we ought to let no day or hour pass without, as Mr. Roosevelt says, "reverent thoughts of thanksgiving."

This America of ours is at peace, and may God grant it may always be so.

This America of ours is FREE, and justice may be had here by the humblest and the lowliest and the poorest.

This America of ours is TOLERANT and the opinions of all men are unfettered and their human rights untrammelled, and they may think and speak according to their different judgments and worship according to their varied faiths.

We should be thankful, not solely because God has made all these fine and desirable things possible—because he has made them possible in all lands and possible of attainment by all peoples.

What we should be particularly and eternally thankful for is that we have inherited a land and government created in the light and plan of Divine Intention, and that God's way has been The American Way.

We are not a preferred or a privileged people.

What we have has not been granted us by a partial divinity.

We have a secure land and safe homes and just, tolerant and free institutions—not because these things have been unattainable elsewhere, but because our fathers had the will to have them and the courage to make them REAL.

Truly, we should get down on our knees in our homes and our churches and within the hallowed circle of our families and in the happy company of our friends and THANK GOD FOR AMERICA.

And truly, we should arise from them and with the eternal vigilance of free men continue to be AMERICANS.

In such a land as ours, and for such blessings and opportunities as it affords for the happiness and enrichment and security of its people, not just a day or a week of thanksgiving is sufficient —but only PERPETUAL THANKSGIVING in our hearts is appropriate and adequate.

Let our prayer always be: God Bless America.

Let our grateful acknowledgement never fail to be:

THANK GOD FOR AMERICA!

Dean Of The Press

Tol Shropshire of The Coosa River News writes:

"The death of Charles H. Greer, editor of The Sylacauga News, removes the dean of Alabama journalists—perhaps leaving this writer next to offer. Editor Will I. Martin of The Gadsden Times easily ranks us in sagacity and years, but we were practically born in a print shop, aided in assembling The News' plant nearly 62 years ago and have been in active editorial control for 51 years. Meanwhile, Mr. Greer was a safe and sane advocate, a man of character, and lived in his day well. Fellow craftsman, au revoir."

In searching for the dean of the Alabama press, now that General Stanley is gone and Mr. Greer has followed him, we cannot overlook Editor Will Yerby of The Greensboro Watchman. Mr. Yerby has been an active newspaper man for 58 years, and for the past 53 years he has been in active charge of his own newspaper—without missing a single issue during that entire period. Such a record is rare, as are those of General Stanley, Mr. Greer Mr. Shropshire and Mr. Martin.—The Tuscaloosa News.

"War Baby's" Pleas

(From the Alabamian)

Undoubtedly, there are hundreds of others that are able to say the same. I was born during those turbulous times when all nations were at war, and upheaval and discontent raged over the world. Families were broken; terror reigned; people lived in dread that the next moment would bring word that one of their loved ones had died for their country.

My father, like many others, went to fight for his country, and like millions ,he did not return. I'm proud he fought for what he thought was right, but sometimes I think of all I've missed by not knowing him. I'd like to feel the security and safeness that a father's love can bring. I wonder what he was like. Would he have played with me as I've seen so many fathers play with their children? I've missed the sound of his footsteps, the gay laugh that might have been his. I find myself envying other girls who have fathers, and the love they receive. Had it not been for the past war, I too might have shared all this.

Though I did not actually face the problem of war, I received the effects it handed out. I shudder to think of what may happen to my generation should we go to war.

War seems more possible every day. It seems like a crouching lion coming closer all the time. Are we, the children of the past war, going to have to face the same problems our parents faced?

I beg of you, give us a chance! Let us not be led into the same path. We're young, able, ambitious. Shall our youth capabilties, and ambitions be thwarted by the same monster that disabled our parents?

Let us not lose our heads and rush into this thing blindly. I love my country. Yes, to me it is the symbol of what men fought for, died for, created with their hands. It is the land of the free! With God's help let us keep it free!

There is absolutely no valid reason why a poll tax receipt should be a requirement for participating in the political program of Alabama. However, that is the law, and it is your sacred duty to pay that poll tax, register and vote every time there is an election.

Townsend Plan In Alabama

(From The Alabama Journal)

Dr. Townsend's pension plan seems to have some following in Alabama and it is even intimated that efforts will be made to present the plan as an issue in the congressional campaign next year. Malcolm Harper in his business service bulletin takes note of the situation in these words:

"Alabama is to have an early and active campaign to enlist recruits to the cause of Townsendism. The capital city will be the base of operation. Adherents of the $200 per month pension for persons 60 years of age and over, believe that headquarters should be at the seat of state government. Participation in congressional races in a number of Alabama districts is contemplated. At least some of the present members of congress from Alabama, will be opposed by a Townsend advocate. A former member of the Alabama legislature is actively behind the movement. The present social securty law falls far short of meeting the hopes of Doctor Townsend's followers. Boosters for furthering the program in Alabama claim that certin influential citizens of the state will soon be actively, if not openly, working for its success. Our source of information is one who is enthusiastiastically interested in the plan to organize Alabama and appears to be on the inside with respect to developments.'

6 FIRSTS
for Electric Ranges and Water Heaters

·1· FIRST in beauty - -
see how old, drab kitchens are "spruced up" with modern electric devices—range, water heater, refrigerator, dishwasher.

·2· FIRST in safety - - watch tiny tots play at cooking with little chance of harm. Some mothers encourage them to cook simple dishes for themselves on their safe electric ranges.

·3· FIRST in cleanliness - - look at kitchens where the cooking and water heating are done electrically—learn how much longer walls, woodwork and draperies remain clean.

·4· FIRST in convenience - - set the timers of a modern electric range and go visiting while a meal cooks unattended. Electric water heaters do their job without attention—not even a switch to snap!

·5· FIRST in up-to-dateness - - observe the really modern kitchens—they're all electric.

·6· FIRST in good cooking results - - talk with women who have switched to electric cookery.

MODERATE IN PRICE AND COST OF OPERATION

Electric ranges and water heaters can be bought at prices and on terms to fit almost any pocketbook—only 5% down ($5 minimum) and 36 months to pay the balance (until Dec. 24). Cost of operation at low urban rates is seldom more than $2.50 a month for the electric range, and $3.50 to $4.00 for the electric water heater in families of average size. (Note: These are average operating costs—they may be less or more, according to the size and habits of the family. Operating cost on rural lines slightly more.)

Federal Agencies To Aid Drought And Flood Victims

Four federal agencies today completed a joint plan for meeting drought and flood emergencies which have affected more than 115,000 farm families in 34 states. The plan was drafted at the request of the President, after consultation with Congressmen from the most seriously stricken states.

Loans, direct relief, and emergency food supplies will be provided for these needy families by the Farm Security Administration, the Farm Credit Administration, the Disaster Loan Corporation, and the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation, beginning immediately. Funds of the first three agencies available for emergency use total $33,500,000. In addition, FSCC expects to increase considerably its shipments of surplus foodstuffs into the distressed areas.

The Farm Security Administration has available $8,500,000 for emergency rehabilitation loans and direct relief to farm families which cannot obtain adequate help from any other source.

The Farm Credt Administration will provide up to $20,000,000 for emergency crop and feed loans to farmers who can give a first lien on their crops or livestock. Security of this type is required by the law governing FCA operations.

The Disaster Loan Corporation has available not more than $5,000,000 for loans to eligible farm borrowers in those counties in Mississippi, Alabama, Florida, and Tennessee which have been stricken by floods during recent months. Legal limitations restrict its operations to the flood area. The other agencies however, are free to oprate in both flood and drought regions.

As the need develops, the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation will increase its shipments of surplus foodstuffs to drought and flood states for distribution through the Public Welfare Departments to supplement other forms of aid.

Farm families needing the services offered by any of the four agencies may apply to the county offices of the Farm Security Administration or the Farm Credit Administration crop and feed loan offices, or may obtain informtaion from County Agricultural Agents. Applications then will be routed to the proper agency for immediate action.

The Disaster Loan Corporation is arranging to send examiners into the flood area, and will open an office in Montgomery, Alabama, for the review of loan appilcations. Its present offices in Birmingham, Alabama, Little Rock Arkansas, Nashville, Tennessee, and Jacksonville Florida also will assist in this work.

Serious drought conditions have developed during the last two months in widely scattered areas ranging from New York to Texas and from the Dakotas to Arizona. Floods have occurred in Western Tennessee, Northeastern Mississippi, Alabama, and Western Florida at various times since early summer. As a result of the two emergencies, more than 115,000 farm famlies already are in urgent need of federal aid, and the distress is expected to increase considerably unless the drought is broken in the near future.

"IT IS GOOD TO GIVE THANKS UNTO THE LORD"

It is good to give thanks unto the Lord, and to sing praises unto His name most high. For he alone can save us from sin and death, and help us to reach that sweet home in the sky.

I thank Him for the sunshine, for the morning dew and rain. I am thankful in Him we have redemption through His blood, even the saving of all mankind from sin.

I am thankful His loving eye is ever over me, to deliver me out of all temptation and shield me from His wrath to come.

I thank Him for His love so pure and free to save all from sin and death, His life was freely given.

I am thankful to all who will accept Him today, a mansion for them He has prepared, not made with mortal hands—eternal in the heavens.

I thank Him for His loving care for me while traveling here below. I am thankful when this earth I leave, I can rest with Him and loved ones in peace for ever more.

I am thankful that my Lord will soon come back to earth again with a multitude of angels to cleanse this world from sin.

I am thankful old satan with all his evil works away then will have to flee. I am thankful, oh, how thankful I am dear Lord, we then can forever reign with Thee.—Composed by Mrs. Media Cooper.

Conducting Bible Institute In Clanton

CECIL F. GRAVES

The interest in the Bible Institute being conducted in the courthouse auditorium is incerasing, judging by the increase in attendance during the first week. Evangelist Graves reports that the auditorium was practically filled with an attentive audience who listened to the discussion of the very timely subject, "Millions In Arms, Billions For Machines of Death, What Does It Mean?" Mr. Graves said in part: "There is a new terror upon the earth, something that our fathers never knew. First of all, what do these things mean? What will be the outcome? No wisdom of man can answer. When the very earth shakes with the shocks of unmeasured forces, it is not a time pretend to special wisdom and foresight. We have but one place to which we can turn for an answer to the question, "What do these things mean?" God himself gives the answer in the Holy Scripture. Some might say, "Can that book written centuries ago give any light on today's political strife?" God answers, "I have declared the former things from the beginning—I have even from the beginning declared it to thee: before it came to pass I showed it thee." Why does He do this? In order that His children might have hope and confidence at a time when all is confusion and chaos. Speaking of the period just prior to His second coming, Christ said, "Ye shall hear of wars and rumors of wars—but the end is not yet." Crisis after crisis was to come. We have seen that fulfilled during the last few months. It has been repeated over and over until now we speak of the present conflict as a war of nerves. Christ's coming will put an end to all these conditions and will usher in an everlasting reign of peace with the king of peace as ruler."

A very fine musical program was rendered by one of the local quartets. Mrs. Walleker had charge of the story period which was greatly enjoyed by the children and adults alike. It is stated that this is a regular feature of the Bible Institute program and is very much appreciated by the children. The question box is another interesting feature of the meeting.

The subjects for the remainder of the week have been announced as follows: Thursday night, 7:00 P.M., "God's Measuring Rod. What Is It?" Friday night, "Are We Living Under Grace or Disgrace?" No meeting Saturday night. Sunday night, 6:30 P.M., "Those Four Terrible Beasts of Dan. 7. What Do They Mean?" Mr. Graves states that the public is welcome at all these meetings.

SOBER WEEK END FOR CITY

Down Around VERBENA

The Verbena Wildcats ended the season in a hard-fought battle with West Blocton Friday night. Those who witnessed the game said it was the most brilliant game of the season. Our compliments to Creighton (Red) Jones who knows how to carry the ball. The score was 6-6.

Progress in the lunch room is advancing rapidly. The number of lunches sold is increasing daily.

Last week we observed American Education week. We had with us one day Mr. John Hollis, superintendent of Mitchell Dam, an outstanding citizen of this county. His theme was "Educating for Civic Responsibility." Mr. Hollis himself is an outstanding man in civic affairs both at Mitchell Dam and Clanton. Also we had with us the Rev. Hardin, Methodist preacher. His subject of discussion was "Educating For Human Relationships." Mr. DuBose, our principal and advisor, gave a talk on the "Values of Education To The Individual." As the week drew to a close the Seniors themselves gave short talks on what education has meant to them.

At the P.-T. A. meeting Thursday night Mr. C. E. Stapp offered the school a hog if we would feed it. What, I ask you, could be more generous?

The Verbena graduates who have made good include Mr. Otis Gulledge who is now a full-fledged policeman; Mr. George Gulledge who is working on the AAA program, has been promoted we hear.

Another lad from Verbena on the AAA program is John L. Howard.

BILLINGSLEY

Mrs. J. F. Culp is visiting her daughter, Mrs. J. M. Robertson and Mr. Robertson in Tallassee.

The many friends of Mrs. J. F. DeWitt deeply sympathize with her in the death of her father, which occurred at Lamberson Saturday night when his home was burned. Being aged he did not escape from the fire.

Mrs. L. C. Lewis spent last week with her sister, Mrs. H. E. Nichols and Mr. Nichols in Birmingham.

Mr. McMillan, coach of boys in the school, had his brother of Auburn as guest during the week end.

Mrs. J. C. Hughes spent Monday with Mrs. Carl Herman in Prattville.

Methodist Church

Church School at 9:45 A.M. each Sunday, L. J. Stewart, general Superintendent. Morning worship service 11:00 A.M. Sermon by the Pastor.

Young peoples meeting and Junior league, 6:15 P.M.

Evening worship service 7:00 P.M. Sermon by the pastor.

It has been suggested that we make next Sunday, the last Sunday of the Conference year, a banner Sunday. The following week our pastor will go to Conference. If you think you don't like our preacher, come to Church next Sunday and hear his sermon. Then if you still think you don't like him, tell him or the officers of the Church why you don't. If you do like our preacher, let him know it. Tell him so, and by all means demonstrate your love by coming to Church and hearing his sermons. They'll help you. Then, too, if you love your Lord and want His blessing, come to Church.

Our Christmas pageant will be on the third Sunday, December 17th, this year. Be getting ready to make our offering to the Orphanage a good one. This year was a good one. We did a better part by our orphan children than in several years, and let's keep up the good work and make this White Christmas a most wonderful one for them.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LaBINE

U. S. Ships May Be Registered Under European Neutral Flags In Effort to Circumvent Law

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

MARITIME:

Neutrality

Having fought for and having won "cash and carry" neutrality, the United States promptly sought ways to circumvent it. While American vessels and seamen loafed along the waterfronts, crafty minds were thinking up at least two ways of maintaining maritime traffic despite neutrality: (1) chartering foreign ships, a perfectly legal method used by Black Diamond Lines, Inc.; (2) registering U. S. ships with other nations, also legal but carrying a few potentially unpleasant implications.

MINISTER BRENNAN
The President sympathized

With its next meeting still a week away, the maritime commission was almost certain to refuse requests for transfer of some 90 U. S. vessels to Central or South American registry. When the idea was first broached, President Roosevelt supported it. Later, after getting a lecture from Secretary of State Cordell Hull, he told reporters that the more he thought about it, the more convinced he became that it wasn't right. Reason: It would place sister American republics in a neutrality position different from our own.

Loud as the complaints of American ship owners were those of lesser European neutrals whose thriving U. S. commerce was stopped by the neutrality law. Two loudest objectors were Eire and Belgium. The former sent its minister, Robert Brennan, to tell the state department that Eire should be excluded from the "combat zone" because she is neutral and will remain so; because Eire needs U. S. products; because Eire doesn't believe U. S. ships would be endangered visiting her ports. Belgium sent her Ambassador Count Robert Van Der Straten-Ponthoz to inquire about transferring U. S. ships to Belgian registry.

Certainly, commented the President, objections to Latin-American transfers wouldn't prevail in the case of European neutrals like Ireland. It was a pretty safe guess, therefore, that U. S. ships may soon sail under European flags.

EUROPE:

The War

Gone like sudden sunshine on a cloudy day was the Belgian-Dutch effort to make peace between Hitler and the allies. And after the sun came threats of rain, for it ended the last hope of armistice. There was still much saber rattling, such as Winston Churchill's speech calling Der Fuehrer a "cornered maniac," but the foes were ready to start slaughtering.

Sea and air warfare went ahead precipitously. One day Berlin announced (by inference) that henceforth all British-French merchantmen would be torpedoed. Reason: They're all armed. Next day, after a successful but pointless air attack on the Shetland islands. Berlin warned it would "show the British what it means to be at war with Germany." In 72 hours 11 ship were sunk, one a British destroye Britain, for her part, sank two Na merchantmen and a U-boat.

The week's most thought-provoking news dispatch came from Joh T. Whitaker of the Chicago Dail News, who cabled from Rome tha Der Fuehrer's position looked de perate. Said Whitaker: Hitler ha indecisively retreated after massin troops on the Belgian-Dutch fro tier; he can pierce the Maginot li only by wasting a million men; h can't break the British blockade Scandinavia opposes him, and strike at the Balkans will bring down the wrath of Russia and Italy each of which "has his measure." Conclusion: "He finds, for the first time . . . that the cards are no stacked against his immediate fo And as he delays, confusion and defeatism are inevitable at home . . ."

NAMES ... in the news

James Monroe Smith, ousted president of Louisiana State university, was given 8 to 24 years in prison for forgery, obtaining money under false pretenses and misuse of funds.

Al Smith Jr. was sworn in as New York city councilman, following the family's political footsteps.

Murry Guggenheim, 81, capitalistic member of the famous copper-mining family, died at New York.

Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm II was reported building a bomb-proof cellar at Doorn, Netherlands.

Moses Annenberg, Philadelphia publisher and erstwhile operator of a horse-race betting tip service, announced after a U. S. crackdown that he had "forever quit the business."

Finlandia

Leaving Moscow without customary diplomatic formalities, Finnish conferees returned to Helsingfors where awaiting officials already knew they had refused to grant Russian demands. Immediately the Soviet press began a withering anti-Finnish campaign which could only be a prelude to armed action. First, Moscow's Pravda claimed Finland was on the brink of economic ruin, but Helsingfors quietly replied the Finns could get along. Next, the Soviet news agency, Tass, accused Finnish ruling circles of fostering anti-Russian policy. Helsingfors answered by announcing there would be no resumption of conversations.

CRIME:

O'Hare-Capone

Who killed Cock Robin was never a greater mystery than who killed Edward J. O'Hare, Chicago race track owner whose assassination in early November set off the biggest gangland witchhunt since Alphonse Capone went to prison in 1932. Reasons: The murder came just before Capone was released, and O'Hare was known to have associations with Capone. Two theories to date:

(1) That O'Hare, as interim manager of the Capone gambling syndicate, was "rubbed out" because he refused to turn back the reins when "Scarface Al" was to be released.

(2) That O'Hare was slain by dissenting Capone mobsters who feared he would return the reins to Scarface Al.

The deeper federal and city investigators probed the mystery, the more complex it became. The more embarrassing, too, especially for one Judge Eugene J. Holland of Chicago municipal court, who was associated with O'Hare in a real estate enterprise. Officials wondered if there could be any connection between this and the fact that only 28 of the 12,624 Chicago gambling cases handled by Judge Holland in the past 15 months had resulted in convictions.

JUDGE HOLLAND
Embarrassed.

Two days before Capone's mysterious release in Philadelphia, a 21-year-old named Russell Stoddard was held by Los Angeles police after a mysterious stabbing. Not only did he claim to be a former O'Hare bodyguard, but officials found in his possessions a letter indicating that Stoddard knew who killed O'Hare.

COURTS:

5 to 4

Only two years have passed since Franklin Roosevelt sent the senate his first nominee to the Supreme court—Alabama's Sen. Hugo L. Black. Since then, one by one, have come Liberal Stanley Reed, Liberal Felix Frankfurter and Liberal Bill Douglas. With only four Roosevelt appointees, the nine-man court was still theoretically anti-New Deal.

This month died Justice Pierce Butler, 73-year-old conservative, a Catholic from Minnesota. When his successor is named, the New Deal will have an undisputed liberal majority which will last at least another generation. Among possible successors observers listed another midwest Catholic, Michigan's Frank Murphy.

Convict Builds an Organ in Prison

Chaplain Comments on Need; Prisoner Gets Busy.

MICHIGAN CITY, IND.—Because a "stick-up" man loves music, the Indiana state prison is getting an organ.

A prisoner, known to outsiders only as a number, but known to officials and fellow inmates as "Jim," is building an organ in the prison auditorium.

"Jim" is serving a 10-year sentence for armed robbery of a filling station. Before Jim's wife died and he "went off the deep end," he was a bank teller and cost accountant. The prisoner's hobby was playing the violin. He had been taught at one of the nation's foremost music schools.

Twenty-eight months ago, Chaplain Hall commented during services in the prison that the institution needed an organ but added that the state was unable to buy one.

Shortly afterward, Jim volunteered to construct an organ, although never had he had experience in building such an instrument. He wrote to his mother, who forwarded a book on organ building.

Jim found discarded lumber, pipe, wire and other necessary materials about the prison. Lumber was hollowed out to form the pipes in the institution's workshops.

Some one "lifted his organ building book, but Jim heard of Dr. William H. Barnes, of Evanston, Ill., organ architect, who wrote an encouraging letter and sent a blower, generator and motor. Later, Dr. Barnes visited the prison to watch the building. The state finally contributed $25 toward purchasing of material.

The organ contains 514 pipes in eight ranks and is of standard two manual size. The only other organ built inside prison walls, at Sing Sing, was destroyed by the inmate who constructed it on the day of his release.

COMMUNICABLE DISEASE REPORT MADE HERE

Five cases of typhoid fever, seven of scarlet fever, and eight of diphtheria have occurred in Chilton County during 1939, according to a report released by the Health Department. During November, there were two cases of diphtheria and one of scarlet fever. The death of a white child, age 4, resulted from diphtheria in Maplesville last week.

One case of Brill fever occurring in Clanton in a negro man was reported to the Health Department by a local physican this week. One suspected case of the same disease was seen near Clanton several months ago. Brills is a form of typhus fever, according to the local Health Officer. There are two forms of the disease: Old World or epidemic typhus and Brills or endemic typhus. The latter form is the type whch occurrs in Alabama and other southeastern states.

Endemic typhus, the Health Officer informs us, is transmitted by the bite of the rat flea. Rat extermination programs have been carried on in many South Alabama counties under the supervision of the State Health Department and as a result the typhus incidence in Alabama has been perceptibly lowered. The possibility of a focus of Birlls developing in Chilton was discussed by the Health Officer; it is his opinion that more than an occasional sporadic case should occur before one can conclude that the fever is becoming a health problem here.

Circle No. 6, Baptist W.M.U., Met

Mrs. J. P. Hayes was hostess on Monday of last week to the members of Circle Six of the Clanton Baptist W.M.U.

The occasion proved to be one of the most enjoyable of the year. The members of each Circle always look forward with a great deal of anticipation to the occasion during the year when Mrs. Hayes entertains their Circle. These special meetings are usually marked by a large attendance. The meeting Monday was no exception to this rule. Thirteen members were present.

The lives of Dr. J. T. Williams, Nancy Catherine Sewell, and Mrs. H. R. Moseley were most interestingly sketched by Mrs. W. J. Billingsley and Mrs. Reid Mullins. Through their personal acquaintance with two of these Missionaries, Mrs. Billingsley and Mrs. Mullins were able to give a more intimate portrayal of the lives of these christian workers.

Headache, Bad Breath, Tell Of More To Come

Just as Paul Revere's famous ride warned of the Redcoats' coming, so nature's messengers, headaches, biliousness, bad breath—often warn of faulty elimination.

Neglecting these signs may cause a host of constipation discomforts: sour stomach, belching: no appetite or energy, mental dullness.

It's so easy to wake up your lazy insides. Just take spicy, all vegetable BLACK DRAUGHT. Its unusual help comes from its principal ingredient—an intestinal tonic-laxative which imparts tone to lazy bowel muscles. Millions of packages used testify to BLACK-DRAUGHT'S merit. Try it.

The devotional and a short business session, conducted by Mrs. Willie Bean as chairman, preceded the Mission Study.

Tempting refreshments were served.

FOREST FIRE PREVENTION CAMPAIGN BEARS RESULTS

During the recent extremely dry weather in this County the forests were like tinder boxes, yet no fire of any importance was reported. This is most gratifying to members and staff at Camp SCS-7, Clanton, Alabama.

The Camp Forester has diligently trained crews for fire fighting, and was well prepared for any emergency. Despite the hard work, it is pleasant to know that it has not been necessary to pit the crew sagainst the enemy, "Fire.'

One crew engaged in collecting pine cones visited an abandoned saw mill site. Saw dust piles had caught fire, but owners of the adjacent property were patrolling the area to prevent spreading of this fire. Several years ago this was unheard of. At other mills visited, mill owners and operators were keenly aleart to their responsibilty and every effort was being made to prevent fires.

Forest fire prevention will bear results in saving of property loss, increasing timber stands, and better grades of timber. Chilton County is to be congratulated on their prevention of any major forest fire. The residents have cooperated almost 100 per cent.

Floyd News

Health of this community is very good at present, and we are thankful to say that we had an extra good Sunday School and paryer service Sunday and Sunday night. The crowd was not so large but all seemed to be in the right spirit. We are mighty proud of our little Church and our services and we are just hoping and trusting that our services will continue. We think that we are proud of the privilege of going out to the House of the Lord to worship, but we don't know how to appreciate this opportunity until misfortune comes our way, then we know who to call upon.

We had twenty-eight prayers and testamonies Sunday night, but we are hoping that this will be doubled or more next Sunday night.

We are proud that our young people are not ashamed to take part in the services. The young members have been conducting the prayer services but we are going to let the mothers take charge of it for a while fater next Sunday night, with Brother Daniel Hudman to conduct the services. We invite you to come and be with us.

"Uncle Natchel" Returns

Chilean Nitrate Radio Program Begins Its Fourth Year

Uncle Natchel and Sonny, the two characters who have won friends throughout the South, as the featured characters in the Chilean Nitrate of Soda advertising, return to radio beginning Saturday, November 25th, and Sunday, November 26th.

The new series of programs marks the fourth consecutive year that Uncle Natchel and Sonny have entertained over the air. Dramatic stories, based upon highlights of Southern history. are presented by a cast of actors headed by Frank Wilson, former star of Green Pastures, and Porgy, who has played the role of Uncle Natchel for the past four years.

The general style of program, which proved so successful last season is offered this year. Uncle Natchel, Sonny and the young folks go for a Sunday ramble in the woods. Old time songs are followed by an Uncle Natchel story, dramatizing an historical incident of the old South. Through the half-hour program, Uncle Natchel expounds his homely and home-spun "natchel" philosophy.

This program may be heard over Station WSFA, Montgomery, from 4:00 until 4:30 P.M. each day.

Harrison Of Shelby

Atticus Mullin in his "The Passing Throng". column in The Montgomery Advertiser, November 2, hands out the following compliment to our worthy young State Senator:

Harrison Of Shelby

Karl Harrison came to Montgomery this year as a new senator from Shelby. If we remember correctly his senatoral district is composed of the counties of Shelby, Chilton and Autauga. Good men have represented that senatorial district in the past.

Before Harrison came to Montgomery we heard some good words about him. We lived in Shelby in our youth and of course that was before Harrison began to be. But Karl Harrison fulfilled the predictions we heard. He made his senatorial district a good senator. He was respected and his word was regarded. As a newcomer we can say definitely that he made good. We will hear more of Harrison as we told him at the Capitol Wednesday

News from ISABELLA HIGH SCHOOL

The new gymnasium building is now under construction and should be finished within a few days. This building is the gymnasium that was formerly at Chilton County High School and was given to Isabella by the County Board of Education a few weeks ago. This new building will offer many advantages to the athletic department and is an improvement the school has long needed

The publishers of the student newspaper "Isabeta Black and Gold" are to be commended for their fine work. This paper is published monthly by the members of the Beta Club for the students' benefit.

Our English teacher, Mrs. Wells, has offered two cash prizes for the two students reading the most books, or literary articles from magazines, by the end of school. This is a new plan at Isabella to get students to adopt the reading habit as well as increase their knowledge. We believe her plan will be successful.

The Grammar School department will present a Christmas cantata December 10. The title of this entertainment feature is "When Santa Forgot The Smiths.". Everyone is invited to attend that night. Admission will be ten and twenty cents.

Football News

That great battle was fought last Friday, November 17, between those enemies, the Maplesville team and the Isabella Mustangs .This was one of the most interesting games of the year. Each school was trying to outwit the other.

Maplesville scored twice in the first quarter, driving the line for the first goal, and intercepting a pass for the second. During the second quarter Isabella made her third touchdown and an extra point. The Mustangs got on their feet in the third quarter and made four first downs. One of the downs was made with a pass from Davis to Klinner.

During the fourth quarter Isabella scored with Roy Davis carrying the ball. At his side was that long, tall quarterback, Earl Clenner, completing a pass. The Mustang line did a splendid job on holding, and Latham did fine on carrying the ball.

It has always been a battle and always will be, when it comes to this game each year, for the Mustangs never give up.

Isabella's last game will be played next Friday with Centreville.

Teamwork!

THE STANDS roar as the home team crashes through for a touchdown—the payoff for the teamwork of a charging line, blocking backs and a driving ball carrier.

In everyday life, the state watches intently from the sidelines as Alabama's aggressive ABC Board drives ahead towards its goal of elimination of any undesirable conditions in retail beer outlets.

Running interference in this drive we find public opinion, public officials, and the beer industry itself as represented by their committee.

That's teamwork, too!

—20—

The coroner came: a cheerful, smiling, cherubic person who was addicted to telling jokes. In the car with him were two deputy sheriffs, whose trip to the Gardens had been suggested by their chief.

The sheriff had waved the crowd back and was looking down at the sardonic face of Kirk Reynolds. He said, "Whoever killed him took a punch at him first. See that cut under his eye."

"Sho' I see it. I also see that stab wound in his throat." Georgie laughed lightly. "He wasn't kilt by no woman, Floyd."

"No-o, he wasn't killed by a woman."

Coroner Gattles rubbed pink palms together. "And he wasn't no loss to Beauregard County, neither."

"Maybe not. But it's always kind of tough, getting murdered. Been too all-fired many killin's around heah recently."

Georgie asked, "Got any ideas, Floyd?"

"P'raps."

"Meanin' you don't aim to talk right now?"

"Meanin' just exactly that, Georgie."

"Hmm! You always was tight-lipped." He gazed appreciatively down a corridor arched by cypress branches. "Real purty out heah, ain't it?"

"Yeah . . . Right nice."

"Where's the fam'ly at?"

"Up to the house, I reckon."

They were sitting around the living-room, making a heroic effort to hide the fear which oppressed all of them. Barney perched on the arm of the big easy-chair in which Kay's slender figure was almost lost. He rose to answer a knock at the door, and Kay heard his voice, "Good morning, Mr. Forrest. Come in. You, too, Andy."

Kay's father and brother entered, the broad-shouldered figure of the latter almost hiding Mr. Forrest's slender height. They said good morning to the others and came straight across to Kay. Andrew Forrest's gentle voice was calm and reassuring, though his tired eyes were disturbed. He said, "George Gattles told everybody in Beverly why he had been called out here. We came right away."

Kay bit her lip. There was something in her father's manner which she could not grasp . . . a subtle reticence which eluded her. She asked, "You know all about it?"

"Everybody in Beverly knows by now," said Andy.

"What do they know?"

"Nothing, except that Kirk Reynolds has been killed."

Andrew Forrest dropped his hand on his daughter's shoulder. "Don't you reckon you'd better come home, Kay?"

She nodded. "I suppose so . . ."

"I think it'd be wise. I'll talk to Floyd while you pack up."

Kay looked startled. The words were out before she thought. She said, "I'm all packed."

For just an instant, Andrew Forrest looked startled. Then he said, "I'll see Floyd right now," and went out of the front door. Andy sat down near his sister.

"Kind of tough luck, Sis."

He was kindly . . . which was unlike Andy.

There were good-bys, and Mrs. Hamilton begged Kay to come back soon. Briefly, Barney backed her into a corner and took her hands. His palms were cold.

"You're quite all right, honey?"

"Yes . . . Oh! Barney, you're sure . . ."

"I told you the truth." His fingers were tight on hers. "I'll be driving into town—often."

"Please. I need you so much."

They put Kay's suit-case in the tonneau of the little car and all three of them sat in the front seat, with Andy at the wheel and Kay in the middle. They moved through lanes of tourist cars and swung right on the dirt highway. Not until then did Mr. Forrest speak.

"You're sure you're all right, Kay?"

"I suppose so." She closed her eyes.

The fresh, clean odor of pine helped clear her brain. She stole a glance at her brother's face, strong and determined without being sharp . . . the face of an average, good young man. A dependable face. She spoke to both . . . without looking at either.

"What happened after you left me last night?"

Mr. Forrest answered. "We drove right home."

"Did you meet anybody?"

"Where?"

"In the Gardens?"

Mr. Forrest put his hand over hers. "We didn't meet Kirk Reynolds—if that's what you mean."

Andy said, "We didn't meet a soul—except cars we passed on the way home."

She stole a glance at her brother's face, strong and determined.

Kay said, "Somebody killed Kirk . . . and I was afraid that . . ."

"I understand."

"But you don't understand—not really. Kirk came last night to take me back to Beverly with him . . . to make me live with him as his wife. That's why I was so nervous when you and Andy showed up. I was afraid you'd meet him. And when I heard—this morning—what had happened, I thought . . . well, I thought maybe you had met him."

Mr. Forrest shook his head. "No, we didn't meet him."

"But you could have. He was due there about that time."

"We didn't meet him!" Andy's voice was metallic. "We've told you that a dozen times."

Kay subsided. Her father said, "I'm mighty sorry, Kay . . ."

"I don't know what to do. Don't you see, Dad, somebody did kill Kirk. You say it wasn't you or Andy. I don't believe Jim Owenby did it—although he was out there alone for a long time. And . . ."

"Where was Barney?"

"He was outside, too. That's what scares me."

"What does he say?"

"He says he didn't do it. Everybody says that."

"Let's not talk about it now, dear." Andrew Forrest's voice was calm, reassuring. "After we get home—after you've begun to feel better—there are heaps of things we can talk about. You can tell me the truth about this marriage business now, can't you?"

She nodded. "Yes, of course. Now."

Kay and Mrs. Forrest had never been too close to one another. Kay was too much like her father, too little tolerant of her mother's granite virtues. She anticipated with dread the tears and condemnation, the inescapable "You see what you've done" . . . "If you'd only kept away from that man . . ."

Andy parked at the curb and Kay and her father walked up to the house together. They opened the front door and Kay stepped inside.

Mrs. Forrest came to meet her: short and sturdy and firm. And then a queer thing happened. Mrs. Forrest did not scold, she did not condemn, she did not say, "I told you so."

She opened her arms and Kay slid into their haven. She heard a note in her mother's voice that she had not heard since earliest girlhood. Sympathy and kindness. She heard her mother saying, "My poor baby . . ."

Kay broke down. The sobs which had tortured her by their very repression broke forth. She clung tight . . . her defenses destroyed by this unexpected gentleness.

"Oh! Mother . . ." she sobbed, like a little girl, "Oh, Mother . . . I'm so glad to be home . . !"

Doc Morrison said, "I'm getting damned sick and tired of it," and Mrs. Tandy answered, "Why Doctor, I don't know what you mean."

Doc elevated his lanky frame from the ancient, creaky swivel chair and paced his musty office.

"You know dog-gone good and well what I mean, Martha Tandy. I mean this everlasting gossip about Kay Forrest."

"Kay Reynolds," sniffed the dumpy little lady virtuously. "She is his widow, you know. And she didn't even go to the funeral."

"Why should she? And why can't Beverly leave her alone? She's a nice kid."

"Hmph! Brought it on herself—that's what I say."

"You and a thousand others. Well, you listen to me, I'm not hearing any more of it. I'm a medical man, not a gossip hound."

"But Doctor—"

"Don't but me, Woman. And you can tell all your friends to keep their comments to themselves. Tell 'em if they've got to talk, to get another doctor."

"But Doc . . ." Mrs. Tandy affectionately used the nickname by which all Beauregard County knew this kindly man . . . "We can't get along without you. You know that."

"Oh! you can't, eh? Well, you will if you don't quit rakin' Kay Forrest over the coals every time you see me."

She—and many of her friends—loved and needed Doc. He treated them free and with moderate expertness. What he lacked in the knowledge of modern medicine, he more than atoned for in practical experience and keen interest.

Doc's position in the community was unique. Children adored him and older folks loved him. Other medicos laughed good-naturedly about his old-fashioned methods and his startling lack of proper education, but everybody admitted that he was a grand person to have about when the illness was of the ordinary run-of-the-mine sort.

The Beverly Star, a weekly publication, had made mention of several things:

"The funeral of our fellow-citizen, Mr. Kirk Reynolds, was solemnized yesterday morning at Beverly Cemetery, the Rev. David Ferguson of Springdale preaching a fine sermon.

"Mr. Reynolds met his unfortunate death recently by being stabbed by some one unknown. He grew up in Beverly and was well known.

"Funeral services were conducted by Layton & Cross, our expert undertakers."

Calera-Columbiana Gap To Be Paved

Senator Karl Harrison was advised by Superintendent of the Highway Department, C. J. Sherlock Monday that the money had been set aside to pave the four mile stretch of unpaved road on Highway No. 25 between Calera and Columbiana and work would start the first of the year. As pavement of this nature can only be done successfully at certain temperatures it would be advisable to wait until spring to do the work.—Shelby County Reporter.

Funeral services were held from the Thorsby Baptist Church the following Saturday morning at 10:30 with the Rev. M. I. McLeod, pastor, in charge. Interment was in the Thorsby cemetery with Martin & Sons in charge.

The Tuscaloosa-Tuckabutche Trail

That University-Capitol highway just keeps on bobbing up, but we are going right on insisting that it be called the Tuskaloosa-Tuckabutche Trail, because along this trail travelled many of the pioneer families to settle among hostile Indians and help carve out of the wilderness under the most trying circumstances, what is now Alabama.

Anyway Tuscaloosa News has a bit of good news on this, what many think, should have been Alabama's No. 1 Highway. Says the News:

Again comes good news on the University Highway in the revelation by the State Highway Department that it has been placed on the list as federal aid road No. 1 in this state.

The Tuscaloosa Board of Revenue has been actively at work in behalf of this road for months and last week in Montgomery it received reassuring word that our section of the highway, at least, would become a reality before long.

This University Highway is desired not only by Montgomery and Tuscaloosa, and the people along the route; it is desired by thousands of people all over the state who would find it of incalculable service in moving traffic over an important area which now has only the most primitive of facilities.

The Board of Revenue believes that the state will advertise for contracts on the Tuscaloosa County part of the highway early in the year (the first of January is only two months and a week away,) with work to start not later than early summer. Meantime, Bibb County is busying itself with an ambitious highway program, including the largest slice of the University Highway in any one county along the route. For this all-important road, things again are looking up.

The Centreville Press reprinted our article "Two Boulevards" last week, and added this comment:

NOTE—We have always contented that Chilton County is one of the most progressive small counties in Alabama. They have a prosperous county and do things in a big way. We sincerely hope that they can be depended upon to carry out their end of the road when our part is completed.

It is true that The Tuscaloosa News and The Centreville Press have had a lot to say about this road, because it seemed that Chilton County was not concerned about the road in the least, and the whole state is very anxious for this most important road to be built. Bibb County with its limited resources cannot be expected to do as much as Chilton County, but we are doing the best we can. Before the end of this administration, every unpaved highway in Bibb County will have been paved (58 miles) which is over twice as much as has ever been offered this county in any other administration.

P. O. Davis, agricultural extension director, addressing the Montgomery Rotary Club at its annual barbecue, suggested that the national income could be easily increased a hundred billion dollars, with Alabama receiving two billions, through full cooperation of agriculture, industry, labor and capital. He further suggested that the first step toward this goal would be the effort by the leaders of each group to understand each other.

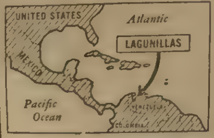
NEWS QUIZ

Know your news? Each of the following questions counts 20. Score: 100, excellent; 80, good; 60, average; 40, poor; 20 or 0, tsk! tsk!



1. Arrow on above map points to Lagunillas, Venezuela. It was in the news because: (A) the new U. S.-Venezuela trade pact was signed there; (B) 500 were killed in a fire; (C) a two-headed baby was born there.

2. The Neva river, running through Leningrad, Russia, overflowed its banks although no dams or dykes were broken, and no rain fell. Russia blamed Finland. Why?

3. Thousands of trees uprooted in the 1938 New England hurricane have just been disposed of. How?

4. What former senator from California recently boomed President Roosevelt for a third term?

5. Prince Frederick Wilhelm, youngest son of the former German crown prince, was reportedly: (A) beheaded as an anti-Nazi plotter; (B) hinted as Adolf Hitler's successor; (C) killed at the western front.

(Answers at bottom of column.)

CONGRESS:

Annuities

Exempted from social security are some 10,000,000 self-employed persons, agricultural workers and domestics, who thus receive no retirement income at age 65. Also exempted are minor groups like seamen. At the next congressional session, announced New York's Sen. Robert Wagner, he will introduce a government-sponsored voluntary annuity plan whereby anyone making the necessary payments can buy an annuity paying $1,200 a year at age 60 or 65, i. e., $100 a month. The chief Wagner argument: That such annuities can be handled by the U. S. at a substantially lower cost than private insurance companies. A high insurance executive, he said, had raised no objection to the plan.

SENATOR WAGNER
How much saved?

Nevertheless, critics got to work immediately. Though admitting private firms now make a substantial profit, it was asserted the U. S. must use the same mortality tables and can therefore save no more than an approximate 2.1 per cent agent's commission on its annuities.

Tax Fight

Tax revision may be No. 1 on the congressional agenda January 3. A hint that not even the administration knows what to do about it, appeared when Acting Secretary of the Treasury John W. Hanes criticized the proposal of Marriner S. Eccles, federal reserve chairman, to adopt higher taxes and thus pay for next year's fiscal deficit. Commented Mr. Hanes: ". . . I don't think he spoke for the administration . . . I doubt if he spoke for congress . . ."

INDUSTRY:

Man With Stick

When the justice department's Trust Buster Thurman Arnold shows his face, any well-trained industrialist rushes to get his books in order. Thus far Mr. Arnold's big stick has struck at the railroads, movies, building industry, aluminum, medicine and many a lesser trade or profession. This month he struck again:

At Los Angeles a federal grand jury indicted 41 major and secondary oil companies and two associations on charges of conspiring to raise artificially and maintain gasoline prices on the Pacific coast (Oregon, Washington, California, Arizona and Nevada). In this region, says the indictment, the defendants control 95 per cent of gasoline sales.

News Quiz Answers

1. (B) is correct. One of Lagunillas' major oil terminals exploded.
2. "Because of winds from Finland" was the Soviet explanation, which charged Finland with failure to inform Russia of meteorological conditions.
3. Sold for $14,400,000 to a lumber wholesalers' co-operative.
4. William Gibbs McAdoo.
5. (A) is correct. The report was later denied.

OPPORTUNITY FOR FARMERS

Elsewhere in this issue of Chilton County News is an advertisement of J. D. Mize of Maplesville who wants to buy persimmon and Dogwood billets

Here is a splendid chance for farmers to fill in the gap caused by the wet weather and the drouth which followed last summer. The persimmon and dogwood timber is scarce, but it is bringing a good price. Read the ad.

ONLY EIGHT LOCKED UP BY SHERIFF AND FORCE

Things have been pretty quiet since last week, if the commitment record book in the office of Sheriff W. G. Culp can be any barometer. Only eight persons were placed in the county jail during the past week. One of these offenders of the law was charged with manufacturing whiskey.

Cecil Carlee was suprised by officers as he busied himself with making a "run" of illicit beverage over in the northwestern section of the County. The still was a thirty-gallon outfit. The officers destroyed the still, poured out two gallons of whiskey, two six-gallon barrels of beer and brought Carlee to jail. He was the only person at the still at the time of the raid.

Others placed in jail are as follows: Public drunkenness, 4; Driving while intoxicated, 1; Burglary, 1; Carrying concealed pistol, 1.

Local highway patrolmen were responsible for part of the above arrests.

n The Kitchen—at sweet aroma of roast turkey nating from the kitchen at our e tells us this IS Thanksgiving and a presidential April fool.

fter listening to reports made by ral of the boys around town who been hunting this season, we had st worked up a desire to try our with the field piece this Thanksng Day. We've decided not to go ing however, for there's no use ing ourself into believing we'd be ucky as those fellows. It's a funniy , too. We've never been able to half as many squirrels or birds as other hunters report. There's a larity between that and the reports as mileage attained by friend autoers and the mileage we've been acomed to getting. It just doesn't hap- to us—and maybe not to them.

na' Be Good—
he Clanton Kiwanis Club is preing a negro minstrel December 15. , this is gonna' be good! Can you ure fellows like Charlie Breedlove, ton Walker, T.E. Wyatt, John Hol- Homer Roberts and others, singing, -cracking and doing everything they in a minstrel—with their faces kened and their voices immitating colored characters? We'd start hing right now, except they's put finger on us too, and that makes o laughing matter for us and maynot for the audience. Make plans to resent at this entertainment. THEY going to be good—and we're going be scared stiff.

Bus Station's Greyhound—
t night you can now see the faar greyhound trade mark over the Station here. A new neon electric has been erected. Manager Lanter is quite proud of the new sign. nton was once the midway stop been Birmingham and Montgomery for reyhound line. Thorsby now is. ks like Thorsby rates higher than nton. Why?

March Of Progress—
omthing in the way of the March Progress is told about one of Clan's best known citizens, Mr. H. T. es. Here's the way it goes: It aprs that Mr. Pipes attended the [illegible] meeting in Montgomery the er day, which was some sort of a together for the Shriners of this the Montgomery section. As Mr. es is a devout Shriner, he has atded these meetings in Montgomery many years. The story goes that E Kirkpatrick, well known and Montgomery Coroner, when he d Mr. Pipes the other day said: ll, well, here's my old friend Pipes, can always be depended on to ere every year on time. You know, years ago Pipes owned a steel- buggy which was the modern in those days, and he had to Clanton a day early in order to here in time for the meeting— he got here. Several years later purchased himself a rubber-tired and he'd leave only about a day before the scheduled hour of meeting—and he still arrived on For the past several years he has coming down in an auto, and of was always on time. Now, you what happened today? The old left Clanton only a few minutes and flew down in an AEROPLANE still he made it on time."

Civic Responsibility—
opening of the Christmas Seal Campaign should meet with a response on the part of the ens of our City and County. Again ear as in the past, there is much that can be done to help combat the dreaded disease known as Tuberculosis through our purchase and use of Christmas seal. If you receive a sheet through the mails remember that they are being sent to you with the hope that you will remit the money to those in charge of the drive. They are being mailed to you with the belief that you will not shirk what cannot be denied is a civic responsibility. Think twice before you mail them back or casually lay them aside. Your remittance will mean a good bit in the fight against tuberculosis. It is a fact that only recently you were perhaps called upon to contribute to the Red Cross, and you might be inclined to conclude that it is "one thing after another," but only stop and think—remember that this is a season of the year when we should be thankful, and to be thankful we must remember those in less fortunate circumstances. If you fail to receive seals through the mails, call for them at the several drug stores and at the office of the Health Department. We say again, this is your civic responsibility, to join in the fight against a disease that ranks among the leading causes of death in the nation.

EMERGENCY CROP AND FEED LOANS READY

APPLICATIONS BEING RECEIVED FOR LOANS AT FARM AGENT'S OFFICE BY CAPT. HARKINS

Emergency crop and feed loans for 1940 are now available to farmers in Chilton County, and applications for these loans are now being received at the County Agent's office by Capt. W. C. Harkins, Field Supervisor of the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Section of the Farm Credit Administration.

This early opening of the loan program in Chilton County is part of a plan recently announced by the Farm Credit Administration whereby emergency crop and feed loans are being made available immediately to all areas where farming conditions are seriously affected this year by drought or flood.

These loans will be made, as in the past, only to farmers whose cash requirements are small and who cannot obtain a loan from any other source, including production credit associations, banks or other prvate concerns or individuals.

As in former years, the money loaned will be limited to the applicant's necessary cash needs in preparing and cultivating his 1940 crops or in purchasing or producing feed for his livestock.

Borrowers who obtain loans for the production of cash crops are required to give as security a first lien on the crop financed or, in the case of loans for the purchase or production of feed for livestock, a first lien on the livestock to be fed.

Thanksgiving---

PROSPERITY
For the highest standard of living ever attained by any people. For an America where the common man is better off than many a foreign potentate.

PEACE
In a world torn with war we give thanks for the American way of Peace. Here there are no rumbling guns nor marching men.

FREEDOM
For freedom of thought, of action, of conscience. For those time tried principles which have made America what it is today—the greatest nation on the face of the globe.

For these and many other things we give thanks at this time each year. But mere thanks are not enough. Let us strive with all our ability to see that America continues to enjoy prosperity, peace and freedom!

"General Ben M. Smith,
"Adjutant General of Alabama,
"Montgomery, Alabama.

"Dear Ben:

"I enclose herewith a further reply from the Secretary of War to my recent letter relative to the National Guard situation, which is self-explanatory.

"I am quite confident that when the situation permits, will get additional troops in Alabama. Needless to say, it has afforded me unusual pleasure to contrbute my bit toward that end.

"Incidentally, when we do get these troops, I know you will not overlook Clanton which I think is the best bet in the State for a Guard company and that you will, at least, explore the possibility of locating one at Livingston.

"With kind personal regards and every good wish to you and yours, in which Beryl joins, I am,

"Your friend.

Herald Would Name Hoover As Mediator

The editors of Zions Herald, independent Methodist weekly, of Boston, announced last week they would publish an editorial this week in support of a proposal that former President Herbert Hoover intervene in an effort to bring peace to Europe.

Describing Hoover, a Quaker, as "the world's last desperate hope for peace," the Herald says the suggestion was first made at a church meeting in Newton Center, Mass., and subsequently ratified by other meetings in New York and New England.

If the Christian churches of America would exert the same amount of energy in an effort to stop the European holocaust that they exerted at the beginning of the trouble, in the misguided effort to "save the world for democracy," they could wield a wonderful influence in bringing peace to the world.

We, The People, Should Protect Our Own Against Paternalistic Encroachment

We have said it before, we are saying it now: The Alabama Power Company has done more for the progress, prosperity, civic advancement, comfort and well-being of the people of Alabama, than any other utility or industry within the State's borders.

The unfair fight being waged against the Company and its stockholders (mostly Alabamians) by a tax-supported Federal function, under the guise of lending aid to a distressed people, was plainly revealed last week by President Thomas W. Martin, when he clashed with D. E. Lillienthal, TVA spokesman, at LaFayette, Aabama. Mr. Martin said:

"The statements of Mr. Lilienthal against power companies in the South in general, and in the Central South in particular, are so misleading, so far from factual and so shot through with prejudice that it is hard to conceive that a man in his position would be willing to father them.

"Without attempting to answer in statements, I present the following facts outstanding in Alabama Power Company's long history of effort and achievement in advancing rural electrification in Alabama and the success that has attended these efforts:

62,000 rural residents in towns of less than 2,500 population and outside the boundary lines of any town, receive electric service. This is two-thirds of the Company's total residential customers. They receive service from thousands of miles of line built since the first experimental rural line was built in 1923. They receive electric service at rates which have steadily declined. They receive service from thousands of miles of line built since the first experimental rural line was built in 1923.

They are visited regularly by experienced agricultural engineers on the staff of Alabama Power Company, who counsel with the farmer regarding the efficient and economical use of various equipment suitable for farm use.

Where new groups of rural residents desire electric service, these engineers make careful surveys, to determine if the line can be built at a cost to make electric service possible within the buying ability of the residents who desire to be served, and to avoid the injustice and financial burden to the customer that results where lines which are not economically sound are built.

"After construction of rural lines by Alabama Power Company, the rural residents are not asked to maintain them. Their maintenance becomes the responsibility of Alabama Power Company and electricity reaches the farmer with almost the same dependability and regularity which the city dweller enjoys.

"Alabama Power Company has experimented with uses for electricity on farms even before adequate electrical equipment for farm use had been manufactured. It helped pioneer the development of such equipment. Its work in rural electrification has been so outstanding that it was awarded the medal for the greatest achievement in this respect of any private utility in the United States.

"Alabama Power Company rural line extensions in the Tallapoosa area were proposed by Alabama Power Company long before the government gave its money to the cooperative. The Company was the first in the field with its construction crews and its facilities, and its lines were well underway before the cooperative began its construction work. Our service will be far superior because we have a great number of points from which our distribution lines in this area will receive their energy supply. The cooperative will have only one point. We will maintain in the area a number of crews to repair lines and to maintain service. It is doubtful whether the cooperative will be able to maintain more than one crew.

"It is apparent that Mr. Lillienthal is continuing the campaign of defamation of utilities which has made it impossible for utilities in the area of TVA to refinance or to raise new money for construction. If Mr. Lillienthal and others in his position would cease their unfair and untrue attacks, the public would be astonished at the developments that could be gotten underway, and calling for the expenditure of millions of dollars which would result in the empoyment of thousands of men, and make it unnecessary for the government to spend millions of dollars which it is spending in needlessly developing Federal power projects. Those dollars might better be conserved for the future when they might possibly be needed in the national defense.

"In our appeal to the agencies of the Government for a national solution of the senseless duplication of electrical facilities, we have frequently pointed out that the actions on policies of governmental agents do not jibe with the expressions of the President of the United States in a letter addressed to Senator Byrnes on July 21, 1939, in which the President stated that certain suggested appropriations were to be used to serve 'rural families not now receiving electric service nor likely to receive such service in the near future.' The course pursued in Alabama by the REA has in many instances been directly opposite to that indicated by the President.

"I believe that the people of Alabama know that Alabama Power Company has not been remiss in its efforts toward the rural and industrial development of Alabama, and that when they place the known facts alongside Mr. Lilienthal's misstatements, the Alabama Power Co. can be content with the conclusions that honest and fair-minded citizens will reach."

To Ease Women's Pain: "Build-Up"

Do you suffer periodically from headaches, nervousness, irritability, restlessness or cramp-like pains? If so, here's good news! These may be symptoms of functional dysmenorrhea, which is so often caused by undernourishment. By improving the appetite, digestion, assimilation, through the proper use of CARDUI, women by thousands find they are able to build strength, energy, and nerve-force. Thus periodical pain is relieved for many users of CARDUI. By taking it just before and during "the time," women by thousands report that CARDUI also helps to ease the pain and discomfort of the period.

MORAL ECHOES

W Haskew

Often it is true that two bad mistakes are made when a young person is selecting a life companion. The girl makes when she selects a young man who is not able or wlling to produce something for the young bride to cook. Then a young man makes a sad mistake when he selects a young lady who is not able or willing to cook what he produces. In a large per cent of the cases where the young man and the young woman make the same mistake when they become man and wife, that union is headed for the rocks. Parents make a sad mistake themselves when they fail to teach the young man how to produce something to cook and fail to teach the daughter how to cook what is produced.

A Kentucky planter needed a strong young man to drive his spirited mules, A strange young darkey appeared and asked for the job. The team was hitched to the wagon and a brand new black-snake whip was placed in his hands and the lines turned over to him. As the mules moved away the new driver moved his hands over the black whip, and then made it circle his head and he flicked a beautiful butterfly from a clover blossom on the roadside. Then he flicked a bubble. The owner of the team as he looked on said: "Not so bad, my man." Down the road they were passing a hornet's nest by the roadside. Three or four hornets stood at the door of the nest and looked defiance at the team passing by. "Try your hand on that nest, Sam," said the boss man. "Yes, sah, I kin hit it boss", replied the new driver. "But I ain't gwine to—dem rascals am organized." If you see my point you know that I am talking of the strength of organization. When a family a church, a community, a nation is organized, better let them all alone.

One day I saw a little girl with her books in her arms and I asked: "Daughter, do you like to go to school?" Her reply was honest and sincere. She said: "Yes, Doctor Haskew, I like to go to school and then I like to go home, but I do not like much the staying at school and the staying at home between times." I have thought many time that the little girl gave a perfect picture of this age in which we live. We want to be forever on move. We do not like to stay anyw very long at a time. Our age is on the question of going—not liv

The mother expecting a fession from the boy that involved injustice that he had experience seen, replied: "Why no, my son, would be very wrong." The little low threw his arms around his m er's neck and said: "Thank you, m er. I have not brought in that for the stove that you told me to in and I was afraid that you w punish me." The wit of the lad ca him to escape the licking that he ably needed, but that is not the philosophy of life. The most of punishments will come from the th that we have failed to do. Justice that we deserve punishment when fail to keep the law and fail to the commands of God.

The newspaper report said further: "The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Forrest of Chicora Avenue, this city, has returned from a visit to Cathedral Gardens where she was the house-guest of Mrs. Ruth Hamilton and family."

And:

"Sheriff Floyd Griffin reports that he has not made any arrests in connection with the unhappy demise of the late Mr. Kirk Reynolds. He says, however, that his staff of deputies are hard at work on the cal interest in this tragedy."

Barney Hamilton made daily visits to the Forrest home, which fact case There was a great deal of lo- rivet the attention of neighbors They watched for his little car, and timed his visits—promptly reporting their findings to friends. They speculated about what happened inside the house and declared that the situation was disgraceful, because after all, wasn't Kay a widow? And wasn't she entertaining a young man within a week of her husband's death?

Townsfolk were wondering what the authorities intended to do about it. Not that anyone cared particularly about Kirk not that kind words were said about him, even now But there was curiosity to be satisfied, and for several days the life of Gabe Dixon, Solicitor of the Seventh Judicial Circuit, had been anything but pleasant.

He sat now in his office, coat off, sleeves rolled above the elbow, cheroot in mouth, feet cocked on the paper-strewn desk. His stenographer came through the door and closed it carefully behind her.

She said, "Somebody to see you, Mr Dixon."

"Who?"

The young lady came closer.

"It's that woman," she whispered.

"What woman?"

"That woman from the hotel. Sonia Henkel."

CHAPTER XI

Gabe Dixon, Solicitor of the Seventh Judicial Circuit, prided himself upon being, at all times and under all circumstances, a gent. He gave proof of this now by removing his feet from the desk-top as Sonia Henkel entered the room. His shifty, watery eyes blinked and his prominent Adam's apple bobbed excitedly as he murmured, "Siddown, Miss Henkel," and jerked his head in the direction of a cane-bottom chair near the desk.

Mr. Dixon scrutinized his visitor keenly. He had heard all about Sonia (not without personal interest) and had seen her occasionally on the street but this intimate view was more than a trifle intriguing.

The silence was broken by Babe's low-pitched, husky voice. "You're the district attorney?"

"Yes'm. We call it Solicitor down heah

"I've got to talk to you about something important."

She said, tensely, "There are some things you ought to know about Kirk Reynolds" She hesitated, but only for a moment. "He killed Harvey Jackson."

"Yes'm. I know."

"You couldn't know. You could only suspect."

Gabe's watery eyes betrayed interest. "How come you to know it for sure, Miss Henkel?"

"Kirk told me, and I don't mind telling you because nothing—nothing more—can happen to him now."

"That's right, ma'am."

"Kirk went to that dance three weeks ago with Kay Forrest. They went for a ride afterwards. He had trouble on the road with Jackson, and killed him. He didn't think anybody would suspect, so he didn't do anything at first." Babe was speaking carefully. "Then he heard that folks were talking . . . so he made Kay Forrest marry him because in this State a wife can't be made to testify against her husband."

"Yes'm. Kirk was a pretty smart lad."

"Anyway—that's the story. It's true, and you know it's true."

"Mm-hmm! I reckon I do. But Kirk is dead now."

"Yes " Her eyes clouded. "And I know who killed him—and why."

Mr. Dixon was uncouth and none too literate, but he was shrewd. He asked softly, "Is that what you come to tell me?"

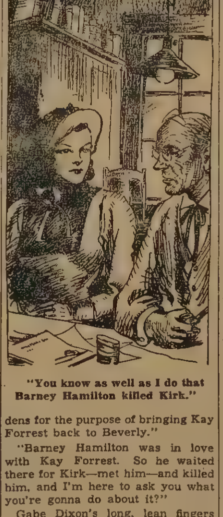
"Yes."

'Well, ma'am, I'd sho' be glad to hear the truth Who was it?"

Tiny points of light glinted in her black eyes She said, "Barney Hamilton!"

"Hmmm You sure?"

"Yes. Now listen, the night Kirk was killed he went to Cathedral Gardens for the purpose of bringing Kay Forrest back to Beverly."



"You know as well as I do that Barney Hamilton killed Kirk."

"Barney Hamilton was in love with Kay Forrest. So he waited there for Kirk—met him—and killed him, and I'm here to ask you what you're gonna do about it?"

Gabe Dixon's long, lean fingers closed about the bowl of an ancient pipe. He filled it with tobacco and tamped it down carefully. Then he held a match to it and inhaled deeply. His voice was distant and impersonal. "Got any real evidence, Miss Henkel?"

"Evidence? Ain't that enough evidence?"

Gabe shook his head. "No'm, I'm afraid it ain't. Just the fact that young Hamilton was there don't mean nothing. Other folks were there, too."

She shrugged impatiently. "I know all about them. This Owenby guy and Kay's father and brother. But they didn't have any reason for killing Kirk?"

"No? Now just for the sake of argument, ma'am—let me show you just how much reason they had. Jim Owenby had been Harvey Jackson's best friend, and he knew dawg-gone good and well that Kirk killed Harvey. So that takes care of him. And Andrew and Andy Forrest well, you ain't from Beauregard County, Miss Henkel so maybe you wouldn't understand that the menfolks don't usually stand back and see their women pushed around by men they don't like. So it could easy have been either Mr. Forrest or Andy."

Babe said, "You're stalling."

"Me?"

"Yeh—you! You know as well as I do that Barney Hamilton killed Kirk, and you're using these other three birds as excuses not to do anything."

"But ma'am—beggin' your pardon—that ain't no-ways true. There cain't nobody be convicted without evidence, and even if what you been telling me is true—there ain't any proof. So all I'd get for trying Barney Hamilton now would be an acquittal, and then he'd be safe for the rest of his life."

"You mean you're not going to have him indicted?"

"Not now, ma'am. I sho' ain't."

"You're gonna let a murderer go free?"

"Now ma'am . . . that ain't no way to put it. It's just that there ain't a lick of sense prosecutin' somebody when you ain't got the evidence to convict. That's all."

She whirled, and her husky voice had become harsh. She said, "Just because he was a gambler—"

"No'm, that ain't it."

"Aah! Nuts! I'm sick and tired of this lousy hick-town and its politics I can't give you any votes, that's why you're telling me where to get off. If it was the other way around "

Gabe Dixon was slow to anger, but Sonia Henkel's words had cut deep. He rose and spoke with unaccustomed dignity. "Listen, ma'am I don't blame you for gittin' all excited about this heah mess. No matter what Kirk Reynolds was—you liked him. An' he liked you, too, I reckon. But just because you got an idea that Barney Hamilton killed him ain't no reason for me to fly off half-cocked, an' all your swearin' ain't a-goin' to make me do it, either."

"You mean you're going to let Barney Hamilton go free?"

"Until we git somethin' against him, yes'm, I am."

Babe was trembling. "I might've figured I didn't have a chance. Well, let me tell you something, Mister District Attorney, you're not dealing with any small-time dame now, and if you think I'm gonna take this sitting down, you're mistaken."

"Ma'am, I don't give a durn if you sit down or not. Honest, I don't."

"Gettin' funny, ain't you? Having your little joke! Well grab this, the joke'll be on you before it's over."

"Now, ma'am . . ."

"I'm fed up with men that say 'Ma'am' and 'Miss' and then try to give me another shove in the wrong direction. Why don't you tell me straight out to go roll my hoop? Why don't you admit that the whole town is glad that Kirk was killed, and it'd be bad politics for you to prosecute anybody for killing him? Why don't you start a fund for buying Barney Hamilton a medal? Why don't "

"Now, Miss Henkel—you're gittin' mad again."

"Mad! Mad! Well, you listen to me—and listen close: I'm not quitting, not by a long shot. I never could do much for Kirk when he was alive, but I can now. And I will!"

"No?" Gabe's voice was edgy "I wouldn't go foolin' around too much ma'am."

Kay Forrest sat alone in the living-room of her home Andy, who was working nights—had gone down to the garage Mr Forrest was upstairs poring over Supreme Court decisions From the hallway came the drone of Mrs Forrest's voice as she discussed – interminably – the menu for the next Church supper

Emma Forrest was snapping back to normal To her husband she had declared frequently—and with considerable vehemence—that the death of Kirk Reynolds was a Godsend to the community; an opinion which was virtually unanimous.

The bell jangled and the front door opened unceremoniously Barney Hamilton flung his hat on the hall settee near the foot of the steps, nodded brightly to Mrs. Forrest at the telephone, and breezed into the living-room.

NEW MOTION PICTURE PAYS TRIBUTE TO SOUTHERN AGRICULTURE

A 45-minute sound and color motion picture entitled "The New South", portraying the agricultural and industrial development of the Southern states, has been released for showing in the coming months in all parts of the South. The showings are sponsored by the distributors of Arcadian Nitrate.

This remarkable picture represents months of work by a production crew which toured the Southern states in search of local color. All scenes in the pctures were filmed on the actual places depicted; those who took part did so without pay, and all action was natural.

After showing pictorially how the South has grown agriculturally and commercally since the coming of the first whte man, "The New South" introduces four Southern farm experts who point out the need for more scientific farming. The importance of self-containment to the South is pointed out, especially in times of war.

Later scenes in the picture include sequences of the production of Arcadian Nitatre from the raw materials. The film closes with a tribute to Southern farmers, and a salute to the future of Southern agriculture.

Maplesville SCHOOL NEWS

The Maplesville High School and Elementary School is experiencing one of the best school years of its existence For the past few years the enrollment has continued to increase but this year it has far surpassed all others. If the increase continues, additions will have to be made to our building to take care of the children, according to our principal, Mr. J. E. Daniels.

Saturday evening, November 25, the football team, coach and faculty, enjoyed their annual football party. It climaxed one of the greatest seasons ever enjoyed by the football team which scored 123 points to all opponents 51 points. The team got off to a slow start due to so many new men but before mid-season they hit their stride and the last four or five games saw them reach their height. The peak was reached in the final game with Isabella. The Isabella team was supposed to have a famed passing attack in Davis to Clenner and a line plunger in Lenoir but the Maplesville team bottled up both. Before the game was five minutes old, that all-state fullback, Joe Latham, of Maplesville, had scored two touchdowns and the Isabella Mustangs were completely carried off their feet. The first touchdown was made by Maplesville on a forward lateral pass from Hicks to Nix to Latham, who raced 45 yards untouched. They failed to convert their extra point and the score stood 6-0. This, however, was changed quickly. Maplesville kicked to Isabella and on the second play Joe Latham intercepted one of Isabella's passes and again raced 60 yards untouched for Maplesville's second score. Some splendid blocking by Cook, Rogers, Bearden and others took place as Joe raced down the field. Maplesville scored a third touchdown in the second quarter. Hicks passed to Nix for 30 yards and on the pass Isabella's safety man, attempting to tear down the pass, tipped the ball into the hands of McAfee, the Maplesville right end, and he raced across the goal line. The half ended with Maplesville leading the Isabella Mustangs 19 to 0.

The last half was merely formality as Maplesville coasted to the end playing many second and third string men. Late in the fourth period with almost all Coach Porch's second and third string men on the field Isabella managed to score and the battle ended with the score resting—Maplesville 19, and Isabella 6.

Maplesville has organized a Lions Club and according to all reports this splendid organization is going to do everything in their power to make our town a better town in which to live.

News from Floyd

Here we are again with a few more words about this place. With the many blessings that our Master has blessed us with we are still having good services each Sunday and Sunday night at this place although our crowd is small. We have 80 on roll in Sunday School but only 56 were present Sunday due to the condition of the weather. We hope more will come out next Sunday. It is much better for the older ones and children to be in Sunday School and prayer meeting than to be in other places.

We extend an invitation to visitors to come and help us worship.

OBTAINING GOOD STAND OF KUDZU TAKES PLANNING

Farmers of this section who desire best stands of kudzu next spring will do well to prepare seed beds this fall, according to Superintendent of the Soil Conservation Service in the CCC Camp area near Clanton.

Experience on several thousand farms throughout the Southeast, it is pointed out, has shown that the best stands of kudzu have been set the following spring goods stands have usually been obtained. On the other hand, where the land has been prepared in late winter or early spring and plants have been set on fresh, unsettled beds, have frequently been rather poor.

Farmers are advised to space rows for kudzu 12 to 18 feet apart so that cultivated row crops may be planted in the middle between the rows of kudzu. Wide row spacing reduces the labor required for preparing the land and planting kudzu. There have been instances where a complete stand of kudzu was obtained the first growing season from rows spaced far enough apart to allow five rows of corn to be grown in each middle

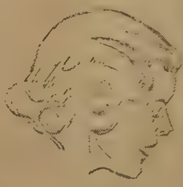
Each Got What She Wanted



BETTY

MARY lived in old house with an ugly, drab kitchen. She got new beauty in her kitchen with her new electric range.

JANE had two young daughters—one seven and one nine. She wanted them to learn about cooking the safe and modern way as they grew. She found both safety and educational advantages in her new electric range.

RUTH was a woman who liked for her home to be immaculately clean. She discovered that her new electric range made it much easier for it to be kept that way.

HELEN

MARY

HELEN loved to visit friends, attend movies, do church work, so she wanted to save time. She chose a modern electric range after learning that it would cook a meal unattended.

BETTY was proud of always being modern—up-to-date. She selected an electric range because the really modern homes of this year, and many years to come, will be those with electric kitchens.

SARAH

JANE

SARAH had always excelled at cooking—although at times this dish or that didn't turn out so well. So she switched to a modern electric range of good quality, and learned that old dishes took on new goodness; while new ones turned out well the first time she tried them.

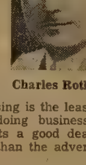
TRUTH about ADVERTISING

By CHARLES B. ROTH

COST: 3 CENTS

SOME of the critics of advertising —and in this world there are those who criticize every good thing —level their lances at what they think is a weak spot: its cost.

They read of the million-dollar advertising appropriations, they brood on the cost of a full page of advertising in a metropolitan newspaper or a national magazine—and then they loose their sharpest barbs against the waste which they say is involved in this costly process.



Charles Roth

Their only trouble is that they judge without having all the facts. For the truth is that advertising is the least expensive cost of doing business. Everything else costs a good deal more in proportion than the advertising.

The wise and capable business man bases the amount of money he spends for advertising upon the volume of business he either is doing or expects to do. This money set aside to advertise is called the appropriation.

It seldom runs, take the country over, more than 3 per cent, which means that for every dollar of sales made the advertising cost will be just three pennies. That is all—three pennies.

The large advertising appropriations come when a business, through the help of intelligent advertising, becomes so great that its annual volume runs into many millions of dollars a year. But whether an advertiser spends $10,000 a year or $10,000,000, his percentage remains the same—an average of 3 per cent.

The amount of money spent in advertising well-known products is so small as to be ridiculous, when you really know the facts.

Take oranges. How much do you suppose the growers spend to advertise their product? A third of a cent per dozen is all.

A national cracker baker reveals that he sets aside only one-tenth of a cent to advertise a package of crackers, while the manufacturer of a soft drink spends 1576/100,000 of a cent in advertising a five-cent glass of his product.

The manufacturer of a medium-priced automobile spends less than 3 per cent for advertising—he spends only $12 in making a $1,000 sale.

And even this small amount, this three cents on the dollar, isn't an expense, an added premium on the business. By spending three cents out of every dollar for advertising, the manufacturer or merchant can sell for less and give you more for your money.

Music Club Presents Organ Recital

A half hour session of organ music was the main feature of the program of the Clanton Music Appreciation Club presented at the Clanton Baptist Church on November 21. Miss Grace Ezell, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. S. J. Ezell of Birmingham and student of Mrs. Minnie McNeil Carr of Birmingham, gave beautiful organ renditions of selections from Schubert, Bach and Handel. Interesting accounts of the historical background of the various groups included in her repertoire were told briefly by the visiting artist.

Enjoyed also by the audience of about one hundred members and guests were a chorus of club members accompanied by Mrs. John Deramus at the organ in a vocal rendition of "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings." A paper entitled "Religious Hymns and Their Composers" contributed by Mrs. Percy M Pitts was one of the highlights of the program and received many favorable comments.

A short business meeting was held before the program. Following the musical Mrs. W. A. Willis and Mrs. S. D. Sturkie were co-hostesses at a tea for the members and guests in the ladies parlor of the Church. The auditorium and parlor were beautifully appointed with chrysanthemums and fall leaves. Soft light shed from white tapers enhanced the beauty of the decorations. The hostesses were assisted in serving by Mrs. Joe Rummel, Mrs. Reese Mullins, Mrs. Reid Mullins, Mrs. Grady Heflin, Miss Kathryn Foss and Miss Bonnie Clyde Griffin

A father took his little boy in his car Sunday morning and drove by the church and put him out for Sunday school, as so many fathers do. The little boy wound his way about among the gathering crowd and finally reached his department. The service had begun and the children were singing. When they had all been seated, the teacher asked if any one of the children had anything to say or to announce. This little fellow who was late lifted his hand. "All right, Tommie", said the teacher, "what is it that you have to say?" He arose and made this statement: "Teacher, it is not necessary to have Sunday School any longer; the devil is dead." "What makes you think that," asked the teacher. "Well, I was down town the other day with my Dad and a funeral procession passed and my Dad said: 'Well, well, the old devil is dead at last.' " Let it be known that the devil is not dead when some of his servants die.

Samples of various items will be served as well as displayed.

The trailer contains a refrigerated meat display box and and a shelf display of canned meat; in other words is made up to resemble a grocery store.

LARGE CROWD SEES MAPLESVILLE DEFEAT ISABELLA 19-6

On November 17 the Maplesville and Isabella football teams met on Maplesville's field at the ball park, with the largest crowd attending this season. Mc.Afee scored again for Maplesville before the half.

Roy Davis scored for the Isabella team, but failed to extra point. This was the only touchdown made by the Mustangs. Again in the last quarter Latham carried the ball and made another touchdown for Maplesville. This left Isabella 6, Tigers 19.

This was the last game for the Tigers this season. Maplesville's Coach S.C. Porch has been a great success in his game this season. A banquet was given in the team's honor on November 25. Everyone had a most enjoyable time and celebrated their victory.

Barney bent over Kay's chair and quickly kissed her. He said, "Lady—you and I are going places."

Kay responded to this mood of the old Barney.

"Where?" she asked.

"Mostly out."

"When?"

"Practically immediately. What say?"

"It doesn't look as though I'm being consulted."

"You're not. Uncle Barney has set himself the task of lifting you out of this here slough of despond."

Her lips expanded into a smile. "Do you really feel that way, Barney—or are you just acting?"

"I feel it. I'm tired of being sad."

She regarded him affectionately. He was acting, of course, but doing a gallant job of it. She said, "I'll be glad to get out of the house."

"It's my prescription. The chariot waits without. Without gas, mebbe."

She rose. "I'll get my hat and coat . . ." She moved upstairs and Mrs. Forrest entered the room. Barney said, "I'm taking Kay for a ride."

"That'll be nice. She's been sticking too close to the house. Looks a bit peaky."

"She'll snap out of it."

He was waiting at the foot of the steps when Kay came down. She kissed her mother dutifully on the cheek and followed him to the curb. They drove slowly through town and stopped at Warner's Sudden Service Garage, where Andy worked, to buy gas. They chatted for a moment or two before Barney drove across the railroad tracks and turned right.

Kay asked, "Where are we going?"

"You guessed it, honey. I wonder if you realize that you haven't been to the Gardens for more than a week."

"But Barney—"

"But me no butts. I'm driving." He smiled down at her. "This is lesson number one in Snapping Out of Something, or, What Every Girl Should Do. You've been letting yourself slip and I'm the fair-haired boy with the anti-slip formula. So what?"

She said, "I haven't wanted to ramble around the streets of Beverly."

"Quite naturally. It's not such-a-much town anyway. But driving in the country . . . well, that's different. As a dose of tonic it's good, taken three times a day, it's darn near perfect."

She said, "It's nice—being out with you, this way, instead of sitting at home."

Kay found the visit amazingly easy. When she and Barney were in the car again, moving slowly toward Beverly, she said, "You win."

"Win what?"

"Most anything. I had been dreading a trip to the Gardens. Now I feel better."

"Atta gal! Cross your yeart?"

"I promise."

"Then," he said, with a note of seriousness in his voice, "perhaps I can do a bit of talking."

"What about?"

"Us."

"Yes . . . ?"

"Don't let me get too serious. I aim to remain Yours truly, the Gay Lad from the Gardens."

"You'll succeed."

"Maybe so, and maybe not. It just happens that when I start making love to you, laughter vanishes. In fact, I get all hot and bothered."

She played up to his mood. She said, "I can't be sorry about that."

"Intriguing gal! Keep the home fires burning—please, because I'm liable to go mushy on you."

"The pleasure," she said, "would be all mine."

"That's that, then. So to the business of this meeting. Mister Hamilton has the floor. Question: Why haven't I asked you to marry me immediately and at once?"

She drew in her breath, sharply. She said, "Barney . . . please . . ."

"I'm talking. And I'll answer my own question. First, it isn't because I don't love you. Actually. I'm so completely nuts that I don't know which ear I'm standing on. But honey . . ." His voice was tender . . . "Honey, let me lay off the kidding for a moment. What I'm going to say might hurt a little . . ."

"You don't have to say anything . . ."

"I do. Really." All banter was gone now. "I want to marry you, right now. But if I did . . . Oh! don't you see what people would say?"

"What, dear?"

"That it was a repetition of the other marriage. That you were marrying me so that you couldn't testify against me."

"What do you want?"

She was silent, staring off into the starlight night. Save for their own little car the road was deserted.

He said, "I'm taking an awful lot for granted, Kay. I'm taking it for granted that you still feel as you used to feel . . ."

"You know I do, Barney."

"So you must see what I'm driving at. Let's not hide what we're thinking. Everybody in Beauregard County thinks that I killed Kirk Reynolds . . . or, at least, that I might have. Isn't that true?"

"Yes."

"They know why he was coming out that night. They know that we're pretty fond of each other. If we married, they'd start talking all over again. They'd say that I not only killed Kirk but that you saw me do it. The analogy would be too deadly. We'd never really get away from it."

She was tense again, her brain racing. She asked, "Did you kill him?"

"No. I've told you that over and over."

"Then who did?"

He shook his head. "I don't know. But I didn't." He touched her hand. "You want to believe me, but you can't . . . isn't that it?"

"Perhaps . . ."

"Some day," he said, "this whole mess will clear up. They'll find out who did kill Kirk. Then we'll both be free. Will you marry me then?"

"Whenever you say."

He stopped the car and put his arms about her—rather awkwardly—with the embarrassment of extreme youth which fears to be betrayed by the depth of its own emotion.

CHAPTER XII

Kay volunteered to go downtown. It wasn't an easy decision and she shrank from the inescapable staring and the behind-her-back comments: "There's Kay Forrest . . ." "First time she's been out since Kirk's funeral . . ." "She looks kind of drug out . . ."

The new chintz curtains furnished the excuse for the step which Kay knew must be taken sooner or later. Mrs. Forrest offered to accompany her, but Kay said no. She preferred to walk downtown alone. This time. Then the next time would be easier; her life would be one degree closer to normal. But she was startled when a car pulled up alongside the curb and a man's voice said, "Mawnin' Kay."

She looked up into the quizzical, kindly eyes of Lee Mangin, judge of probate for Beauregard County. She said, "Good morning, Judge."

The little old man cut off his motor and lowered his voice. "I was kind of cravin' to talk to you a little, Kay."

"Yes, sir . . ."

Judge Mangin was not entirely at ease. "It's about somethin' that's been a-worryin' me." He looked around as though fearful of being overheard. "It's about Kirk Reynolds' estate."

A tiny frown appeared briefly on Kay's forehead. "What about it?" she inquired.

"We-e-ell . . . it's this way, Kay. Kirk Reynolds didn't leave no kin hereabouts, and nobody ain't made application to administer his estate. We know he left some money and it's all tied up in the bank, and you bein' his wife—"

"I wasn't really his wife, Judge. You know that."

"Sho' I do, honey. But that don't alter the fact that you two was legally married, so you're nearest of kin and entitled to part of it, anyway. Maybe all. Now I was thinkin' that if you filed application—as his widder—"

She shook her head as he left. "I don't want any of his money, Judge—so I can't do that."

And then an idea came to her—an idea so impulsively generous that for the first time in weeks she experienced a thrill of happiness. Here at last was something she could do, something essentially right emerging from a background of so many wrongs.

She reached Monument Square and circled it. She entered the White Star Hotel for the first time since the fateful night of the dance which she had attended as Kirk's guest. She ignored the approving glances of the lobby loungers and tried to appear unaware of the hum of gossip. She went straight to the little door with the gold-lettered inscription:

MISS SONIA HENKEL
Beautician

The room was empty save for the long, slender figure of Babe seated in a white enamel chair and toying aimlessly with a nail-file. They were the direct antithesis of each other, these two girls—one impulsively eager; the other coolly calculating.

Babe Henkel did not rise when Kay entered the room. Her long eyes narrowed and tiny spots of natural color appeared beneath the makeup. The nail-file bent into an arc with additional pressure, and her husky voice was hostile. She said, "What do you want?"

Surprisingly, Kay did not resent the fierce antagonism. She was deeply sorry for Babe, and so she advanced bravely, hazel eyes meeting black ones without animosity.

"I want to talk to you, Miss Henkel. About a personal matter."

"Well, I don't want to talk to you. So get out."

"Please . . . This is important."

"Well . . . ?"

"It's about Kirk Reynolds' estate."

Babe's hands were clasped around the nail-file. Her cheeks were white now, save for their spots of artificial color. Her manner was unyielding. She asked, "What about it?"

FOURTH GRADERS WRITE:

"OUR TRIP TO MONTGOMERY"

By Joe Mullins, Jr., Fourth Grade

On Friday, November 17, the fourth grade went to Montgomery to see the Capitol and other interesting places. We left about 8:10 and got there about 9:45.

The first thing we did was to go to the Capitol. There we saw where Jefferson Davis was inaugurated. Then we got a guide and he took us through the Capitol. We went up two flights of stairs and came to a balcony where we could see the dome. Then we went up some more stairs that were so steep that it got you dizzy to look back down. At last we got on top of the dome. I was so dizzy I couldn't see straight. When I finally could see I thought I was in heaven. It was such a pretty day and such a pretty view.

Then we went to see Governor Dixon. He was busy and couldn't see us until 11:45, so we went over to the White House of the Confederacy. We went through it and saw a lot of Mr. and Mrs. Davis' belongings. It was 11:45 so we went back to see the Governor We all had the pleasure of shaking hands with him and telling him our names.

We had been invited to eat in the Capitol Heights Cafeteria, so we went and had dinner in their cafeteria and were entertained with music while we ate.

After awhile we went to Oak Park. We had a good time playing, but we had to pay for it with several bumps. Well we all piled in and went to Maxwell Field. There some guides showed us around. We saw the inside of one bomber and the guides explained it to us.

It had been a big day and we all were tired, so we came home and got here about 5:30.

"A TRIP TO MONTGOMERY"

By George McCain, Jr., Fourth Grade

At 8:00 o'clock Frday, November 17, the fourth grade left for Montgomery. Seven cars went and several boys and I went with my mother, and boy! did we have fun on our way. When we got there we went to the Capitol and an old man 94 years old told us about the different pictures on the wall. Then we got another man to show us through the Capitol. He took us up a round flight of stairs. We soon came to a big room with pictures of great men doing some things and the man was very knd to tell us about them.

Then he took us up to the dome and we could see all over Montgomery. Then we went down again and asked the Governor's Secretary if we could see the Governor. She said he was busy and we would have to come back. So we went to Jefferson Davis' home. There we saw the kind of furniture they used during his time. Then we went back to the Capitol to see the Governor. He was very busy but he took time to see us. He shook hands with us and we told him our names and where we lived. He told me I was a fine fellow and he was glad to meet me.

The fourth grade of Capitol Heights School was expecting us to come and eat dinner in their cafeteria. All of us were tired and hungry so we went down to Capitol Heights School and ate dinner and boy! did it taste good! A litle boy was playing on a piano and a little girl was playing on an accordion and I could nearly about taste it.

Next we went to Oak Park. There we saw many animals. We played a long time. After a while we started going again. On our way we stopped at Maxwell Field and there four guides were very nice to show us around the airport. They showed us inside a bomber. We saw two bombers land. After a while we wanted to go. So we thanked them and left. On our way home we talked about the things we saw and we all had a good time. It had been a big day for all of us.

Worker on Sand Is Drawn Into Big Concrete Mixer

LONDON.—Richard Martindale, 32, was killed here when he was dragged with 18 tons of sand into a huge concrete mixer.

He was supervising the pouring of large quantities of sand into the mixer, when a blockage occurred in the narrow neck of the funnel and checked the flow. To make it flow more easily he jumped on the sand in the mouth of the hopper. It was at this moment that the sand freed itself. As Martindale jumped the sand sucked him down into the mixer.

WE RETAIL AT THE LOWEST POSSIBLE PRICES, AND BUY AT THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICES

By CHARLES B. ROTH

WHAT ABOUT PRICE?

"A WOMAN," once remarked the famed Hoosier humorist Abe Martin, "will buy anything she thinks the store is losing money on."

That was merely a funnyman's way of saying that in all our buying price is a most important consideration—the one thing with which we are concerned every time we spend a cent.

Charles Roth

Now what really constitutes price and how are prices established? Without getting too deep into economic principles, we know that prices are established by what is called the law of supply and demand.

This law teaches us that when the demand for anything exceeds the supply, prices go up. Conversely, when supply is plentiful but demand is light, prices go down. But how can we as customers know that this law won't be tampered with and men, shrewd, scheming and selfish, step in and raise prices and gouge us by making us pay them? They could, you know, and we would not be any the wiser.

Our safeguard against this is the advertising we see in the newspapers. That protects us. Under our competitive system of buying and selling, one merchant vies with another merchant for our trade. Each comes out publicly in the newspapers with his price. We consult these prices before we buy.

Seen in this light, advertising becomes the informant that prevents dishonest sellers from taking advantage of us and our ignorance of prices we might have to pay.

A recent mystery drama has the villain contriving to plunge the city into complete darkness for one night, so that he and his henchmen can dash in and make away with their loot. "We who have something dastardly to put over," he observed, "must needs fear the light."

High prices, skimpy quality, gyp products also must needs fear the light. That is why they are cloaked in such phrases as: "We don't advertise. We pass the savings along to you." "Why pay the high cost of advertising? We put it into our goods," etc., etc.

But the merchant who advertises uses the light of advertising, and asks you to compare his goods and his prices and to find out before you buy. You can always pay his price. because it is the right price. That you know because the protective power of advertising has told you that it is.

And this protective power of advertising is working for you every time you unfold your newspaper and read an advertisement. That black print on white represents a buying guide which is worth several hundred dollars a year to you and your family.

A delicious salad plate was served to all the members and their visitors with the exception of the secretary, Miss Aileen Popwell, who was visiting in Birmingham at the time.

In a recent discussion with some of the citizens of the town, this question arose: "What Is The Sub-Deb Club " To this we reply: The Sub-Deb Club in Clanton is only one of a thousan dof the same kind of clubs in the United States. We belong to the National Organization of Sub-Deb Clubs headed by Miss Elizabeth Woodward of Philadelphia, Pa. We Observe

Citizenship Day—

Those young people who will be privileged to cast their first vote as American citizens will be saluted in a big way when they will have the pleasure of hearing Hon. Chauncey Sparks of Eufaula at the courthouse next Thursday night. Plans to observe this day, which will be known in the future as "Citizenship Day—Alabama Day," have met with hearty response from the various civic organizations, mainly Parent-Teacher Associations, from over the state. We know of no more fitting tribute that could be paid to the incoming citizens of Alabama than to hold some sort of celebration in their honor. An induction into the responsibilities of citizenship will be thorough when the young people hear Mr. Sparks, an able speaker and outstanding citizen. The P.-T. A. of Jemison is sponsoring a meeting at the Jemison High School, at which time Dr. Halle Farmer of the Alabama College, Montevallo, will speak. Not only should the younger citizens attend these meetings but an opportunity is offered to the older people to display their interest in the freshmen by attending and lending their support to the meetings.

"Uncle Jim" Becomes Eighty-Five—

Eighty-five years young comes next Saturday, so he tells us. He is one of Clanton's oldest and most outstanding citizens. Mr. Broadhead is enjoying reasonably good health, is still very active for his age. 4,420 weeks—31,025 days is a mighty long time. We extend hearty congratulations to Uncle Jim.

The New Road—

That portion of the Birmingham-Montgomery Highway that has been widened above Thorsby and Jemison is really an improvement over the old road. Autos may zoom along at a faster rate of speed, but there's one consolation—they'll have more room and get an easier ride. We're still wondering what the Highway Department intends to do when construction reaches Clanton. Will the new road circle Clanton or will it follow the old one?

Let's Keep The Records Straight—

But that's not what we did when writing the account of an Isabella-Maplesville football game in last week's issue of the News. Rivalry is pretty keen between these two schools when it comes to football, we've been told, and when we had Isabella making "her third touchdown" when she only made one in the game—well, the boys around the News office wish to remain healthy so let us hasten to assure the Maplesville team and its supporters that we meant Maplesville—and we do mean Maplesville. For calling our attention to this error we are indebted to none but Isabella's most enthusiastic supporter, Principal Curtis Matthis whose sense of fair play prompted him to request a correction in favor of the opponent.

UNCLE SAM PREPARING FOR CENSUS

YOUR GOVERNMENT INTENDS TO FIND OUT EVERYTHING IT CAN ABOUT YOU

The questions to be asked in the 1940 census, soon to be shown to the public in a personal sort of way, will pry into corners of American life that have never been fully explored.

In addition to the time-worn job of finding out how many persons live in the United States, and where—so that each state will know how many members of Congress it is entitled to—the census will ask a group of questions whose answers will be pieced into a moasic of social conditions.

A few of the new topics are:

Whether homes are owner or rented and their value.

School attendance and the highest grade completed.

The citizenship of foreign-born residents.

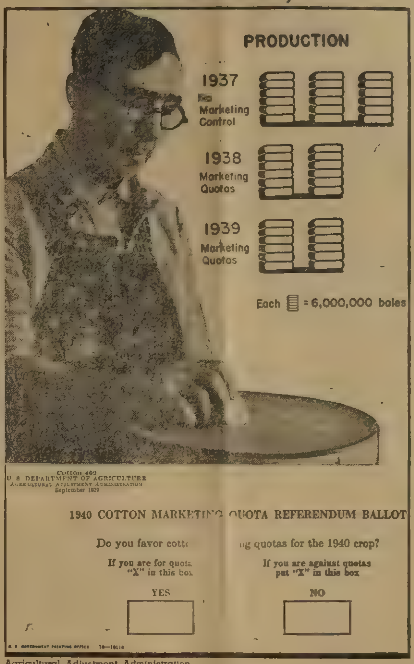
Cotton Growers Vote, Dec. 9



Agricultural Adjustment Administration

FARMERS WILL VOTE SATURDAY IN REFERENDUM

WILL SAY WHETHER OR NOT THEY DESIRE CONTROL OF COTTON NEXT YEAR

County Agent J. W. Fant said today that Chilton County producers and others in the United States have observed Thanksgiving this year with the largest supply of cotton in history. In fact, according to present trends in consumption, there is enough cotton on hand to last through next year if not a single stalk of cotton is raised in this country.

With an estimated 11.9 million bales from the 1939 crop added to the 14.1 million bales carried over from previous crops, the supply at this time is around 26,000,000 bales. This compares with a world supply of 50 million bales.

The AAA Act passed in 1939 by Congress is an attempt to keep supplies of cotton in line with the demand through cooperative action of all cotton growers. Marketing quotas are provided for in this legislation if approved by two-thirds of the farmers voting in a referendum. Under marketing quotas each farmer is given an acreage allotment fom which he can market and sell all cotton which he produces. Overplanting will cause him to be penalized.

Cotton farmers of Chilton County will vote in the quota referendum on December 9," says Mr. Fant. "It is very important that all eligible producers express their opinion in the referendum so that Congress and the Department of Agriculture will know the desires of farmers in regard to this pogram."

Miss Edith Fraser spent the Thanksgiving holidays in Maplesville with Miss Ruth Dell Carter.

L. D. Easterling, a patient in the Veterans Hospital in Tuscaloosa, was home for Thanksgiving.

Seal Sale Drive Gaining Momentum

Chilton County's annual Christmas Seal Sale Campaign is gaining momentum rapidly, according to Mrs. Bonnie Hand who is heading this year's drive.

Dr. S. D. Sturkie, president of the Chilton County tuberculosis Association stated this week that hearty cooperation was being given by the schools of the county. The Chilton County Board of Education has heartily endorsed the drive as in the past. Seals which sell for one cent each are being distributed to the teachers in the schools of County, who in turn dstribute them to the school children who do their share of selling them. The sale of seals through this method has been highly successful in the past, and the appreciation of the Association was expressed by Dr Sturkie.

Seals are being mailed out this week with others to be mailed out next week. Those receiving them are urged to buy as many as possible. A stamped envelope addressed to Louie Smith, treasurer of the Association, is enclosed with the seals for the convenience of those wishing to respond. A letter explaining the purpose of the drive is also enclosed.

The Freight Rate Victory

For many years Former Governor Bibb Graves has been interested in discriminatory freight rates in the South and two or three years ago he decided to do something about it. He went to work and succeeded in getting several other Southern Governors to join him in perfecting an organization to make a legal fight for the removal of the industrial South's handicap.

He was made chairman of the organization, secured the help of experts on freight rates and facts which was in due time presented to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

On Graves' retirement from the Governorship of Alabama in January Governor E. D. Rivers of Georgia became chaiman of the Southern Governor's Conference, and Governor Dixon, who succeeded Graves, also became deeply interested in the subject.

Bibb just "kept on keeping on," and Friday the Interstate Commerce Commission upheld the South's complaint against discriminatory freight rates, and ordered lower northbound rail charges on a list of sixteen commodities. The former Governor's comment was: "This is the supreme achievement of my life. I think it is the greatest victory for the South since the Civil War."

The estimated annual saving to Southern shippers is between seven and ten million dollars.

WPA Cooperating With Santa Claus

By Billy Smith

Whether Santa uses his reindeers or some more modern mode of travel this year, his travels will be broadened in Alabama to cover many homes not so sure of his visit, thanks to the Works Projects Administration and the Alabama Department of Public Welfare and its co-sponsors.

There will be several thousands of little girls and boys who will not be disillusioned in their belief that Santa Claus will come on the night before Christmas if they are good girls and boys. Such disillusionment in the minds of children who already suffer more than enough from cold and hunger is not good for the morale of the coming American generations and such disillusionment will not take place say the sponsors of WPA toy projects in Alabama.

Thirteen of these toy and reconditioning shops are located in Florence, Huntsville, Gadsden, Pell City, Talladega, Selma, Montgomery, Tuscaloosa, Mobie, Jasper, Grove Hill, York and Birmingham.

Over six hundred formerly unemployed people, mostly women, have been given work through these shops and are turning out most attractive toys by the thousands. This sounds like a tremendous and costly undertaking but, not so much as one would imagine. Taking a trip through one of these shops is worth anyone's time. It is both informative and educational, and visitors are always welcome.

The material for the making of these toys may consist of corn shucks, discarded goods boxes, newspapers, old automobile inner tubes, rope, orange crates and cheese boxes. Truly it is difficult to believe that such entertaining and attractive toys can come from the materials furnished these WPA employees at these shops.

From this discarded material come dolls, little chairs, doll trunks, mechanical toys, building blocks, circus wagons, wagons of other kinds rocking chairs in the form of horses, ducks, rabbits, wheel barrows, jointed animals on wheels, see-saws and numerous others, brightly painted for the discriminating color-taste of youngsters.

It is estimated that approximately two hundred thousands of these toys will be ready to turn over to the sponsors for distribution to these children of families unable to say definitely that Santa will be there Christmas. Over six hundred women who might have been without means of supplying food to hungry little mouths have been given work in these WPA work shops and many have learned a trade—making toys and dolls. At the proper time these toys will be turned over to the Department of Public Welfare and distributed by that organization and its co-sponsors such as Junior Leagues, and other civic groups.

One reads of roads and bridges being constructed by WPA, or perhaps a building being erected by WPA labor, maintaining health clinics and realize the necessity of them all, but seeing these WPA toy shops in operation whereby happiness can be brought to little underprivileged children as well as their parents at Christmas time, causes one to become inspired with a desire to have a part in doing something to help other people in distress.

It is an endless story and a true one.

MORAL ECHOES

D. W. Haskew

And it came to pass that a certain pastor emptied his purse in buying a second-hand flivver that he might better serve his scattered flock. The following Sunday he drove up to one of his best churches and towns and people went into confusion. During the following week he received an anonymous letter from that community informing him of the fact that the Lord never rode to church in a car. Whereupon, the clergyman devoted much thought to the letter in hand, and after mature deliberation he composed this letter in reply and read it reverently at the next meeting at the church: "If the writer of the unsigned letter will come to my parsonage next Sunday morning properly bridled and saddled, I will be only too glad to follow the example of my Lord, and ride to church, as we are told that He rode into Jerusalem." No one appeared to give the parson a lift. Verily, verily, I say unto you, a braying critic should have a bridle in his mouth and saddle on his back.

There are about fifty thousand beauty parlors in the United States. In Japan the women attend beauty shops regularly to have their ears cleaned but in our country the women attend these shops by the million in search of beauty. One man who has been paying the bills of one of the hopefuls makes this conclusion: "There are no less than 157 beauty shops to every beauty in the country." We may have 157 beauty shops to every beauty but I, for one, believe that beauty shops are a real necessity, and I hope that they have come to stay. Anything that will improve our looks is worthwhile.

An early New England school teacher had a rather unique way of advertising the standing of each pupil in her school. Each pupil was required to wear a placard hanging around the neck. With the grade made in school and with the words, "Good Boy. Good Girl. Industrious. Lazy. Bad Boy. Bad Girl. Idle, Shiftless," written so that all could see. The pupil not only made his or her record but each pupil had to wear the record made. Suppose that you had to wear the grade that you are making in life along with your character quality, on a placard around your neck. Would you be willing to be seen in public? Whether you know it or not, you carry your grade with you and your character stamped on your face. People look at you and read you grade and your character.

A farmer in Kentucky had sever sons. To each one he gave a jack-knif and watched to see what he did wit it. If the boy turned the knife to profi he then gave him a calf. If he cared fo the calf, he then gave him a horse. he cared well for the horse, he woul then give him a well-stocked far All the farmer desired to know wa if the boys would do their best wit what they had. He knew that a far could be squandered as easily as a ja knife. God and man stand in readine to do for us according to our merit is not just to be trusted with more whe we fail to care for what we have. CHAPTER XII—Continued

Kay was finding the situation difficult. She struggled bravely. "The probate judge says that Kirk left some money in the bank. He said something about it being mine because—well, because—"

"Skip it!" retorted Babe.

"Anyway, I don't want it."

"Afraid you'll dirty your hands?" Babe's words cut deep.

"That isn't it. You know it isn't. I came here to suggest that it really should go to you."

Babe rose. Her long, shapely hands rested on rounded hips. She leaned forward, eyes blazing with anger.

"What's the big idea? Throwing bones to a dog?"

Suddenly Kay was not nervous. She was more mature, more sure of herself. She spoke with quiet, effective dignity. She said, "I'm sorry you're taking it this way . . ."

"I'll take it any way I please. And get this. You, I don't like you butting into my affairs."

It was not until Kay reached home that she realized she had forgotten to buy the chintz curtains.

Every Tuesday afternoon seven New York Sunday newspapers are received in Beverly. One copy goes to the White Star Hotel, one to the Elite Barber Shop, one to Mrs. Diana Guinn and three travel, via R. F. D., to plantations near Chicora.

The seventh copy goes to Red Williams' Bon Tón Pool Room.

On this particular Tuesday afternoon the pictorial section fell into the hands of a stalwart young man named Ernie Watts. Mr. Watts, being of limited education, bothered not at all with those sections of the New York paper which were devoted to the printed word, but he reveled in pictures . . . and today he retired into a corner and turned the pages idly.

Suddenly his feet came down to the floor from the chair upon which they had been perched. Mr. Watts said, very loudly, "Hey Fellers—looka heah!"

Mr. Williams was staring with unusual interest, not untinctured by excitement, at a solid page of art photography. These pictures, delicate in tone and texture and distinctive for their composition, were on a page bearing the caption:

CATHEDRAL GARDENS
Photographic Studies
By Christine Maynard

Mr. Watts exclaimed, "Dam' if Jeff Butler wasn't tellin' the truth. That's Kay Forrest sho' nuff."

Then somebody called, "Yonder she goes now."

All eyes turned toward the window. They caught a brief glimpse of Kay, who was seated beside Barney Hamilton in the front seat of his car. In the rear seat were Margaret Hamilton and Jim Owenby, and they were headed east. Supper at the Gardens . . . and Kay's face was bright and alive and beautiful. One pool-room loafer said, with forced humor, "She cain't fool us no mo'. We know what she really looks like."

Mr. Ernie Watts was chuckling. He had a distorted sense of humor and a rather reckless courage. He produced a small pocket-knife and commenced to slice into the page of pictures. A howl of protest arose, but Ernie raised his hand. "You-all wait," he said, "this'll be funny."

With meticulous care he cut from the paper a particularly impressive photographic study: the one in which the beauty of Kay's figure was best revealed. He pasted this on the big plate-glass front window. Then he took the little pot of white paint . . . the one Red Williams used for decorating his inside mirror with such inscriptions as: All Sandwiches—10 cents . . . and went outside, followed by a gaping and admiring crowd.

Ernie Watts was no lettering artist, but his intentions were unmistakable and his execution clear enough. Over the picture of the Gardens—and of Kay—he daubed a few words:

Home Town Gal Makes Good!
And How!

This was regarded by the assembled young men as the highwater-mark of Beverly humor. They declared vociferously that Ernie was the funniest guy! Always making up jokes. Mr. Watts was exceedingly well pleased with himself and for almost a half-hour he loafed near the front window enjoying the startled expressions which appeared on the countenances of casual pedestrians who paused to glance at this unusual display. Then Mr. Watts drifted toward his home.

In the dining-room of the little house out on Chicora Avenue, young Andy Forrest was finishing an early supper. Mr. Forrest was reading in the living-room, Mrs. Forrest pressed more cold chicken upon her son and declared she was sorry he had undertaken this night-shift. She was quite positive that one hour of sleep at night was worth two hours in the daytime, and seemed assured that Andy's health would eventually be ruined. He laughed at her fears as he rose from the table, stated that he never felt better in his life (a statement which his appearance verified), called good night to his father and walked through the front door and toward town.

When he reached the Bon Ton Pool Room a white-lettered inscription caught his eye. A frown appeared on his forehead and he stepped closer, inspecting the picture with the aid of the corner arc-light.

Andy was a placid sort of a person. His reactions were usually slow and almost never violent. He had known few moments of real ecstasy and fewer of bitter anger.

Even now there was little indication of the deadly fury that boiled within him. His cheeks were white, but his step was steady and not too fast. He shoved his broad shoulders through the front door. Pool-games stopped. Within the Bon Ton there was an air of hushed expectancy, and more than a trifle of apprehension.

He did not raise his voice. He made no gestures. But in unmistakable and very profane language he expressed his opinion of the man who had pasted that picture on the window—and of the crowd which had gloated over it and left it there. He flagellated them with his fury. And his scorn.

"Who ever it was is yellow, too," he said, "or he'd admit it."

Nobody moved. Andy said, "Who was it?"

Still no answer.

"I'll find out sooner or later," stated Andy. "And when I do . . ."

Somebody said, whiningly, "It wasn't me, Andy."

"You wouldn't have the guts to admit it if it was."

"But listen . . ."

"To hell with the whole gang of you. And I'll tell you one more thing, if anything like that happens again, I'll kill somebody."

One of the hangers-on, more courageous than the rest—perhaps because he stood near the back door—said, "You better not be threatenin' the feller that did that, Andy Forrest."

"Why not?"

"'Cause he's mean."

"Yeah? Just tell me who it was and I'll show you how mean he is."

The tall man said, "He'll find out what you called him."

"That suits me fine."

The other man said, "That's what you think. But you better watch out."

Andy left. His face was chalky and he walked swiftly toward the garage. Behind him—in the Bon Ton Pool Room—there was a chorused sigh. Somebody said, "Are you goin' to tell Ernie Watts what Andy called him?"

The tall man near the door nodded.

"I sho' am," he announced. "An' then you'll see somethin'. Ernie Watts don't take that off nobody."

CHAPTER XIII

Kay Forrest was happy. True, she felt a sense of guilt; a furtiveness—as though there was something indecent about her happiness. She told herself—though faintly—that it wasn't right for her to forget, even momentarily, the tragic events of the past few weeks, nor her apprehension about the part which Barney might have played in Kirk's death.

But on this particular Tuesday night it was difficult to be unhappy. The house in Cathedral Gardens was as she had always known it: tranquil and pleasant and millions of miles removed from the narrow prejudices of Beverly. Mrs. Hamilton, quiet and blonde and capable—a perfect hostess; a gracefully maturing woman, an understanding mother and friend . . . and Barney and Margaret. And Jim Owenby.

And after supper—long after supper—when Jim Owenby announced that he and Margaret were driving out to Big Oak Plantation, beyond Chicora, Barney and Kay decided to go with them. Mrs. Hamilton begged off, claiming—with the wisdom of understanding motherhood—that she had letters to write, and they piled into Jim's car and headed for Chicora; their route carrying them through Beverly. And because they were short of gas, they stopped at Warner's Sudden Service Garage where Andy was on night-duty.

They got out of the car at the garage and went in search of Kay's brother. They found him lying prostrate beneath a recalcitrant car of a client. There was no one else in the garage and they hauled Andy out from under the automobile and chatted with him and were, altogether, very pleasant and gay.

But other things had been happening at the same time: things which were not so pleasant.

A half-hour since the doors of the Bon Ton Pool Room had swung open and Mr. Ernie Watts had barged into the smoke-laden atmosphere. His first question was directed at the house in general, and induced a solemn hush. He asked, "Who tore down that pitcher I pasted on the window this afternoon?"

A lanky young gentleman, clad in a blue flannel shirt and decrepit trousers, answered eagerly.

"Andy Forrest tore it down."

"How come?"

"He seen it on the window an' come in. He ripped it right off. An' then he said things."

"What kind of things?"

The atmosphere was tense.

PROMOTIONS FOR MARINES

Postmaster R. W. Lowe Tells About Pay And Promotions

Postmaster said today that for each additional thousand men enlisted of the six thousand increase recently authorized the U. S. Marine Corps, there will be 840 promotions throughout the Marine Corps, affecting all enlisted ranks, according to an official announcement from the Officer in Charge, Marine Corps Recruiting Station, Birmingham, Alabama.

Of these 840 promotions, 411 men will be promoted to Private First Class with pay at $30 to $37.50 per month, 189 to Corporal with pay at $42 to $52.50 per month, 93 to Sergeant with pay at $54 to $67.50 per month, and 10 to First Sargeant with pay at $84 to $105 per month, depending on length of service. These monthly rates of pay do not include clothing allowance, subsistence, or any of the various allowances and increases provided by law. The balance of the promotions will be distributed in various other ranks, some at higher pay. Altogether, there will be 5040 promotions after the entire 6000 men have been enlisted.

This, said the Postmaster, means that young men who enlist in the Marine Corps now, will have a much better chance for advancement than ever before, except for the brief period in 1917-18, and that for a long time to come there will be a constant flow of promotions. But, he added, as soon as the authorized 6000 men have been enlisted, the recruiting service will again be limited to only the actual number of men needed to replace those discharged, r tired, etc., and that it will be correspondingly harder for a young man to be accepted for enlistment.

For the information of those who may be interested, recruiting stations are located in Birmingham, Montgomery and Mobile, Alabama. For additional information apply to your Postmaster, or write to one of the above stations.

TRUTH about ADVERTISING

By CHARLES B. ROTH

HOSS TRADIN'

MY FRIEND asked me if I would go with him to buy a horse. I went. We traipsed from one dealer's to another. One man asked us $300 for a horse. The next man had a horse which looked no better, but his price was $450. Before the afternoon was over we had seen horses ranging in price all the way from $150 to $14,000.

Now, the $14,000 horse was a much better animal than the $150 horse. No use to deny that. But nowhere along the line did we find a stabilized market.

Had we bought we would have been paying a price which the seller thought his horse was worth. There was no market authority we could consult which would tell my friend whether he was being overcharged or undercharged.

Charles Roth

That same evening I went out to buy a small household item—one which is advertised in all the newspapers. I knew what the market price would be: advertising had told me.

With confidence I asked the clerk for what I wanted and put my 25 cents down on the counter. Had he said: "I am sorry, sir, but the price is 50 cents," I would have left and gone somewhere else.

What assurance have I, as a consumer, that someone won't take advantage of me and overcharge me in this bold way?

My only assurance is the advertising which I read in the newspaper. That is my market and my buyer's guide. It tells me the prices I must expect to pay. Let the seller who tries to charge me more beware.

It also tells me what quality I may expect. Let the seller who tries to give me a poorer substitute beware

So you see that advertising stabilizes prices and enables me, no matter how inexperienced I am in business, to buy with the same expertness and assurance of a professional buyer who spends his life buying for a large concern.

No one objects to paying the established price for something he wants. But all of us hate to be robbed by an unscrupulous who, taking advantage of our ignorance, "soaks us good and plenty."

The way to avoid being "soaked" in this complete way is to buy advertised goods from merchants who advertise.

There was a time in America when there were no set prices. Each merchant charged what he thought "the traffic would bear." Advertising came to the rescue of the consumer. It led the way to the established prices you pay when you buy anything today — except, perhaps, horses.

A highly entertaining program was given by the faculty of Thorsby Institute on Friday night, December 1. There were two parts. The first a pantomine, "The Duchess Bounces In," was silently but actively performed. The hesitating Lady Vera was played by Miss Burr The audacious lover, Mr. Campbell; the heavy father in form of a Duke, Mr. Adair; and the Duchess who bounced in and "let the cat out of the bag," Miss Leech. From the sounds of mirth in the audience the pantomine was a success. An equal success was the play, "The Teeth Of The Gift Horse." The characters were: Florence Butler, Miss Alice Burr; Anne Fisher, Miss Laverna Jones; Richard Butler, Mr. Erskine Campbell; Devlin Blake, Mr. Henry Adair; Aunt Marietta, Miss Ethel Thompson; Katie, the Irish maid, Mrs. Sutlive. Between performances instrumental music was played by Miss Burr, teacher of music at Thorsby Institute.

News from ISABELLA HIGH SCHOOL

With the football season closed, the school has turned its attention to basketball. The football boys have enjoyed a better season this year than usual and they should be even better next year. With the gymnasium completed, Coach Rape's boys should get off to a good start.

The annual competitive race for membership between the Cosmopolitan and Jeffersonian Literary societies has about closed with the Cosmopolitan Society being the winner only by about three members. These societies have each been trying to have the most interesting program in order to attract new members. At the beginning of school the students are requested to join either of the societies.

The students have been active in behalf of a turkey to be given away for Christmas. The entire school has been divided into two groups—the "Blues" and the "Reds."

We deeply regret that our history teacher, Mrs. Brown, is sick. We at least hope she will soon recover from her illness and return to school.

Everyone is invited to the Christmas Cantata, "When Santa Forgot The Smiths," Friday night, sponsored by the Grammar School Department. The admission will be ten and twenty cents.

IN MEMORY OF MRS. SARAH ELLEN WILLIAMS

—o—

Mrs. Sarah Ellen Williams, age 74 years, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. L. Glasscock on the morning of December 1st, 1939.

God saw fit to send the heavenly messenger to the bedside of Mrs. Sarah Ellen Williams, who said "It is enough, come up higher." She will be greatly missed in the church and community as well as the home. Her seat is vacant and her voice stilled. We keenly feel our loss, and it is so sad for us to realize that we cannot meet this dear one on earth again, and no more hear her feeble but gentle footsteps and kind words.

Let us all pray and look toward the home of the soul, and when the end of life is drawing near, and the shadows of evening fall about us, we, too, can fall asleep in the arms of Jesus, and meet our loved ones in the city of God. She is not dead, just sweetly resting from her labors and cares, and if we live as she taught us, we will meet her over there, for we are sure she is at the beautiful gate waiting and looking this way, beckoning us to come up to the land where there is no parting, pain or sorrow. While here in body she had to suffer an awful lot of pain, but it was not in vain .

Sickness and sorrow it seemed that she had more than her share, but her reward is a home where everything is bright and fair. Our part now is to prepare to meet he there. Although our grief is hard to bear, our tears are shed in vain. God grant that we meet with her again. If any of you have flowers to give mother, give them while she lives. When she has passed away, roses she cannot see, and praises she cannot hear. Give her flowers while she lives to cheer her on, for useless is the flower that you give after the soul is gone.

It broke our hearts to see our mother go. We could not help but weep but there is a blessed hope that we may in heaven some day meet. Now let us as friends and relatives and loved ones bow in humble submission to the will of God our father and say like one of old, "The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away, blessed be the name of the Lord.

Mrs. Williams was the wife of the late David W. Williams who preceeded her to his reward nine years ago. She leaves to mourn her going one brother, J. D. McClendon of Ensley; one sister, Mrs. W. C. Shelby of Jemison Route 2; four sons, J. B. Williams of Fairfield, R. W. Williams of Hayden, R. J. Willaims of Bessemer, H. B. Williams of Falkville; five daughters, Mrs. W. J. Northcutt, Jemison Route 1; Mrs. E. L. Glasscock of Jemison, Mrs. A. P. Land of Wichita Falls, Texas, Mrs. C. C. Mathews of Jemison.

After appropriate services Saturday afternoon at Oak Grove Church conducted by Rev. G. H. Carroll and Rev. Junkers, pastor of Fairfield Highlands Baptist Church, the remains were gently borne out and laid to rest in the adjoining cemetery, Softly and kindly were the words spoken at the grave and loving friends encircled her as she was laid in her last resting place ,in mother earth, where she sleeps beneath a flower-covered mound to await the resurrection of the dead in Christ at His second coming.

It was so sad for one so dear to leave us here,

For us she was so very near.

God's will concerning her was best for she has gone home with Him to rest,

And there to be forever blest.—Written for her children, by E. L. Glasscock.

Pool-games ceased. Cues were racked and Mr. Watts found himself the center of an avid group. The situation appealed to him, since he considered himself a rather tough person. He hooked thumbs through belt-straps and worded his question again. "What sort of things did Andy Forrest say?"

"Ernie," declared the tall one sadly, "he said turrible things. He called you out of yo' name."

"Me?"

"Well, he didn't say You ezackly, on account of we didn't admit you done it . . . but he said the feller which did it was a—was a—"

"Was a what?"

"Well, I reckon you can guess what he said. He was mighty het up."

Ernie tried to look grim. "What else did he say?"

"He said some day he was goin' to find out who put that pitcher on the window, an' then he was goin' to beat that feller up."

"Oh! he said that, did he?"

"He sho' did, Ernie. Honest. Of co'se we didn't tell him it was you . . ."

"Why not?"

"We-e-ell, we didn't aim to git you in no trouble. We didn't know was you scared of him or not."

Mr. Watts rose to the crisis. He announced in a large and booming voice that he wasn't skeered of nobody, an' least of all Andy Forrest Somebody said, "You better had be. Andy said he was going to mop up with you."

Ernie inquired, loudly, "Where's Andy Forrest at now?"

"He's down to Warner's garage."

"Well, I'm goin' down there an' find out if he's so dawg-gone tough. That's what I'm goin' to do."

They applauded him. They informed him that he was some man. They expressed apprehension for Andy. They said they'd go along and watch the combat. "Ain't goin' to be no fight," sneered Ernie Watts. "This Andy Forrest don't know nothin' about fightin'."

Andy and Kay and Jim and Margaret and Barney were in the little machine-shop at the rear when the front entrance filled with young men. Barney said lightly, "Customers, Andy. Business is picking up."

Andy glimpsed the crowd and sensed its hostility. His lips set firmly and his eyes narrowed. A new dignity sat upon him and he spoke quietly. "You-all stay right here."

"Something wrong?"

"Yeh. But I can handle it."

Kay put her hand on his arm. She felt suddenly ill—knowing the answer to the question she was about to ask.

"Something about me, Andy?"

"Maybe. But you-all ain't got anything to do with it."

Clad in overalls and a light flannel shirt, Andy moved down the middle of the old warehouse, toward the men who were crowding through the door. Andy said, "What do you want?"

Ernie Watts stepped forward. "I'm kind of cravin' to have a little talk with you, Andy."

"Go ahead."

"You was in the Bon Ton this afternoon, wasn't you?"

"Yes."

"You tore a pitcher off the window, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"An' you said you was gonna whip the man that put it there, didn't you?"

"Somebody," said Andy, "seems to have been tellin' you the truth."

Margaret Hamilton had been watching the scene with quiet, observant eyes. She leaned close to Kay and whispered, "Do you know the Sheriff?"

"Yes. Why?"

"Telephone him. Quick. There's going to be trouble."

Kay walked into the machine-shop and whirled the handle of the wall telephone. She got the residence of Sheriff Floyd Griffin and spoke swiftly. Then, compelled by a fascinated horror, she returned to the big outer room.

Andy and Ernie Watts had moved closer to one another. Ernie's friends—a score of them—had surged in through the wide-open door. Barney and Jim Owenby stood silent and tense; eyes and lips grim. Waiting.

It was Andy who dominated the scene. He moved closer to Mr. Watts. He said, "Was it you who put that picture on the window?"

"Yes, it was. An' what are you goin' to do about it?"

"If you walk outside with me, I'll show you."

Ernie Watts was a good tactician. Without warning he leaped forward and struck. The blow caught Andy high up on the forehead and spun him around. And Ernie came in behind it. His second punch landed squarely on Andy's jaw . . . and Andy went down.

"Oh! he said that, did he?"

He was dazed. For just an instant he sprawled, then clambered to hands and knees—shaking his head. He staggered to his feet . . . but before Ernie could attack again, something happened.

Barney and Jim Owenby leaped forward. The former pinioned Ernie Watts' arms; the latter grabbed Andy. Andy said, "I'm all right. Let me go."

Ernie Watts struggled with Barney. Sensing an easy victory, he fought to free himself from Barney's amazingly efficient grip. He yelled to his friends, "Make him leave go! They're ganging me!"

Somebody took the cue. "Leave him go!"

The noise sifted through to the street. It came to the ears of an elderly man: a tall, quiet old man who had driven his ramshackle car up to one of the gas-pumps.

Doc Morrison got out of his car and looked inside. He saw a crowd of men, punching, kicking, cursing. He recognized Barney Hamilton and Jim Owenby and a half-dozen of the disreputable gang that made the Bon Ton Pool Room its headquarters.

Doc Morrison said, "Hey! Quit it!"

No one heard. Or, if they did—they paid no heed. Barney and Jim and Andy were struggling valiantly, with fine—but futile, effect. They fought silently. Grimly. They wasted no breath in words. Barney was bleeding. There was a lump under Jim Owenby's left eye. He swung at the man who had inflicted that lump: mashing his lips. The man howled with pain and insensate fury. He backed away and picked up a tire-tool from the floor. Kay screamed, "Look out!" as the man with the crushed lips threw the tire-tool.

Jim Owenby ducked. The steel implement flew through the air. There was the sickening sound of its impact upon human flesh. There was a brief groan and the thud of a collapsing body. There was blood, trickling sluggishly from the face of an old man.

A voice was raised above the melee. The voice said, "Good God, Fellers—you've kilt Doc Morrison!"

There was a momentary cessation of fighting. Then, before it could be resumed, the sturdy figure of Sheriff Floyd Griffin came in through the door. Margaret said something to him and he whipped out a gun.

"Git back! Ev'y damned one of you!"

The Sheriff's eyes were blazing. He meant business, and they knew it. They backed against the wall. Barney and Jim and Andy stood in the center of the floor, battered and bruised and bleeding. One of the pool-room gang lay unconscious. Kay ran forward and dropped to her knees beside the bleeding form of the old man—dabbing at the ugly wound with a pitifully inadequate handkerchief.

The Sheriff looked down at the figure of Doc Morrison. He asked, "Who done this?"

There was no answer. Sheriff Griffin glared at the others. "I know ev'y last one of you. And somebody's goin' to pay for this."

He bent over Doc Morrison. He placed the gun beside him on the concrete floor.

"He's bad hurt," announced the Sheriff in a solemn voice. "I'm holding all of you. An' if he dies . . ."

The hoodlums had lost their belligerence. Even these young men had known and loved Doc Morrison. They were from households in which the venerable Doc had done his greatest charity. Somebody said, in a hushed voice, "God! I wouldn't have hurt Doc for nothin'!"

The Sheriff said, "This town has stood for a lot. But this is somethin' it won't stand for."

In the days which followed, the citizens of Beverly did not gossip. They talked. Talked soberly and sanely. Murder and violence and drinking and gambling had not done this, but a serious injury to Doc Morrison was more than enough.

Contributing causes were forgotten in the actuality of Doc's injury. For the first time in a month Kay Forrest was not the chief subject of conversation. They talked about Doc and of the fight in which he had been injured. The night of the third day the citizens held a mass-meeting. There was little oratory. Men of substance spoke gravely, quietly and seriously. The spirit of the town had changed. This impending tragedy stripped the town of civic pretense and made it acutely aware of certain internal problems.

On the morning of the fourth day the physician in charge announced publicly that Doc Morrison had regained consciousness and would recover. That morning the sun shone. That morning citizens of Beverly smiled again, and today they dared talk of what they would have done had Doc died. They had been afraid to speak of that before, lest—as some of them expressed it—lest they put bad mouth on him.

A new wave of protest and indignation swept the more distant sections of Beauregard County, penetrating deep into Big and Little Moccasin Swamps. Well-meaning but definitely illiterate preachers once again impressed upon their tiny congregations that this was the work of the Devil; that the injury to Doc had been the final warning of a Providence roused to wrath. They yelled hellfire and damnation. And in Beverly itself, the same sentiments were expressed, though in different and perhaps less violent language.

Senator Bankhead Urges Cotton Referendum Vote

Balloting On December 9th Is Held Important To Alabama Farmers

The importance of Alabama farmers voting the Cotton Referendum December 9th was urged by United States Senator John H. Bankhead in a statement issued today. The Referendum will be held in all cotton producing states.

Sen. John H. Bankhead

Senator Bankhead listed the following five reasons why it is highly important that Alabama farmers go to the polls and vote on the cotton question:

1st. It settles whether cotton farmers want to continue the control of surplus production and sale of cotton. On August first last the surplus before the new crop started to market was 14,000,000 bales. Of that amount 11,000,000 bales were held off the market through government loans.

2nd. It settles whether government loans will be available next year to prevent starvation prices of cotton. The law prohibits cotton loans if the farmers vote down cotton quotas.

3rd. It settles whether non-cooperators will be allowed to depress the price at the expense of cooperating farmers.

4th. If the control plan is voted down voluntary acreage quotas will be adopted by the Secretary of Agriculture. Farmers who do not comply will forfeit all benefit payments. Farmers who do comply will suffer low market prices as a result of over-production by non-cooperators, with no loan to sustain the price.

5th. The entire agricultural program will be thrown into confusion. Congress will not be inclined to make further appropriations to aid the farmers if they reject the basis of the entire program by their vote December 9th. A big vote is important to overcome opposition in the west where the increase of cotton acreage is desired on account of the lower cost of production there. I hope every farmer interested in continuing the program will take an active part in securing as large a vote as possible for continued control.

Santa Claus To Visit 16,000 Workers

While it would be impossible to pay all WPA project employees before Christmas for all work done during the month of December, approximately 16,000 project workers in Alabama will receive ther pay on December 23 who normally during other months, receive their checks after December 25, according to a schedule announced by Colonel W. G. Henderson, administrator for Alabama.

Included in this announcement is another group of WPA project employees to receive their checks this month in advance of the usual date. This latter group of approximately 7,500 would normally receive their pay checks on January 2, 1940 but will receive them on December 30, 1939.

Explaining this further, Colonel Henderson stated that all WPA project employees in Alabama who would normally receive their checks on December 24, 25, or 26, should have them by December 23. All workers who normally would receive checks on January 1 and 2, 1940 would be paid on December 30, 1939.

Thousands of other WPA project workers in Alabama will receive their checks on the regular date. Regular pay dates will be maintained through the first part of this month.

This rescheduling of pay periods for this month only will enable these WPA employees to get their money before Christmas and will be accomplished with the cooperation of the treasury offices and is, however, dependent entirely upon prompt arrival of time reports from the various WPA offices over the state.

DEBATE AT MT. PLEASANT

WPA CHANGES

Douglas G. Jackson, who has held the position as Supervisor of Area Three of the WPA, with headquarters in Montgomery, has resigned to accept a place with the Alabama-Georgia Syrup Co.

This area is composed of the counties of Montgomery, Chilton, Dallas, Autauga, Lowndes, Coosa, Elmore, Bullock, Macon, Tallapoosa, Chambers, Lee and Russell. Mr. Jackson will be succeeded by E. D. Clarke, who was staff engineer in the State WPA office, Montgomery.

Respect For Health Laws Urged

A genuine respect on the part of the community for all existing health laws is necessary for efficient health service, it was brought out in a statement by a local health official this week. Laws which are designed to aid in curbing the inroads of sickness and disease are equally deserving of public support as are those enacted to prevent crimes, he pointed out.

The law gives the health office entry to any home, school or public establishment to take steps to prevent the spread of disease. Resistance to a health officer is punishable by a fine according to the Alabama code, while the health officer is not possessed of police powers himself, it is his duty to promote the enforcement of any laws which are designed to protect public health.

"I have noticed a tendency on the part of a few persons to pay little attention to public health laws," states Dr. S. D. Sturkie, county health officer. "These individuals usually dismiss the law with a wave of their hands and say it is impractical. A little of this attitude has been manifested by certain public offical, a thing which makes the health officer's job most difficult at times.

"Public health laws often require that the comfort of the individual be sacrificed for public good. Such is the case with respect to the law making treatment of venereal disease patients compulsory. In order to control the disease, lessen the spread and save human life the syphilitic individual is made to take treatment which is sometimes painful to him. The health officer's real purpose in putting such an indivdual in jail is not easily apparent to the lay person; as for example, the employer of a negro who is put in jail. The employer will plead with the health officer to wheedle him for incarcerating the negro, not realizing that it is not merely for the patient's own welfare but primarily for the public good, that the negro is being jailed.

IN MEMORY OF MR. J.W. THORNTON

Two years ago, December 9, the death angel visited our home and carried away our loving father.

We miss your dear sweet voice,
We miss your loving smile,
But the dear Lord took his choice
Just took you from us for awhile.
We'll meet you some bright day
Then we can all say,
Dear Daddy, from us you have been parted.
You left us all broken hearted.
Our work on earth well done,
To the dear Lord we have come.
We have met many heartaches,
We have met many sorrows,
Since you have been gone, my father.
You were kind and sweet
To everyone that you would meet;
Your place is vacant, yet
It's a place we'll never forget.
Through all the days of our life
We'll strive to do our best
So that we, too, can meet you on yonder shore.
There too, we can all be at rest
Where there will be no more parting or sorrows to bear.
When the dear Lord says "Come," we'll be ready to go.—A daughter,

Miss Flora Thornton.

CARD OF THANKS

We want to thank the good people for what they are doing for us and for the gifts that were brought to us on Thanksgiving night. May God bless you all. Again do we want to thank you from the very depth of our hearts.—Clifford Culp and Family.

"White Christmas Campaign For Methodist Children's Home In Selma Is Now Underway

Again the call comes to Methodists of Alabama and other lovers of childhood to come to the aid of the 151 children being cared for at the Methodist Children's Home at Selma, and again a "White Christmas" campaign is underway to raise $35,000 for that purpose, as well as for much needed repairs and improvements on the property.

The call for this White Christmas offering on the part of all Methodist churches, Sunday Schools, and other auxiliary church groups, has been issued by K. E. Cooper of Birmingham, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Home, representing both Conferences of Aabama. Other members of this Board include: Dr. S. O. Kimbrough, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Anniston, vice-chairman of the board; Mrs. L. C. Branscomb, Birmingham; Dr. Robert Echols, Bessemer; and Dr. S. T. Slaton, Birmingham. Board members from the Alabama Conference include: Dr. J. E. Tate, Bay Minette, secretary; Mrs. Ed. H. Hobbs, Bruce Beveridge and J.E. Wilkinson of Selma, and W. P. Pattillo of Citronelle.

W. H. Plant of Selma is treasurer of the Home, to whom all checks should be maed payable, and Dr. R. J. Mills is superintendent of the Home to whom all remittances should be forwarded, following the conclusion of the "White Christmas" campaign.

Methodist Children's Home Christmas headquarters have been established at 620 Webb Crawford Building in Birmingham with Mrs. Olin H. Horton in charge, and all requests for supplies for carrying on this "White Christmas" campaign, which is expected to culminate in all churches, Sunday Schools and other church groups on Sunday, December 24, may be made to her, which posters, dime cards, collection envelopes, and other material, as well as Christmas stories and plays may also be obtained without charge.

Mr. Cooper states:

"We need not only funds for the necessaries of life for these 151 children, including 35 little ones in the nursery, but we also need funds for other equipment. We need new laundry equipment. We need a new building to serve several essential purposes. We need expansion of attic floor space in the Administration Building in order to make room for a number of destitute children clamoring for entrance We need increased funds for repairs, worn out furnitue, equipment and other facilites. We should by all means have a Ten Thousand Dollar increase in the Christmas offering this year."

Besides this material, which will furnish the meat for economists to feed upon for a decade, a separate list of questions is being prepared for a housing census.

These, too, are virtually in final form, but no money has yet been provided for the survey.

This study, if made, will provide a complete picture of living conditions asking such questions as:

Where and what kind of houses do Americans live in?

When were they built and are repairs needed.

JR. G. A. NEWS

The Jr. G. A. met at the home of their counselor, Mrs. C. L. Breedlove, on Thursday, November 23. The meeting was called to order by the president, Jean Donovan.

We had an interesting program on "Clouds Over Europe." There were eight members present. We had as visitors Mrs. Oscar Davis, Mrs. J. W. Fant, former counselor and Miss Dorothy Arnold. We have a joint meeting with the Intermediates at the First Baptist Church on December 13. We hope to see every member present at this meeting.

Citizenship Meetings

movements are studying how to meet the problems of young people, and how to induct these adults of the future into their places in society. And now, at the most critical time in our history, the adults of America are entering with characteristic energy and enthusiasm into that most important work of inducting young and women into active and intelligent citizenship.

To dramatibze Citizenship and the arrival of the young citizen at the age of full fellowship in his government, a certain day is chosen by the states and appropriate celebrations are held in which the young people receive recognition. Wisconsin has had eminent success with such a day. Georgia, Tennessee, Arkansas, North Carolina, Florida, and Texas have just held celebrations. Probably many other states are doing the same. For Alabama, December 14 has been selected as Citizenship Day. It is believed not a more important Alabama Day—for it is Alabama Day—ever occurred than this one we are preparing to celebrate. "Ballots instead of Bullets," for our young people, may be used as a slogan, for it is only by the most intelligent guidance of our democracy that our young men shall be kept out of war.

Because of the keen interest of parent-teacher groups in Citizenship Day, and because of their definite responsibility to youth, these two parent-teacher associations have arranged for the celebration of Citizenship Day in their respective communities.

The public is cordially invited to attend these meetings, especially those young people who have arrived or will soon arrive at the age when they will cast their first vote.

THORSBY DEFEATS MITCHELL DAM BY SCORE OF 33 TO 16

The Thorsby Independent Basketball Team defeated the strong Mitchell Dam quint on Tuesday night, November 29, by the score of 33-16. The game was replete with thrills for the large crowd of spectators, with both teams breaking swiftly to gain advantage. The Thorsby players held a two-point lead at the half, but the second half saw them swing into action with uncanny passwork and tight defensive play which proved bewildering to the Dammers.

Little Willie Smith was the big gun for Thorsby, weaving in and out from under the basket, he registered seven field goals and one foul shot for a 15-point mark. The other points were divided with Hayes counting five, Cofer 2, Jackson 3, McClain 4 and Mims 4.

For Mitchell Dam scoring honors were generally divided as follows: Big Boy Mayfield 4, Lockhart 3, Tiffin 2, Dock Baker 2, Cobb 3 and Dutch Baker 2. Their speed demon and crackshot, little Earl Melton, was held scoreless by R. Pate, who showed him one grand display of guarding. Not many times is "Little Snowy" as lost for opportunities to shoot as he was in this game. A grand little player he is, but Pate had him marked in this game.

Both teams were guilty of excessive fouling with Mitchell committing 7 and Thorsby 11. Ths game marks the fourth consecutive game the Thorsby Independents have won this season against no losses. Below are the scores thus far:

Thorsby 20, Jemison 18; Thorsby 27, Mt. Pleasant 12; Thorsby 29, Mt. Pleasant 14; Thorsby 33, Mitchell Dam 16.

The Independents are scheduled to meet Prattville tonight, Thursday, and the Thorsby Jr. Hgih team will take on Coach Alexander's team from Thomas Jr. High. Both of these games will be played in the Thorsby High gymnasium at 7:00 o'clock.

MERRY CHRISTMAS

Joy to the World

Joy to the world---the Lord is come;
Let earth receive her King;
Let every heart prepare Him room,
And heaven and nature sing.

Joy to the earth--the Saviour reigns!
Let men their songs employ;
While fields and floods, rocks, hills and plains,
Repeat the sounding joy.

No more let sins and sorrows grow,
Nor thorns infest the ground:
He comes to make His blessings flow
Far as the curse is found.

He rules the world with truth and grace
And makes the nations prove
The glories of His righteousness,
And wonders of His love.

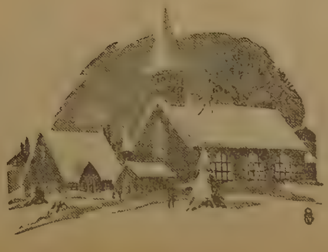
—Isaac Watts.

Silent Night! Holy Night!

Silent night! Holy night!
All is calm, all is bright
Holy infant, so tender and mild,
'Round yon virgin mother and child!
Sleep in heavenly peace,
Sleep in heavenly peace.

Silent night! Holy night!
Shepherds quake at that sight!
Glories stream from heaven afar,
Heavenly host sing Alleluia;
Christ, the Saviour, is born,
Christ, the Saviour, is born.

Silent night! Holy night!
Son of God, love's pure light
Radiant beams from Thy holy face,
With the dawn of redeeming grace,
Jesus, Lord, at Thy birth,
Jesus, Lord, at Thy birth.



Alabama

From thy praries broad and fertile,
Where thy snow-white cotton shines,
To the hills where coal and iron
Hide in thine exhaustless mines,
Strong-armed miners---sturdy farmers;
Loyal hearts what'er we be,
Alabama, Alabama,
We will aye be true to thee!

From thy quarries where the marble
White as that of Paros gleams
Waiting till thy sculptor's chisel,
Wake to life they poet's dreams;
For not only wealth of nature,
Wealth of mind hast thou to fee,
Alabama, Alabama,
We will aye be true to thee!

Indian Summer Under Southern Skies

Wherein the tribe—Klan Golson entertains with a realism reminiscent of days agone, when chivalry and hospitality were commonplace throughout the Southland.

Setting: The ancestral home of the Wetumpka Herald Golsons.

Occasion: Meeting of editors and newsmen and women of the east-central district of the Alabama Press Association.

Time: Friday, December eight—high noon. The warm Indian Summer sun riding low in the heavens near the Tropic of Capricorn.

This lovely home is situated under stately oaks, overlooking the town of Wetumpka near the site of the eastern capitol of the Creek Indians, and gateway of hope to thousands of pioneers who in the early days passed through to establish themselves and enjoy freedom in a new land of opportunity.

On the spacious lawn a lengthy table had been "set" laden to the utmost with every edible and delectable viand imaginable that might tempt the palate of a country editor.

Most of the newspapers of the district were represented by a younger generation of "moulders of public opinion"—and a few, just a few, of the "old-timers."

Thus began one of the most perfect and enjoyable business-social gatherings that this writer has been privileged to attend in a long, long time. Nor have we in a generation enjoyed a hospitality more gracious and sweet than that of our host and hostess, Editor and Mrs. Hunter Golson, ably assisted by members of the household and others.

After spending an hour or more at the board, neither the "oldsters" nor the "youngsters" were very enthusiastic about talking "shop," or discussing business; but, as we had been called together to counsel with our new field secretary, Doyle S. Buckles, the company reassembled in the living room where a "business" session was held.

Mr. Buckles presided and explained many of the problems which daily confront the weekly newspaper man. The discussion became general, and it is quite certain that a lot of the fellows got a lot of good out of attending the meeting, and through fellowship and association with this goodly company.

As the evening shadows lengthen, sweet memories will linger to comfort and cheer one of the "old timers," who was accorded the happy privilege of being present.

The Plugged Gun Amendment

The "plugged gun" amendment to the state game and fish law is some more tomfoolery added to the State's already too voluminous statutes.

The amendment to the gun regulation provides, according to recent release of the Conservation Department, that the possession of an unplugged shotgun in the woods or fields of Alabama is prima facie evidence that the possessor is hunting. The plug, of metal or wood, must be inserted at the top end of the magazine inside the spring so that it cannot be removed like a shell. Automatic and repeating shotguns must have this plug so that they cannot shoot more than three times at one loading in taking local game birds and animals, as well as migratory ones.

The pugged gun regulation was passed this year, and some violators have escaped punishment by claiming they were not hunting, although in the woods and fields with an unplugged gun, according to Ben C. Morgan, chief of the Game, Fish & Seafoods Division. Fines of not less than $20 are provided by law for violation of this regulation.

It's An Unending War

Alexander, Hannibal, Scipio, Pomey, Caesar, Attila Charlemagne, Otto Genghis Kahn, Frederick, Charles, Napoleon Wellington, Bismarck, the last Kaiser, Hindenburg, Ludendorff, Foch—and now Hitler Stalin, Gamelin and God knows who else—are just a few elected by fate to move millions to their destruction along these unchanging avenues of death.

It never gets anywhere. It is unending war. The intervals are just "armistices." The only escape they have found for it came with the discovery of the Western Hemisphere. The institution of war followed them here—but not this interminable and senseless war. We were foolishly sucked back into this welter of animal savagery 22 years ago. We gained nothing. We lost much. It is now apparent that nothing we had to offer of either intellect or brute force could alter it.

Have we anything to offer to alter it now? There is hardly an element of change in this renewal of war—same enemies, same high sounding slogans—same lack of permanent aims and attainable principles.

We escaped this persistent pestilence for 128 years by emigrating 3000 miles from the area of plague. Let's stay here this time.—Birmingham Post.

MORAL ECHOES

REV. D. W. HASKEW, D.D.

The sly old fox came trotting along by the barn. An impudent old rooster was roosting on the comb of the house and began to poke fun at the fox. Said he: "You think that all fowls are afraid of you but take a peep at me, Mr. Fox. I am not afraid of you." "Ah," sad the fox. "It is not bravery on your part that makes you feel safe in my presence. It is the position that you hold on the roof." If the rooster had been on a low limb, he would not have boasted of his safety. When we are elevated above other people we feel a sense of safty. It is the inequality of the human race that produces the advantage that one has over another. There are many things that would frighten us stiff if we were taken from our elevation and put down on the level with things that other people meet day after day.

A mischevious lad took a biscuit from the breakfast table and for fun he inserted a charged wire into the biscuit and carried it out into the back yard. No sooner had he placed it and retired to the back porch than a hen drove her bill into the biscuit. The electric current gave her a shock that she had never felt before and she squawked and made a race for the barn. A wise old rooster was looking on and he pitied the female sex for their lack of poise and self control. With deliberation he walked up to the biscuit and drove his bill therein. No sooner done than he too, gave a loud squawk and he followed the hen to the barn in close pursuit. It may be a lack of real piety in me to find pleasure in seeing a wise guy get it in the neck, but when I saw that rooster get his dose I coud not help feeling good over his humilitation. Have you not seen people who knew more than other folks? They pitied the rest of us for our lack of knowledge. I love to see such folks get a shock. We are nearer alike under like conditions than the most of us suppose.

Two teams were on the diamond playing ball. They had the full attention of the grandstand, until two men just down in front of me staged a fight. Cold drink bottles and bad language filled the air and there was much confusion. While the fight asted no one looked at the teams on the diamond. In fact the game stopped and all watched the fight until it was over. That is a picture of world conditions today. Life is just as interesting today as it is being played on the diamond, as it ever was, but they have started a big fight over the ocean and we have lost sight of living. The world is at a standstill, watching the fight.

The other night I was trying hard to hear a message over my radio that was really worth hearing. Back of the voice of my speaker I could hear jazz music. In spite of all that I could do this interference grew louder and louder until the message that was worth while was drowned out completely. All I could hear was a hip hurrah. Serious minded people today have so much hip hurrah to face in this new age until it is dffcult to get the value out of life. The jazz of things have created so much interference until that is about all we can hear. What a pity, for there are yet some folks who want to hear things worth while.

I held a piece of board in one hand and in the other I held a piece of sandpaper. I ran the sandpaper up and down the edge of the board. I felt a keen pain in my finger and on looking I saw that a splinter had gone through the sandpaper and almost through my finger. My finger cried out with pain, for it had been penetrated by something that did not belong in human flesh For several days I suffered much. Do you want to know what sin is It is that substance that comes into human life that does not belong there. What wood in human flesh is—that is what sin is in the heart. God did not make our hearts for sin, any more than he made our flesh for wood. Sin is the splinter in the soul. It never fails to hurt. It never fails to produce corruption in society. Keep sin out of your heart just like you would keep splinters out of your flesh.

FORESTRY BOOSTED IN 1940 AAA PLANS

If every farmer could plant four acres of forest trees on their farms next year under the AAA program, more than six million dollars would be earned and the state would be well on the way to timber production again.

That is the way Rufus H. Page, Jr extension forester of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, explains the new provisions of the 1940 AAA program which makes available $30 for every farm which has four acres of forest trees planted during the year. This $30 is in addition to other payments earned under the program.

"In addition to the usual soil building allowance for carrying out soil building practices ,there will be granted an additional $30 payment per farm for the planting of trees, based on the rate of $7.50 per acre," Page said. "This means that a farmer may earn payment for terracing, winter legumes or some other good farming practice and still earn $30 for planting four acres of trees."

"Build-Up": Way to Ease Women's Pain

Many weak, run-down women are in a vicious circle. Their under-nourishment often leads to what is called functional dysmenorrhea and its symptoms—headaches, nervousness, irritability, intermittent cramp-like pains—from which many women suffer. Surest way to break the vicious circle is by building strength and energy, which so many find may be done with the help of CARDUI. It stimulates appetite, aids digestion, and thus helps in this "build-up" of physical resistance. Women also report that, if taken just before and during "the time," CARDUI helps to ease the pain and discomfort of the period.

Resolutions were passed. Petitions were circulated. A special meeting of the Town Council was called, after which Mayor Alec Roberts held a long and earnest discussion with Solicitor Gabe Dixon and Sheriff Floyd Griffin. The Sheriff found himself fighting for right and justice: first, because that promised the greatest number of votes in the not-too-distant primary; and, secondly, because he, too, had been deeply fond of Doc Morrison.

The Sheriff lumbered upstairs to the corner suite which had been occupied by Kirk Reynolds; the suit in the living-room of which Dan Creedon still operated the dice-game.

Dan was seated by the window, in his shirt-sleeves. He was a tall, stony individual with sad, steady eyes and a laconic manner. He said, "Howdye, Sheriff," and Floyd Griffin said, "Howdye, Creedon." Then he saw the other occupant of the room; the vivid brunette who stood near the window looking down upon Monument Square. The Sheriff said, "Mawnin', Miss Henkel."

Her voice was flat and tired. She said, "Good morning."

Floyd Griffin returned his attention to Dan Creedon.

"Doc Morrison is purty popular heahabouts."

"That's all I been hearing for three days."

"There's been meetin's an' things. The whole town is sad."

"Yeah? So what?"

The Sheriff gestured toward the adjoining room.

"That's through."

"The dice-game?"

"Uh-huh."

Creedon shrugged. "They'll get over it."

"Nope. Folks mean business this time." The guardian of law and order fidgeted. "Nor neither that ain't all, Creedon."

"What do you mean, that ain't all?"

"You got to get out of town."

"So? And suppose I don't?"

Floyd Griffin's eyes narrowed. "I know you ain't plumb foolish, Creedon. When they say to git out—why I reckon you got sense enough to do it."

"Sure . . . but listen: if I close up the dice-game—"

"That ain't enough. Not wantin' to hurt yo' feelin's, Creedon—the town's kind of fed up with you. An' I'm tellin' you, man to man an' friendly-like, that it wouldn't be awful healthy for you to stay heah."

"I get you. How much time have I got?"

"Oh! th'ee—fo' days. So long as folks know you're really fixin' to go, why I can keep 'em satisfied."

A faint smile flickered across Creedon's thin lips. He said, "Four days then, and I'll scram. Anything else?"

"Yeh . . ." The Sheriff looked more uncomfortable. He said, "It's about you, Miss Henkel."

Big black eyes flashed up to his. The lithe figure stiffened. She asked, "What about me?"

"You got to git out, too."

CHAPTER XIV

For perhaps five minutes after the departure of Sheriff Griffin, Babe Henkel said nothing more. Dan Creedon watched her—sympathetically. Eventually he spoke, and his voice was kindly. He said, "Snap out of it, Babe."

She turned smouldering eyes upon him. "The louse!" she snapped.

"Griffin? You're crazy. He can't protect us any more because they won't let him."

"I ain't thinking about that, Dan. I'm talking about running us out of town."

"Well . . ." He shrugged. "There's nothing to do but scram."

She came closer and leaned over the table, her eyes boring into his. She said, "That's what you think."

"Sure I do."

"Well, you're wrong."

"Now listen, Babe . . ."

"You listen to me. This town ain't gone suddenly moral. Things don't happen that way. It's a cover-up."

"For what?"

"For Barney Hamilton. They don't want to do anything to him, so they're getting rid of us."

Dan said, "Maybe. And what can we do about it?"

"Plenty."

"What, for instance?"

Babe was tense. She said, "Dan—you ain't gonna take this sitting down, are you? You ain't willing to blow without anybody even having been punished for killing Kirk?"

He shook his head. "I don't like to, if that's what you mean. But listen, Babe—me and you, we can't buck a whole town."

"You mean you'll stick?"

She said, "Barney Hamilton killed Kirk."

"I suppose he did. But everybody in town thinks he had good cause."

"Well, I don't. You see, I wasn't hard-boiled with Kirk. I was pretty crazy about him."

"Sure you were . . ."

"If I had been bumped off, Kirk wouldn't have checked out without doing something about it, would he?"

"That's different."

"How?"

"You're a dame."

She placed her hands palms down on the table-top. The long, slender fingers with their crimson nails were trembling.

"Before I leave this burg," she announced, "the guy that killed Kirk is gonna get his."

Dan Creedon was worried. "Don't go getting yourself all worked up. The cards are stacked against you, Babe."

"Going yellow on me?"

"Answer that for yourself."

"You're fixing to run out."

"I know when I'm beat."

"Well, I don't!" Her voice was hard. "You can blow whenever you get good and ready. Me—I'm gonna do something."

Creedon shrugged. "If that's the way you feel about it, cut me in."

Suddenly her eyes were filled with tears. "Gee, Dan! That's swell. But I don't want to get you in no jam."

"I can take it."

"You mean you'll stick?"

"If you can sell me on an idea, yes. And get this straight, it ain't that I think you're smart. You're crazy to step into any more trouble. But I never have run out on anybody and I don't figure to start now."

Babe straightened. She walked across the room and back again. Her lips were pressed into a straight, scarlet line; there were tiny, vertical furrows in her forehead. And finally she spoke, as though the mere fact of words might clarify her ideas.

"Listen—there's just exactly one guy in this town who might help out."

"Who?"

She spoke in a tense whisper:

"Jeff Butler!"

"He probably won't work out, you know."

"Sure I know. But we got to try him."

"What are you going to suggest to him?"

"I don't know the answer to that one, either. But after I've talked to him a few minutes . . ." She put her hands on Creedon's shoulder. "What I want you to do is this, Dan: Beat it downstairs and mosey around town. Find out where Jeff Butler lives and how to get there."

Dan rose, though with visible reluctance. "You ain't being very bright, Babe."

"We'll see. And bring Kirk's car back when you come. I'll be ready."

He returned in forty minutes. "Got the dope," he reported, "and I think I can find the place. Let's go."

They drove east—toward Big Moccasin Swamp. Their road wound into the swamp. At best, it was poor, and eventually they came to the old and untouched section of highway: a road-bed reinforced with sapling trunks. They were jolted and jounced unmercifully on this corduroy road; their wheels skidded in the deep sandy ruts. Dan Creedon gave his attention to the business of driving, and Babe Henkel sat back in her seat, staring into the cool shade under the pines Thinking

It was eerie, desolate country. The swamp weighed upon her, so that she shivered. She said, "God! How can human beings live out here?"

His answer was apparently irrelevant. "Think we'd better call it off?"

She shook her head. "No." Then, "Think you can find the place?"

"I think so. They said this was the only road."

And then they came to the cabin they sought. An old Negro, repairing the ancient harness of a bony mule with a bit of rope informed them that this was the residence of Mr. Jeff Butler, sho' nuff. They glanced uncertainly at one another as they turned from the road and progressed in second across the sandy bit of land between cabin and tool-shed.

Jeff Butler's long figure appeared on the dog trot which bisected his cabin. His weak gray eyes blinked into the sunlight and he shaded them with a bony hand. When he squinted there were innumerable crow's-feet at the corners of his eyes, and he cocked his head at an angle as though better to focus upon his visitors. His high, nasal voice came through the morning air.

"You-all lookin' fo' somebody?"

Dan Creedon answered. "We want to see Mr. Jeff Butler."

Jeff thought it over for a moment before answering. Then he said "I'm Jeff Butler."

They got out of the car and approached the cabin. Jeff watched them impassively, his leathern face expressionless. What he was thinking—or if he was thinking at all—they could not tell. His costume definitely informal . overalls and ragged shirt with sleeves cut off above the elbow. They walked to the house and onto the dogtrot.

"My name is Creedon. This is Miss Henkel."

"Yeh . . . I know."

They stood about awkwardly. Then Babe spoke.

"You here alone, Mr. Butler?"

"Yes'm . . ." Jeff was neither cordial nor hostile. He simply stood there, rocking slightly on the balls of his overlarge feet.

"This is very important," said Babe. "I want to be sure nobody can overhear us."

Farmers Planning For Terracing

Many farmers in this section are making plans for terracing, some having already begun building terraces, according to County Agent J. W. Fant, and Mr. James H. Wood, Superintendent of the Soil Conservation Service in the CCC camp area near Clanton, Alabama.

Where large tractor terracing equipment is unavailable, satisfactory terraces can be built with equipment on the farm. Soil Conservation Service technicians will be glad to cooperate in seeing that terraces are properly laid out. It was also pointed out that terraces should not be built unless satisfactory outlets are already available.

According to County Agent Mr. Fant, it is important that farmers do not undertake more terracing than may be competed in a season and it is also essential that each terrace be completed before new terracing is undertaken. This provides strong and satisfactory terraces and eliminates later rebuilding and erosion damage which results when terraces break.

Equipment which may be used for terracing where larger terracing units are not available, includes turn plows and long wing terracing plows; homemade or commercial V-drag; drag pan; and small farm tractors equipped with small blade terracing machines, tillers and V-drags.

Farmers desiring to learn the best methods of building terraces are urged to consult the County Agent or Soil Conservation Service technicians.

ANNOUNCING REV. B. W. WARE AS EVANGELIST

"To My Frends of Chilton County:

"On August 1, 1939, after eighteen years as a Methodist Minister, I withdrew from the Methodist ministry and cast my lot with 'The Church of the Nazarene.' I am now a fully recognized minister in the 'Church of the Nazarene,' also a commissioned evangelist in the said Church, commissioned to go anywhere in the world that the Nazarene recognizes as its parrish.

"Our Church stands for the very highest there is in a living religion. We believe in a salavtion that saves men from a wilful sin. We believe in a pure heart made pure by the baptism of the Holy Spirit, and witnessed too, by the same spirit. Government statistics show that we paid more per member of our Church last year than did any other Church in the country. This was done because we believe, and practice, God's method of financing His work, namely, tithing. We believe our members especially ministers should refrain from the use of tobacco. We practice baptism in any way that the conscience of the candidate for baptism wants it administered.

"Now, as an evangelist, I am commissioned to preach just such doctrine as set forth above, adding to it a firm belief in the second coming of Christ. I am now making up a slate for revival effort and will be glad to go anywhere you may call me to go.

"B. W. WARE."

Each morning he stacked up letters he'd write—Tomorrow.

And thoughts of the folks he would fill with delight—Tomorrow.

It was too bad, indeed, he was busy today, and hadn't the minute to stop on his way. "More time I will have to give others," he'd say—Tomorrow.

The greatest of workers this man would have been—Tomorrow.

The world would have known him had he ever seen—Tomorrow.

But, in fact, he passed on, and he faded from view, and all that he left here when living was through, was a mountain of things he intendel to do—Tomorrow.

"Warnie" Deason Helps Kill Big Rattler

George Warren Deason, formerly of Lomax, and who is now working with Camp Canby California (CCC) says he is getting along fine in a recent letter to his mother Mrs. Charity Deason.

He inclosed the following clipping from the local county paper, telling of a battle the Camp boys had with a big rattler:

A huge rattesnake, 13 inches in diameter at the heaviest point and 12½ feet long carrying 186 rattles and 31 buttons was killed in the vicinity of Camp Harrison Gulch, located near Knob, Calif. The head measured 11 inches wide and 15 inches long; the eyes were nearly three quarters of an inch in diameter, and the forked tongue could be thrust out of its mouth for a distance of more than seven inches. The snake when sounding its rattles could be heard at 90 yards distance, striking terror in every living thing in the vicinity.

It required 31 men working furiously for an hour and a half to kill this huge snake. Unbelievable as it may seem, this snake was actually killed by the men in this camp.

Return as Wage-Earners

In many sanatoria, patients are being trained in some type of suitable work so that they can return to their communities as wage-earners. This program of rehabilitation, made possible to some extent by Christmas Seals, is relieving communities of the financial responsibility of taking care of cured tuberculosis patients, in addition to giving the persons themselves a feeling of independence.

Well, we are glad to say that the health of our community is fairly good this week. No serious sickness here, for which we are thankful.

Our Church is moving along nicely now. Last Sunday we had Rev. McMinn from Lomax with us. He brought us a good sermon and his subject was: "Be An Example For Christ." We had a good Sunday School and a good prayer meeting and B.Y.P.U. Sunday night. Don't forget our preaching days. We Sunday.

Before we invite everybody to come and be with us we would like to see all of the church membership to come and be with us and help us to carry on the good work. You know the more we do in anything the more we get out of it. We want to see our Church and Sunday School grow. We ought to be thankful that the Lord has spared our lives and let us live. TRUTH about ADVERTISING

ADVERTISING'S NO MYSTERY

SOME of us remember well when John Slattery started in business. He couldn't have been over 25 and he had only a few hundred dollars in capital. But he did have a wife and two fine boys. He wanted to make them comfortable. He quit his job, went in on his own.

Charles Roth

At first he would come to us and in his frank, likable way ask if we would buy from him. We liked John. It flattered us to have him invite us to become his customers. We began trading with him.

He treated us so considerately and so honestly; he gave us such good service; he was so grateful for our patronage, that we enjoyed being his customers. It made us feel good. Others felt the same way. His business grew.

Then he began asking more people to trade with him than he could reach in person. He had to run small advertisements in the newspaper, which he wrote himself after store hours.

As he grew larger he ran larger advertisements, and where in the beginning he had a handful of customers, now he had several hundred.

He continued to advertise in the newspaper. His business continued to grow. He couldn't know all his customers by name now, of course, but they felt that they could buy from him with confidence because he had been recommended to them by another friend whom they had always trusted.

This other friend who recommended John Slattery was the newspaper which carried his advertising.

Whatever you read in the newspaper you naturally feel you can believe, because you know that a reputable newspaper will not accept advertising from any but honest and reliable concerns.

Because this young man starting in business made use of that aid he built his business. As his business grew he was able to give his customers better service and more for their money.

Although few of the persons reading his advertisements and becoming his customers realized it, they were all indebted to the newspaper for its service in bringing to their attention an opportunity of getting more for their money by publishing advertisements of this enterprising young man.

Advertising is serving us in this same way every day, by bringing information of where we can buy most advantageously, by helping us to find what we want the lowest possible prices.

Carnival Of Our Own—

For the past several years it has been he custom for Clanton to send a princess" to the Birmingham Christas Carnival. That practice is alright. his affords some Clanton girl a good me, and the Birmingham Christmas arnival is a merry affair. This year over the ate other cities and towns are stagg a Christmas Carnival of their own—d they are meeting with great sucss. Why can't Clanton make this an nual affair; elect our own princess, d really have a big time at the erriest and cherriest season of the ar? It is almost too late to plan an fair of this kind for this Christmas, t it is not too late, nor is it too rly to begin planning to have the ost elaborate program Clanton has er seen next Christmas. With a little operation it can be put over. Think over. We feel sure the Clanton erchants will lend their cooperation, d will be amply repaid—and it will be home proposition for home people—mething everyone here can enjoy.

There will be a Christmas program at Concord Baptist Church on Sunday evening, November 24th, beginning at 6:30 o'clock. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Decorated Show Windows And Assortment Of Christmas Gifts Greet Local Shoppers

If we were going to award a prize the most beautiful store window in wn, we feel sure that it would be most impossible to get by without at st awarding duplicate first prizes d maybe the same for the second and ird prizes, for the merchants of lanton have really spared no effort decorate their stores and show-winws for the merry Christmas season.

Inside the stores the thrifty shopper ill find that a pretty show window is t all that the merchants of this city ve to offer them, for the very latest styles and articles that make excellent gifts that are always appreciated, may be found therein. The slogan the merchants is that of the News—Trade At Home This Year." They ve left nothing undone that may rnish residents of this section an cuse to go to the larger cities to their Christmas shopping, for the rfect gift can, and should be found Clanton.

Also being urged by Clanton merchants, as well as merchants of other towns in the county, is the importance of shopping early. It must be borne in mind that there are only ten more shopping days until Christmas, and those ten days can pass by in short order with all the hustle and bustle of the season. The selection of just the right article for that certain person requires a variety to select from and to wait until the last few hours to select the gift will mean that it must be done from an assortment that has been picked over. There is only one way to insure a complete selection and that is to avoid the rust—get into the local stores at once with your Christmas shopping list and have the privilege of getting the best. The advertisements appearing in the News will be a big help in making your selections. The merchants who spend their money to invite your trade are the merchants who really appreciate your trade.

$414 Per Day

An interesting fact was called to our attention this week by Mayor C. Fenn Jones when he told the News that the daily payroll on the sanitary sewer project in Clanton totaled $414 per day. This payroll is being met by the Federal Government as WPA labor is being used, and practically all the workmen are local men. This means work for a large number of otherwise unemployed men, and the money they receive goes far to stimulate business in this County, and will mean that Santa Claus will visit many whom otherwise might not have received a visit from the bewhiskered jolly old gentleman.

Completed this week will be the main sewer line to the cotton mill village north of the City. Heretofore the sewage from the Mill village was emptied into the creek below the village, but in the future this will be taken care of as that of the main section of the City. An extension line is being laid to the Willis Addition, Mayor Jones stated, and will be completed within a few days.

The City will receive possibly next week, 2600 feet more of pipe from the Government, which will be used on the sanitary sewer project.

LOCAL FARMERS VOTE FOR THE COTTON QUOTAS

88.3 PER CENT MAJORITY IS GIVEN PLAN IN THIS COUNTY; LARGER THAN LAST

Cotton farmers of Chilton voted their approval of marketing quotas for the next crop year by the largest majority ever given the cotton program of the New Deal in this County.

Although the vote was somewhat lighter than that of last year, the majority of votes cast for 1940 marketing quotas was greater than in 1930, when the vote was below eighty per cent in favor of the plan. This year the vote be imposed by the Federal Government be mposed by the Federal Government through the Department of Agriculture

The vote in this county was as follows

For Marketing Quotas—173[illegible]
Against Marketing Quotas [illegible]

The State of Alaban [illegible] voted 95 per [illegible] ment regulation, while the National vote was slightly above 90 [illegible] For these marketing qu[illegible] posed next year it was [illegible] a vote of 66 2-3 per cent majority b cast by the growers

Kiwanis Minstrel Postponed Until Jan. 11

Due to the fact that there is much activity during the pre-holiday season, Prof. J. Hollis Jackson, w[illegible] charge of the minstrel being staged by the Clanton Kiwanis Club, has announced that the show has been postponed until January 11. There are several plays and other programs being given during this week, and the minstrel was postponed so as [illegible] interfere with these programs, which are being sponsored mostly by the churches.

Another reason for the postponement is for those taking part in the minstrel to have more time to rehearse their parts. "Coon Valley Minstrels" is the title of this presentation, and is without a doubt one of the funniest and most entertaining minstrels ever to be presented in Clanton. [illegible] of the Club are taking the character parts—all blackface. Rehearsals have been going forward rapidly and the cast includes the followi[illegible]

Interocutor, C. E. [illegible] men, Charlie [illegible] Bonnie Hand [illegible] Hayes. Vocalists, T. E. Wyatt, [illegible] Pitts, Oscar Davis, Dr. C. O. Lawr[illegible] Short skit by Homer Roberts and Sam Powers. Miss Mattie Jo Barber, Club pianist, will accompany at the piano.

CHRISTMAS LIGHTS INSTALLED AGAIN THIS YEAR AS IN PAST

Again this year the merchants of Clanton donated lberally to defray the expense of erecting Christmas lights over the City. For the past several years these lights have been placed by these merchants. The project is sponsored by the Clanton Kiwanis Club.

The lines were erected Tuesday of this week, and are now radiating the Christmas glow the Clanton way. Favorable comments from over the State have been made by tourists passing through Clanton.

Methodists Will Raise Christmas Offering For Selma Children's Home Next Sunday

Methodists of Alabama have one hundred and fifty-six children in the Home for Children in Selma.

Do you realize that the Methodist people of Alabama have adopted these one hundred and fifty-six children now in the Methodist Home for Children, (formerly known as the Methodist Orphanage), and that these children are the responsibility of the Methodist people of Alabama?

When a child is adopted it is entitled to equal love, affection and material blessings with every other child in the family.

If mothers and fathers in the Church will tell their children of their adopted brothers and sisters in the Methodist Orphanage at Selma, the committee feels that the children of Methodist parents in Chilton County will want to share Christmas with the less fortunate brothers and sisters.

The basement of the Clanton Methodist Church will be open Friday and Saturday of this week and the committee will be there to receive clothing and farm produce, such as syrup, meat, peas, corn, flour, chickens, eggs, coffee sugar, lard, and canned goods of all kinds.

Many boys and girls in the county have good shoes and clothing which they have outgrown. These orphan children whose ages range from infancy to eighteen, can use anything that any other normal children can use. They like new clothes as well as any other children do. The little ones like toys, too.

If you desire to give to the Christmas offering for these children and cannot bring or send your offering to the Church, phone 215, or 142-W and the committee will send for it. The committee hopes to have a sack full of money and several truck loads of good clothing and good food to send to Selma Monday.—Committee, Oscar Jones, chrm., L. J. Stewart, Burt Mullins and Cohen E. Stapp.

AMBASSADOR J.P. KENNEDY SAYS 'KEEP OUT'

NOTHING WE CAN DO BY GETTING IN WILL BETTER THE SITUATION

Joseph P. Kennedy, American ambassador to Great Britain, according to a Boston Associated Press release, is convinced there is no reason—"economic, financial or social"—to justify the United States entering the European war.

The Massachusetts-born ambassador declared in an interview that "if anybody advocates our entering the war, the American public should demand a specific answer to the question: "Why"?

One of the influences that might result in our involvement, he asserted, was the American people's "sporting spirit" in not wanting to see an unfair or immoral thing done" but he added "this is not our fight."

Speaking as an individual, Kennedy said he believed candidates for public office should be made to answer "how" they would do the things they advocate in relation to the European situation.

"They don't have to tell us what ought to be done," he added. "We know. Let them tell us just how they would do it."

Declaring it was "anybody's guess' as to the possibility of early peace, the former Boston banker said he believes "all want peace, but all have their own ideas as to what peace should be. Under the circumstances, who can say when there will be peace?"

Earlier, Kennedy told parishioners of our Lady of Assumption Church—where he once served as an altar boy, not to let "anyhting that comes out of any country in the world make you believe you can make the situation one whit better by getting into the war. There is no place in this fight for us. It's going to be bad enough as it is."

ATTENTION TO EYES URGED

Better care of the eyes of school children was declared to be one of the most important health needs of the County by Dr. S. D. Sturkie, Chilton County Health Officer, early this week.

Ninety-three children with defective vision were found during examinations made during the 1938-39 school year. Only a very small percentage of the group have had glasses fitted, according to the health report.

"The eye," stated the Health Officer, "is perhaps man's most valuable sense organ. Through it he receives about 80 per cent of his conscious impressions. Protection of the eye against disease begins at birth when the attending physician is required by law to instil silver nitrate into the eyes of the newly-born child to prevent infection with germs which may produce blindness. Notable among these germs is the gonococcus which is the cause of gonorrhea.

"The most common eye defects seen in school children are myopia or nearsightedness, hyperopia or far sightedness and astigmatism. These are caused by structural defects of the eyeball which can usually be corrected by the fitting of proper glasses.

"Symptoms which suggest eye trouble are watering of the eyes, holding the book close to the eyes, selecting small objects to play with, frequent frowning and rubbing the eyes. The most satisfactory results in the diagnosis and correction of visual defects can be obtained through the services of a competent ophthalmologist or medical eye specialist. Th eoptometrist may be abel to correct simple visual defects but he is handicapped by his lack of knowledge and by the fact that he is not allowed to dilate the pupils to examine the eye"

News From Floyd

We are thankful to say that health of this community is very good at present except colds.

Last Saturday night and Sunday was our regular meeting time. Brother Emmett, our pastor, was with us and preached three liberal sermons. We are always glad for the time to come for us to meet back at the Lord's house to worship. If you haven't heard Brother Wilson preach, we invite you to come out and hear him. You won't regret it, I am sure.

Sunday School is coming on nicely and we are still having a good prayer service. We expect to have our pastor preach for us each second Sunday night also. We realize Christmas is near at hand. If you haven't thought why this is such a sacred time, just stop and think. It should be a very sacred time, it being our Saviour Jesus Christ's birthday. The time He came to the world to bleed and die on the cross for your sins and mine. We should be very careful about how we celebrate this day. There will be preaching at Foyd Christmas eve night, that being the fourth Sunday night. We extend a cordial invitation to all who can to come to services. I am sure you can't render a better service than to go to Church. Brother Wilson will do the preaching. The mothers are conducting the prayer services with Sister Hudman in charge last Sunday night and Sister Cora Headley will conduct it next Sunday night.

Thirty-five Years After

IN 1904 a small group of persons who were not inclined to run away from a hard job determined to do something about tuberculosis even though there was no known cure or preventive vaccine for the disease. Only a few health departments were doing anything at all to combat tuberculosis. It was pretty generally accepted that if you had "consumption" you died, and that was all there was to it.

But this little group glimpsed in the distant future the goal that has brought them along the road of sound progress ever since. With eyes and hearts set on the objectives of the dim years ahead, they overcame the inertia of centuries and organized the National Tuberculosis Association.

In thirty-five years this Association has gone far along the road that it could barely discern at the beginning. Today there are 200,000 persons alive in the United States who last year would have died of tuberculosis if that year had been 1904. In 1904, 201 out of every 100,000 persons died of tuberculosis, while in 1938, 49 out of each 100,000 died.

You are now urged to buy Christmas Seals to help finance the work of this Association and its nearly 2,500 affiliated organizations in all parts of the country. Organized tuberculosis work considers itself as standing on the threshold at thirty-five and getting fresh inspiration from the future, as well as pardonable satisfaction from the past.

Anyone having knowledge of birth or deaths occurring during November and not included in the above list should report this matter to the County Health Office imemdiately.

—26—

Jeff shrugged. "There ain't nobody heahabouts."

"Good!" Babe lowered her voice She felt that she understood this man and knew how to handle him.

But there was one thing that Babe Henkel did not know. One vitally important thing.

Babe Henkel did not know that she was seeking help from the man who had killed Kirk Reynolds!

Jeff dragged out three cane-bottomed chairs, and they seated themselves Then Jeff asked, "What you-all cravin' to see me about?"

Babe hesitated, but only briefly "It's about Barney Hamilton."

"Yes'm." Jeff was noncommittal

"He killed Kirk Reynolds."

Jeff swallowed, so that his Adam's apple bobbed up and down alarmingly His shrewd, weak eyes narrowed and focused speculatively upon the orchidaceous woman opposite. But he betrayed no emotion. He merely said, "You reckon?"

"I'm sure of it."

A warm glow suffused Jeff. He had been considerably perturbed since the night he had killed Kirk, and it was pleasing to hear someone declare suspicion of another's guilt. So Jeff merely said, "He could of," and waited.

Babe talked straight. "You hate Barney Hamilton, don't you?"

"Yes'm. I reckon I do."

"He beat you up, didn't he?"

"Yes'm. He never give me no chance. Just hit me when I wasn't lookin'."

"And you'd like to see him get what's coming to him for killing Mr. Reynolds, wouldn't you?"

"Maybe."

"Then," said Babe, "you can help —if you will."

Jeff Butler produced a dirty sack of tobacco and a malodorous pipe. With fingers that were not altogether steady, he tamped the tobacco into the bowl and held a match to it.

Fragments of unpleasant recollection came to him: the fight with Barney Hamilton, his own ignominious beating, the drunken stupor from which he had roused himself the following day with head splitting and pride irreparably injured.

He had turned back to his jug of raw corn liquor and sought the solitude of Big Moccasin Swamp to reflect upon the indignity which had been put upon him. He had brooded for hours fanning himself into an unreasoning anger against Barney Hamilton. His meager brain—befogged by alcohol—had concentrated upon this single idea: that his honor had been dragged through the muck.

He convinced himself that Cathedral Gardens was a cesspool of iniquity, and that any man who destroyed a portion of it would be doing a fine community service. And so he had cut himself a lightwood knot and had lurched through the swamp that night with the idea of burning the Hamilton home. Of committing arson. Of jeopardizing human life Of exacting revenge for the beating he had so justifiably suffered the previous day.

Half stupefied with corn liquor, and finding therein a courage which was not natural, keyed to high pitch by the magnitude of the thing he planned, Jeff Butler had skirted the Gardens and approached the house from the rear. He knew that the family would be in the front of the house, that the Negro servants had left, that the Gardens were not then open to tourists at night.

Walking stealthily, carrying his lightwood knot, making a stern effort to control jagged nerves, reflecting upon the nobility of his enterprise . . . and thoroughly terrified, Jeff Butler had come closer and closer to the house. And suddenly, in the darkness, he had collided with a man.

Instinctively he struck at the masculine figure before him. There was the bruising impact of fist on flesh; then a snarl from the man who had been hit. A snarl and a vicious threat. Jeff stumbled away. He dropped his lightwood knot and grabbed for his claspknife. At the touch of his thumb the long, keen blade sprang open. The figure of the other man came toward him: deadly, menacing, seeking combat with this man who had struck first.

Jeff slashed with his knife. The blade sank home. Scarcely a sound. And not until the body lay still did Jeff Butler realize that he had killed Kirk Reynolds.

The instinct for concealment prompted Jeff to risk detection by dragging Kirk's body to the edge of the lagoon and sliding it into the black, shallow water. He knew he was taking a desperate chance, but that—he figured—was better than being recognized en route to his home, and then of having Kirk's body found.

He escaped. He slithered away into the shadows of the night. He lurched back through the swamps to his home in Big Moccasin. And for hours he drank steadily. He was palsied with fear. And all the next day he drank until someone rode by his place and mentioned that Kirk Reynolds had been murdered, and Jeff had asked, "Who done it?"

"Dunno," said his informant, "but folks is sayin' it was Barney Hamilton or either Andy Forrest. It sho' is one hell of a mess."

Babe was surprised—and pleased —with the readiness of Jeff Butler's response. She had hardly anticipated so eager an alliance. She had sought Jeff because the lanky swamp angel was the only person in all Beauregard County whom she knew had reason to hate Barney Hamilton. And she did not know that Jeff was still thinking.

He was thinking that if anything happened to Barney Hamilton, the public would be glad enough to consider the matter closed. If a suspect has been executed for murder the populace does not interest itself in other suspects. It is willing enough to accept the fact of punishment as proof of guilt. And so Jeff remained willing—though cautious.

Babe caught Dan Creedon's eye. The gambler nodded and Babe took the hint, pressing her advantage. She said, "They'll never do anything to Barney Hamilton for killing Mr Reynolds, will they?"

"No ma'am. I reckon they won't It's only us po' folks that gits punished fo things." Then he added hastily, "Fo' things we never done."

"I know Barney killed him. I know why Kirk went to the Gardens that night Mr. Dixon knows it, too, but he says that ain't evidence. They're not even going to arrest anybody. And they've told me I've got to leave Beverly."

"How come, ma'am?"

"Because I was a friend of Kirk Reynolds', that's why."

"Shuh! They never give nobody a square deal."

Babe's voice was hard but persuasive. "You hate Barney Hamilton, don't you?"

"Yes'm. I sho' do."

"Well, so do I. And I'm not going to get out of town without doing something about it."

"Yes'm . . . A man like him ain't got no right to live. He ought to be lynched . . ."

Jeff's voice trailed off. Three pairs of eyes looked startled, in recognition of the fact that a chance remark had given them their cue. Jeff repeated, "He ought to be lynched . . ."

The idea penetrated. Babe said, "If the law won't punish him—somebody ought." And she was sincere about it. She was convinced that Barney had killed Kirk. And Jeff Butler was thinking—clearly now, "Was Barney Hamilton to git hung, there wouldn't nobody never suspeck me of doin' it."

The situation was sardonically perfect. Jeff was more than willing—he was eager. Babe asked, "Could we?"

Jeff nodded. "Folks heahabouts is mighty het up about things, Miss. They say the Gardens was built by the Devil. Preachers been talkin' 'bout how bad things are. An' we never did crave to have no Damyanks comin' down heah killin' our own folks."

Dan Creedon spoke. "Let's talk turkey, Butler. We've plenty of money, and we're willing to spend it. We'll see that you're protected if anything should go wrong. Have you any friends who will help?"

"I reckon so."

"Do you hate Barney Hamilton enough to go in on it?"

"I ain't got no use for that feller, mister. Not no use at all."

"Then, will you?"

Jeff pondered. He saw the future, if Barney were lynched. The public would know why . . . that he had been strung up because he had murdered Kirk Reynolds. And if anybody had to be punished for the lynching bee, it would be these two outlanders. Dan Creedon and Babe Henkel. Folks didn't like them nohow.

Jeff said, "I reckon it could be done, ma'am. Us folks heah in the swamp is God-fearin'. We b'lieve in right an' decency. We all the time say it would be an eye fo' an eye . . . and the law ain't aimin' to take no eye fo' somebody killin' Kirk Reynolds."

Babe asked, "Will you do it?"

"I'll try."

"When?"

"Tomorrow night maybe." Jeff blinked. "But you-all both has got to be there."

"I'll be there," said Babe

Jeff was highly pleased. He who had murdered Kirk Reynolds was about to avenge the death of the man he had killed by directing the lynching of an innocent person. Mr. Butler's sense of humor was not highly developed, but this struck him as irresistibly funny. He was grateful to Babe and to this saturnine person, Creedon. They were furnishing the inspiration, the leadership . . . and would be the victims in case the county became suddenly righteous after the lynching.

CHAPTER XV

Jeff Butler devoted himself, with understandable enthusiasm, to the task of organizing a mob to avenge the murder which he himself had committed.

Mr. Butler recognized the value of approach on ethical grounds . . . though he had never heard the word. He knew that for more than a month the swamp angels had been fanned into a fine frenzy of indignation against the sins which were—supposedly—attributable to Cathedral Gardens and the owners thereof. He knew that his contemporaries were always responsive to the idea of a moral crusade.

Bremen Slips Safely Into Home Port

Berlin, Dec. 12—Germany's $20,000,000 adventurer, the Bremen, raced swiftly through the long fingers of the British fleet again Tuesday and slipped safely into German waters, writing "home" on her trree-and-a-half months log of war.

The Bremen reached an unidentified "safe zone" in the hands of Commodore Adolf Ahrens, the skipper who sailed his ship from New York 36 hours before Germany invaded Poland, disguised her at sea and outwitted the British navy to sail a northern route to Murmansk, Soviet Russian Arctic port.

Later, a communique of the German High Command said: "The fast liner, Bremen, arrived home Tuesday night from overseas. The Navy Depatment had taken measures to bring the ship home safely. Among them, air planes were detailed to give the ship necessary protection. A British submarine in the North Sea attempted to attack the Bremen. One of the planes sent to protect the Bremen forced the submarine so far under the water that the attack was thwarted."

Belief was expressed that the Bremen was at her Bremerhaven base alongside the Europia, her sistership.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Theologian Names 6 Enemies Of Bible

St. Louis.—Men of extremely opposite viewpoints are working shoulder to shoulder to destroy the influence of the Bible, Dr. Walter A. Maier, of Concordia Seminary, asserted today in his coast-to-coast Lutheran hour broadcast.

Speaking in the Municipal Auditorium in connection with a Bible Sunday service, the noted theologian numbered as antagonists of the Bible, "the Communist who draws obscene cartoons on Biblical truths, the capitalist who spreads the modern Protestant denial of the Scriptures, the degenerate who curves the name of the New Testament, the college president who argues the miracles and morality of the Old Testament, the atheist whose flambuoyant advertisement recently called for the destruction of Holy Writ and the 'society churchmen' who are often paid for the suave undermining of Biblical authority."

"The enemies of God took the Bible out of North Africa in the seventh century and the glory and prosperity of that country vanished," Dr. Maier declared. "They banished the Scriptures from France during the French revolution and the gutters of Paris flowed with blood. They exiled Christ and His word from Russia and one-sixth of the earth's surface was afflicted with moral leprosy. The same sworn opposition is repeating its efforts in a lavishly financed anti-Bible program in America."

Commending Bible societies for their efforts, he urged the wider distribution of the Scriptures for the home and the return of theological seminaries to Biblical truths.

FARM HOME FINANCING

The purchase of 12,843 farms during the last four years in the states of Alabama, Louisiana and Mississippi was made possible through financing amounting to $18,986,000 by the long-term lending agencies under the supervision of the Farm Credit Administration, according to a report made by Roy L. Thompson, President of The Federal Land Bank of New Orleans. While some of the purchases were made by investors, the vast majority were bought by farm families, many of whom had in the past been tenants, Thompson said.

"The Farm Credit Act of 1935, which provided first and second mortgage Commissioner financing for the purchase of farms, has proven helpful in assisting farm families to own their farms," Doctor Thompson said.. "The Federal Land Bank has always made first mortgage loans for this purpose up to 50 per cent of the appraised value of the farm. The Land Bank Commissioner is in position to supplement this loan up to 75 per cent which now enables farmers and tenant families with moderate savings to buy farms. Many of the purchase loans were made to tenant farmers who were already living on and operating the farms which they have purchased, while others selected new sites

"The average amount of credit extended per farm purchased throughout the district for both Land Bank and Commissioner financing was $1,487.32 Some farmers purchased their land from private owners, using the financing of the Land Bank and the Commissioner, while others purchased farms from the Land Bank on liberal credit terms.

"Satisfactory activity was also shown during the first nine months of this year in the purchase of farms Units of the Farm Credit Administration in Alabama, Louisiana and Mississippi assisted in the financing of 1,251 farms involving $2,028,000 during the period January 1 to September 20, 1939. The last three months of the year are expected to show the usual seasonal increase in this activity."

T. L. McKee Suggests Plan Whereby Farmers May Pay Taxes On Homes And Poll Taxes

December 13, 1939.

"To The People of Chilton County:

"It is regrettable, if not lamentable, that the paying of poll tax is a qualification to vote in this great commonwealth of ours, and having been your past tax collector of this county, I know that there are at least 2,000 honest, intelligent and conscientious women and men who are in arrears with the payment of their poll tax and such a condition bids fair to lead to corruption in elections. I fully appreciate the fact that many of you have almost made a total failure in your endeavor at farming so far as money is concerned to pay your poll tax with, but let me insist that you make every effort to pay your own poll tax in an honorable way. I would like to insist that you pay your poll tax before the holidays, as most of us always spend all we have during the holiday season and have very little chance of getting the money before February 1st which is the deadline date. Remember 1940 is the year that the highest offices in our county and nation are to be filled and you, to be a free citizen, should pay your own poll tax.

"I would like to offer one suggestion to our Probate Judge and Court of of Commissioners who spend our tax money. That is: since all the money spent for machinery, parts of machinery, gas and oil, goes out of the County, that they as much as possible refrain from the operation of the machines or buying parts and employ the local citizens who have teams to work on our roads, in order that they can pay their taxes on their homes. By this method the money that you pay will not be sent out of the county, but will be paid back in the form of taxes and reappropriated into the county treasury to hire another man, and so on until our negihbors' homes will be safe from the sale by law for its taxes, which otherwise could not be paid.

"I realize that you can readily say that it will cost as much or more to do the work with teams as it would with a machine but you must consider that the tax money, the roads and machines and the teams, all belong to the taxpayers of Chilton County, and nothing could be of more benefit than to help the many hundred home owners in this county who, not by any fault of their own, but a disastrous crop year, cannot pay their taxes. This should commence at once and be arranged before January 1, to save any extra charges, if you consider this suggestion advisable.

"I regret that the Legislature failed to make the homes exempt of all taxes, but they didn't; now it's up to us during this bad—you might say, deplorable—situation, to exert every effort to prevent the homes being sold for taxes. If the county doesn't have the cash to carry out the above mentioned, you could get it from the banks and you will have it back before January 10, since the corporations pay over half of the taxes of the county the latter part of December, and it would save our people considerably to have it before January 1 as I have before stated if there is anything that I can do advise me.

"Respectfully,
"T. L. McKEE."

May we, this last time, remind all readers of this column that next Sunday December 17, at 5:30 P.M. we have our White Christmas Pageant and the offering at that service will go to our Children's Home at Selma. Have you ever stopped to think, really consider, the children in our Children's Home? Do you realize that they belong to every member of our Church? Do you as a Methodist, realize that the children in that good home are our own children?

May we ALL attend the Pageant Sunday and give and give to our children in our Children's Home. We have a goal to reach, but we have not been assessed any given amount We are not assessed any given amount, but we are asked to give what we can and the best we do will be small enough; but when we really have done our best—well, do you know how one feels after having really done the best? It's wonderful! To do our best for our Children's Home is a privilege and opportunity Let's make ourselves and them wondrously happy this Yuletide. The offering of the Church School next Sunday will also go to the Children's Home. Can't we make it a very special one in amount also?

Thorsby Institute News

The following students are on the first honor roll of Thorsby Institute for the second term of the year: William Callen, Lula Mae Collins, Norman Harris, Irvin Lande, Doris Parker, Norman Petersen, Mary Jean Reynolds, Lillian Smith, Lowell Smoot, Amma Spear and Olean Walkers. Those on the second honor roll are: Wayne Adams, Marjorie Bentley, Elaine Burdette, Bill Darby, Gus Downs, Karl Duke, Eileen Getty, Kathleen Honeycutt, Lucile McCain, [illegible] [illegible], Jeanette Plant, Katherine Pratt, [illegible] Mae [illegible], Jack Vines, [illegible] Walker, [illegible] [illegible] Weems, [illegible] Wiley, Annie Lee Williams, Ruth Rollins.

The following item taken from the Northeast Georgian with an editorial comment is of interest to many Chilton County residents as many of the teachers in this county are graduates of Piedmont College. Piedmont College debating teams covered themselves with honors when they went down to Milledgeville to the second annual Georgia State Debate Forum held at G. S. C. W. Saturday and Saturday night.

The Piedmont affirmative team composed of Clyde Smith and George McFarlin, defeated Georgia Tech, Woodrow Wilson Law School of Atlanta and the Berry Schools, winning the final round. The Piedmont negative team won the final round, defeating North Georgia College and Agnes Scott. Sam Flint and Charles Drake represented Piedmont for the negative.

The Piedmont debaters were honored as winners at a banquet for the fourteen teams entered.

The question for debate was "Resolved: That the United States should enact legislation for the conscription of wealth during war."

"Once more it is appropriate to suggest a bouquet for an institution that is almost at our doors, and whose high standing we are sometimes apt to overlook As told elsewhere in the news columns, last Saturday Piedmont's debating teams went down to Milledgeville and took first honors among representatives of a group of 14 schools, including such outstanding institutions as Georgia Tech and Agnes Scott.

Piedmont has a reputation for high standards of scholarship and among its graduates are many who hold positions of prominence and leadership. While we are talking about doing things to boost our community, we may well do a little bragging about this college that gives educational advantages to our children, and that makes this a better place to live.

The Helen Keller Literary Society will present its annual Christmas program on Friday night, December 15, at 7:30 o'clock in the Institute auditorium. The program will be composed of three parts: A cantata, "The Vision of Scrooge," Special Christmas music, and a Tableau, "Stars."

Alabama College Inaugurates Advisory Service For Women

Montevallo, Ala., Dec. 13.—With the appointment by President A. F. Harman of Miss Rochelle Rod Gachet as its director, Alabama College this week announces the inauguration of a Vocational Advisory Service for the women of Alabama.

"Alabama women long have needed guidance in their employment problems," President Harman said, in his formal statement, "and Alabama College, as the State College for Women, is favorably circumstanced to render this service to the people of the State.

"Sound vocational advice must of necessity be based on a thorough knowledge of employment needs in the State, and of the facilities for meeting those needs, and of the opportunities for training to fill the jobs available," Dr. Harman pointed out. The Vocational Advisory Service at Alabama College will carry on research along these suggested lines, on a State-wide basis, and will keep its information up-to-date.

Such research affords a sound background for the chief function of the Vocational Advisory Service, which will be to put the results of its studies and its advisory facilities at the disposal of Alabama women for application to their personal problems.

This service will bring together the job and the trained woman worker in a socially useful way, tending to reduce unemployment.

Miss Rochelle Rodd Gachet, who will direct this new arm of the Montevallo service program, comes to her work from Arlington Hall, Washington, D. C., outstanding among Eastern schools for girls At Arlington Hall Miss Gachet has been director of admissions and a member of the faculty. She holds a master's degree from the Unversity of Chicago where she majored in pertional offices in Apha Omicron Pi, her tional office sin Alpha Omicrop Pi, her social sorority.

After teaching for several years at Alabama College, Miss Gachet went to Washington when the United States entered the war in 1917. There she did statistical work, and later served in the Veteran's Bureau. In the intervening years she has been identified with the work of the American Engineering Standards Association, with a New York Advertising agency, and for several years as statistician of the sales promotion division of the Alabama Power Company.

Miss Gachet returned to the field of higher education in 1938. She has already tendered her resignation to Arlington Hall in order to take up her new work at Alabama College.

Rallying Cry Against TB

For 35 years tuberculosis and health associations and the medical profession have been spreading information that tuberculosis is preventable and curable. A new rallying cry, used by Dr. Thomas Parran, Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service, is "Tuberculosis can be eradicated from this nation." The techniques are available for reaching this goal. Tuberculosis Christmas Seals are helping to teach these facts about the possible eradication of this disease.

hen Meat Is Meat—And When eat Ain't Meat—

A heated controversy in which onkeys of a certain species, quail, uirrels and ducks, along with many jectives have played an important rt has been waging between the Alama Department of Conservation and e newspapers of Pickens County, with . T. R. McLellan, the Mayor of iceville (in Pickens), the Governor. . Walter B. Jones and just about erybody in general taking part. It all rted when Dr. McLellan, prominent d influential physician of Aliceville, is about to entertain several of his lleagues and friends at a feast, the nu of which consisted of 203 quail, squirrels and 10 ducks. While the efs were preparing this appetizing st who should walk into the kitchen d flash his badge but Game Warden m Lifsey, who is well known in Clann, having been here in Chilton County as warden for several years past. ell, Mr. Lifsey proceeded to confiste the game, claiming that it was unwful for the Doctor to have in his ssession more than one day's bag it of the aforementioned intended nu. And then things began to pop. he newspapers of Pickens County ated that the game was bagged by ral hunters, none taking more than eir allotted number, and that they re labeled with the name of each nter and placed on cold storage to ait the time when they would be epared for the feast, which is an anal affair, and that no game law was oken. Dr. McLellan found himself in embarrassing predicament and tried inly to have the birds, quirrels and cks released but to no avail. The Department stuck to their contention that e act was unlawful, Dr. Walter B. nes, head of the Department claim that "The taking of those birds had thing to do with the whirring of ngs, the work of a fine pointer or e thrill of good marksmanship. A four-letter word describes it—meat—MEAT!" Dr. Jones furtrer stated that he was appointed by Governor Dixon to see that the game laws of the state are not violated, and that the Governor knew of this case and had told him to stick by his guns, come what may. And so it appears that pretty near everybody in Pickens County is standing by Dr. McLellan, and the Department of Conservation—since the game was confiscated—has not gained in popularity in those parts. To us it appears that the Department is a little mixed on the meaning of meat For instance, if we go out and bag one bird, or even the bag limit, and feast upon same—which is certainly not against the law—then that's meat. If we go along with several of our firends, who do likewise, and we all have a feast, that, in our opinion, is meat also. No law has been violated, and each person who bagged the birds has a right to do with them what he pleases, having taken them within the law. Anyway, it was a mighty bad time for the Department to exercise it's authority in such a forceful and rude manner. It caused a lot of people a lot of embarrassment. The matter could have been settled in a more polite manner—and we still say that the Alabama Department of Conservation needs to learn the true definition of the word MEAT.

ooper 4-H Club Boy Makes Enviable Record With Project Started With No Capital In 1937

Proof that good 4-H Club projects n be started with very little expense d a profit realized is being demonated by Charles Todd, a member of e Cooper Boys 4-H Club.

With no capital to start his project rk when he enrolled in 4-H Club rk several years ago, Charles has ccessfully carried on his original prot and expanded into other project rk.

Charles first enrolled in 4-H Club rk in 1937 at which time his father ve him a dairy calf. With proper ding and a good pasture his calf was own out rapidly. The following year s calf was sold and with the money received Charles bought two heifer ves. His expense in growing these ves out was very little because he nished them with adequate grazing d plenty of home grown roughage d grain. Now that the two heifer calves have become milk producers Charles intends to add to his project activities.

From the sale of one of these cows, Charles intends to build a poultry brooder house and buy several hundred baby chicks. These chicks will be grown out and sold as broilers after which he is going to buy baby chicks to begin a laying flock.

Charles states that he does not want to invest heavily in poultry to begin with but to start with a small flock and gradually increase this number as his experience with poultry increases.

This is sound planning for any 4-H Club boy or farmer who is beginning a new farm enterprise and indicates vision and thoughtful planning on the part of this 4-H Club boy who has already shown his ability to carry on successful farm projects.

CAST GIVEN FOR KIWANIS MINSTREL ON JANUARY 11

J. Hollis Jackson, who is in charge of the Minstrel being presented by the Clanton Kiwanis Club, stated this week that rehearsals are going forward at a rapid pace, with much interest being displayed by those taking part in the show, which is known as "Coon Valley Minstrels." This minstrel was originally scheduled to be presented on Friday, Dec. 15, but was postponed so as not to conflict with the several Christmas programs being presented in the County. The date has been set for January 11, at the City Hall auditorium, the time, 7:30.

Thirteen Kiwanians are taking part in the blackface show that is filled with laughter-provoking comedy from the time the curtain rises until it falls. The cast is as follows:

"Alkili", Charlie Breedlove; "Blimp," John Hollis; "Calabash", Bonnie Hand; Interlocutor, Cohen Stapp; "Dippywit". Horton Walker; "Epozootic," Dick Hayes; "Fritter," Reuben Lowe. YELLOW FRONT STORES SAY SANTA'S AT THEIR STORES NOW

Practically a full-page advertisement of the Yellow Front Stores of Clanton and Maplesville appears in this issue of the News telling of the many Christmas bargains being offered during the remaining days before Christmas.

A "Christmas Sale" is being featured by these popular stores, and Managers D. L. Blackketter of the Clanton Store says that to appreciate the many bargains being offered one has to pay them a visit. Toys, Christmas candies, and nuts, and everything that the Christmas shopper demands may be found at the Yellow Front, according to this advertisement. Read it over, and be judged accordingly.

Mr. and Mrs. George Jester and little daughter, Ann, are spending part of this week in Birmingham.

Have You Purchased Your Quota Of Christmas Seals?

The annual Christmas Seal Sale Campaign will come to a close on Christmas Day. This is a worthy cause. The money collected annually through the sale of Chrstmas Seals is used to combat Tuberculosis. From the pen of one of Alabama most versatile columnists, John Temple Graves, III, writing in the Birmingham Age-Herald, we quote the following: "A letter without a seal at Christmas time is a letter ignorant of the season's real sense, it seems to us. . . ."

Each year the Chilton County Anti-Tuberculosis Association conducts this campaign in Chilton County. In the past our people have responded in a splendid manner by their purchase and use of Christmas Seals. This year the drive is meeting with success in many ways. Many of those who have received seals through the mails have already mailed in their money. Some have returned the seals and some have done neither. As the drive comes to a close this week, those in charge are asking that you clear this matter up today. You are urged to buy and use Christmas Seals the remainder of this week.

MRS. MARTHA DEVAUGHN DIES AFTER SHORT ILLNESS

Mrs. Minnie Martha Devaughn, age 54, of Clanton Route three, died at 11:50 P.M. Friday after an illness of only a few hours.

A MIGHTY LOT OF TURNIP

A turnip weighing seven pounds and measuring 25½ inches in circumference was brought to the News office early this week by J. R. Street, resident of Mitchell Dam. Mr. Street stated that he grew the turnip on a red hill, cultivated the patch with a steer. The seed were purchased from the Southern Seed & Plant Co., of Clanton.

Mr. Street says he also raised five and one-half pounds of sweet potatoes from 120 plants in the same garden. We'd say Mr. Street is a gardener of note. There's no telling how big his turnips would turn out to be if raised on fertile land, or how many potatoes he would likely produce if he went into the potato-producing business.

Mrs. P. T. Hinkle visited relatives in Eclectic last Tuesday.

Sanitation Officer Returns To Clanton

Fred H. Buckelew, County Sanitation Officer, returned to the County Monday after completing a three-months scholarship at Vanderbilt University, according to a weekly bulletin from the Health Department.

Twenty students from various states were enrolled with the local Sanitation Officer. Subjects included in the course were communicable disease control, water supplies, sewerage disposal, milk control, camp sanitation, Industrial Hygiene, etc. There were eight students from Alabama, according to Mr. Buckelew. The object of the scholarships is to provide county health departments with well trained personnel. The necessary funds are made possible for the Social Security Act which sets aside money for improving local health service.

Mr. Buckelew's plans for the future include a sanitary survey of Jemison and a resurvey of Clanton. As quickly as possible, the Health Department will ask WPA officials for a reinstatement of the sanitation project which was suspended in September. Through this project free labor for the building of sanitary pit privies was made available to local property owners. It is Mr. Buckelew's hope that he will have a new crew of men to start privy building early in 1940. Clanton and Thorsby

CLANTON CIVIC CLUBS WILL AGAIN PLAY SANTA TO NEEDY OF COUNTY

Distribution Of Christmas Baskets Will Again Aid Santa Claus To See That Needy Are Remembered

A custom which has been carried out at Christmas time in the past by the civic clubs of Clanton, will again be adherred to this year. This is the custom of preparing and distributing Chrstmas baskets to the needy of the City and County.

Plans this year call for a wider distribution of baskets, due to the fact that the Lions Club of Clanton is assisting in the undertaking. Last Christmas the Lions Club was not organized, and the Kiwanis and Pilot Clubs prepared and distributed the baskets to many needy men, women and children on Christmas eve, giving Santa a hand.

A splendid spirit is being manifest in this years drive. In charge of collecting the articles to be donated are committees from each Club. One custom that is being carried out again this year is the getting together of old toys, which are rebuilt and given to delight those children of less fortunate circumstances. School children are cooperating splendidly, and already a large number of re-worked toys have been collected and left at the office of J. Mell Martin & Sons Those having old toys, or for that matter, any articles of clothing, fruits, etc., that they wish to donate, are asked to leave them at Mr. Martin's office or contact members of either of the Clubs.

Cash has been donated by many to this cause. The Lions Club donated $40 besides assisting in the gathering and distribution. The baskets will be distributed by members of the three clubs on Saturday afternoon before Christmas on Monday. The slogan is "nobody shall fail to see Santa on Christmas Day."

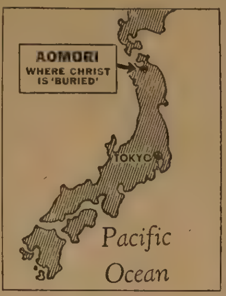
Jap Villagers Kneel at Mound They Call Christ's Burial Place



TOKYO.—Peasants in a remote northern Japanese village do not celebrate Christmas but they believe Jesus Christ died in Japan.

Nor are they Christians, but each year they kneel before a strange mound which they believe is Christ's burial place.

This takes place at the village of Herai where Buddhists or Shintoists gather each year around a mound surmounted by a pillar on which are three Japanese characters and a six-pointed star composed of interlocking triangles, like the Hebrew emblem.

How this strange tradition arrived in Japan is not known, but visitors notice that the village, which is located in Aomori, near the extreme tip of Honshu island, is no great distance south of Mount Yadaijin, which is pronounced almost like the modern Japanese word for "Jew."

The six-pointed star is completely foreign to the people, yet some peasants are familiar with the Biblical version of Christ's death. The Aomorian story, which they have believed for 20 centuries, is this:

During the reign of the Emperor Suinin, the eleventh emperor, a young white man came to live in the district. Twelve years later, at the age of 34, he disappeared. His name: Soraitaro.

Fifteen years later he returned and told the people he had been to the land of his birth teaching religion and that, because of his beliefs, had been sentenced to death by crucifixion.

Soraitaro is then said to have told the natives that his younger brother, Iskiri, sacrificed his own life on the cross. Then he traveled for four years, across Europe and through Siberia. Finally reaching Aomori again, he died at the age of 105 in the eleventh year of Keiko Tenno's reign.

Near the alleged burial mound is the ruin of a stone building which villagers call "Tsukino-Tatte," the House of the Moon. Many foreign articles are reported to have been unearthed from this place. People say it is the place where Jesus worshiped.

They do not worship His memory in a religious way, nor is the mound especially sacred. They describe Jesus as a "Sei-jin," a saint or wise man.

Newspaper headline says: "Russia' Attack Bringing Moral Isolation. What does Russia care about "moral isolation?" About the same attitude that a hog has for a mudhole.

CHILTON COUNTY EXCHANGE

CANE GROWERS PROSPER WITH NEW SYRUP MILL

800 TONS OF CONECUH CANE ARE PROCESSED BY NEW PLANT AT EVERGREEN

If more sugarcane and more syrup, the latter containing more iron than any other food, makes a better county, then Conecuh County should be a great deal better county within the next two or three years. A very good start has already been made in that direction.

An up-to-date syrup plant has been the scene of a great deal of activity on the edge of Evergreen during the past six weeks. That plant, owned by O. C. McGehee, banker, farmer and several other things, has been the stopping place for more than 800 tons of Conecuh-grown sugarcane which has made around 35,000 gallons of syrup that has found a ready market as fast as it could be made. Folks around Evergreen say that Mr. McGehee, in realizing a dream, has made it possible for farmers to grow a new cash crop and thereby increase the farm income which has been built mostly around cotton.

All together, some 75 farmers have made use of this community enterprise, launched last year. Some of the farmers have brougrt in their cane and had Mr. McGehee make it into syrup on a toll basis, while others have sold the cane to Mr. McGehee for $4 per ton and

Last year the mill was built about one and one-half miles from Evergreen and was used mostly by Mr. McGehee who grows several acres of cane himself. This year, to make it available to more farmers in Conecuh County, he moved the plant into the southern edge of Evergreen. The scene viewed by many visitors to the plant during the past few weeks has been a two-story building with the mill, a boiler for making steam to cook the syrup, an up-to-date canning room and juice settling tanks and evaporators.

T. P. Whitten, county agent, is frank to admit that Mr. McGehee's plant, which is making use of the new syrup making process, promoted in the State by some 25 demonstrations by the Alabama Extension Service, has turned a great many farmers' attention to growing sugarcane for syrup. He said Mr. McGehee, by making the plant available to other farmers and also by paying a fair price per ton for their cane, had inaugurated a project which not only would improve syrup that is used at home, but would also develop a quality product which would bring in more money to the farmers of Conecuh County.

Made By New Process

A visit to this up-to-date plant with M. D. Harman, specialist in syrup and syrup crops with the State Extension Service, and a discussion with Mr. McGehee reveals that there must be something important when farmers will haul cane as far as 20 to 25 miles to get it made by the new process. The process, as explained by Mr. Harman, is nothing more than the addition of juice settling tanks to clarify the cane juice, and the addition of a food extract to prevent the syrup from going to sugar. In the State this year around 75,000 gallons of sorghum and sugarcane syrup have been made by this new process.

There must be something to the process since Mr McGehee told the writer that he had sold all of his syrup through two channels and could have sold it through four or five channels if he had had the supply.

"Mr. Mac," or "Mr. Clark" as he is commonly known around Evergreen, is emphatic in his statement that his plant is not a commercial enterprise and that even if farmers did not make use of this community enterprise, he would continue to operate the plant to process his own cane.

"I find that I can pay farmers $4 a ton for their cane which ordinarily will give them on good yields a net of $40 or more per acre and still take care of the expense of the plant," Mr. McGehee says. "I will have more than 30 acres of cane next year myself, mostly of new varieties made up principally of CO-290 which in my estimation is far ahead of POJ."

Mr. McGehee, as a further indication that he intends the plant to help develop a new source of income, has entered into partnership with several realized more from that than they have their complete 1939 cotton crop. farmers for half the syrup. Some the farmers have followed the proc still further and are growing cane halves with their tenants.

A talk with Gaston Bozeman, publisher of The Evergreen Courant, reveals that it is a feeling in Evergre and Conecuh County that nothing b good will come of this syrup pla which Mr. McGehee says will be fu ther improved next year by the co struction of a screened in, modern ca ning room and other general impro ments.—Evergreen Courant.

RATE REDUCTION BY ALA. POWER CO. EFFECTIVE JAN. 1

Montgomery. — A rate reduction, which the Alabama Power Company estimated would result in yearly savings of $387,000 to urban commercial customers, was approved Friday by the State Public Service Commission.

It becomes effective Jan. 1 and applies to all commercial or general service, other than that used exclusively for "family residential purposes" and that required by large industries filling their entire electric needs from Alabama Power lines.

The new (C-7) rate does not apply on rural lines, and under the commission's order customers now on a corresponding (C-6) schedule will not be billed at the new rate where it will increase their costs.

Monthly charges under the new schedule follow:

One dollar for the first 20 kilowatt hours or less; 3.5 cents per kwh for next 730; 2.5 cents per kwh for next 4,250, and 2 cents per kwh for all over 5,000.

The commission added a provision that for "all kwh in excess of 150 hours use of the capacity requirements" the following rate should apply:

Two cents per kwh for next 100 hours use; and 1 cent per kwh for all over 250 use hours of the capacity requirements.

Changes in the application of auxiliary, supplementary, breakdown and standby service contracts also were approved by the commission.

They provide for joint testing of the kilovolt-amperes load for which a customer is willing to contract; that the company shall pay for installing a circuit breaker, and that a minimum charge of $2.50 a month shall be made for each kilovolt-ampere of the contracted capacity.

Christmas Comes But Once a Year—Almost Any Time!

Merry Christmas is whatever you make it, whenever you make it. From December 5, when Saint Nicholas arrives for Dutch children, to the Aleutian islanders' Christmas on January 7, someone is celebrating this festive day most of the time.

Holland chooses December 5 as the eve of the festival day which the church has set aside in Saint Nicholas' honor. In Hungary Santa Claus pays his first visit several weeks ahead of the Yuletide, leaving boxes of candy in preparation for his second visit.

SHETLAND ISLANDS

Most of the unusual celebrations, however, come after December 25—indeed, fall after New Year's day. Remote Shetland islanders north of Scotland celebrate January 5, still clinging to the old Julian calendar and refusing to accept that of Pope Gregory which most of the world has used for two centuries.

January 5 is also Christmas day in at least one part of the United States proper, isolated and windswept Rodanthe island off North Carolina. The custom, apparently a holdover from "old Christmas"—the Twelfth night, or Epiphany—the occasion finds all 300 residents hanging their stockings and awaiting Santa Claus.

In Alaska, where mid-summer delivery of Christmas presents makes them suitable either for last Christmas or the coming one, part of the residents celebrate on December 25 and the rest, January 7. The latter date is observed chiefly by Aleutian islanders, which is populated by natives who were interbred with Russians hundreds of years ago. They use the Russian calendar, which has not been changed to conform with that used by the rest of the world. By this calendar, New Year's is celebrated January 14.

Men of Christmas

Postmaster General James A. Farley receives Christmas cards at the rate of 1,000 a day during the Yule season.

Vasco Da Gama, the great Portuguese navigator, was born on Christmas day in 1469, discovered Natal, Africa, on Christmas day, 1497, and died on Christmas eve, 1524.

Oscar Phillips, postmaster at Santa Claus, Ind., cancels a half-million pieces of mail each Christmas season.

President Roosevelt gets a toothbrush and cake of soap in his stocking each Christmas—an old family custom.

Edward Keenan, who has enacted the role of Santa Claus in Milwaukee since 1927, keeps a small herd of reindeer all year round for this purpose.

Unity S. S. Association To Have Meeting

The Sunday School workers of this County are urgently invited to Indian Grave Church the first Sunday afternoon in January. The purpose of the meeting is to effect the organization of the Unity Sunday School Association. We should like to have present at this meeting the Executive Committee, pastors, superintendents, teachers and all others interested in religious work.

We need bigger Sunday Schools and better ones, too. The Sunday School is the most effective agency of the church for reaching people, teaching them the Way of Life and training them for efficient service in Kingdom enterprises. If every saved soul would but realize the importance of the Sunday School, he would certainly give his loyal support to it.

Will you meet us the first Sunday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock?

The superintendents will please announce this meeting and urge the people to attend. Let us work, pull together and pray for bigger and better Sunday Schools.—W. J. Billingsley, H. A. Harris, J. Z. Mims, J. D. Griffin.

Thorsby Institute News

The annual Christmas program of the Helen Keller Literary Society of Thorsby Institute was presented on Friday night, December 15, under the direction of Miss Alice Burr, instructor of music at Thorsby Institute. The program was very much enjoyed by all who were present. The singing, decorations and lighting effects were especially good. The first part of the program was a cantata entitled "The Vision of Scrooge." Fred Blankenship played the part of Scrooge admirably.

School closed Friday, December 15 instead of December 20 as originally planned. Miss Lois Leech, matron, and Mrs. V. H. Sutlive, commercial teacher and office secretary, have been sick with the flu for over a week and several of the pupils have also been so that it seemed best to close school early. The three days lost will be made up by having school on three Saturdays during the second semester. School will reopen January 3 at 8:30. There will be school on Saturday, January 6.

The Thorsby Institute library will be open Wednesday, December 20, from 2:00 o'clock until 5:00 All those who wish to draw out books for the vacation may get them then.

On Thursday night, December 14, the annual Christmas party for the Thorsby Institute boarding department, working students, and faculty was held in the Institute Dining Hall. A program consisting of the singing of Christmas carols, a reading by Sara Nell Col-appropriate reading by Sara Nell Collins, and special music by Miss Alice Burr was enjoyed before the arrival of Santa Claus. Santa Claus arrived bringing with him a pack sack of gifts and a gale of laughter. Each one present was happily remembered with an appropriate gift.

Several of the Thorsby Institute teachers are to be away during the Christmas holidays. Miss Ruth Ford has gone to her home in Dalton, Mass. She expects to return by auto with her parents who plan to spend some time in Florida. Miss Alice Burr left Saturday for Oberlin, Ohio, where her mother is director of one of the college residences. Miss Ethel Thompson is to spend the holidays in Birmingham at the Y.W.C.A. Mr Henry Adair left on Sunday for New York City where he will spend the vacation with his family. Miss Laverna Jones expects to spend most of the vacation with the Fosses who have recently moved to Birmingham. Mrs. Harding, librarian expects to remain in Thorsby. She will do some work in the library. Miss Lois Leech had planned to take a trip but because of her illness has had to give that up for the present. She is expecting a Kentucky friend for a part of the vacation.

Activities at BILLINGSLEY SCHOOL

The Football Banquet

Approximately seventy people, including parents, teachers, students, and officials of the school, were entertained at a banquet in honor of the football players at Billingsley High School on Thursday night December the 14th. Miss Lausden and the girls of the Senior One Home Economics class were in charge of the arrangements, with Coach McMillan acting as host for the occasion. Place cards were miniature football players. Decorations were in the Christmas motif.

Mr. Peck Harrison acted as toastmaster. Speeches were made by Mr. J. B. King, Superintendent of Education in Autauga County; Mr. J. N. Story, principal of Billingsley School, and Coach W. A. McMillan, who commented on the playing of various boys during the season. During dinner short impromptu talks were made by various people, including some of the trustees, teachers and townspeople. Further entertainment was furnished through musical numbers by Mr. Morrison and Miss Carter, and by readings and tap dancing by Vida Smoot.

Toward the end of the banquet the following football players were awarded letters by Coach McMillan:

Clyde Davis, captain, Jackson Hill, Jr., alternate captain, Carl Golson, James Donohoo, Robert Missildine, J. B. Tindal, Junior Mims, Fred Waites, Jackson Moore, Bernard Wright, Dan Mims, Arthur James Wyatt, and Charles Culp. James Turner was mentioned as having been a good player during the year, but who had not played enough to receive his letter.

After the banquet the floor was cleared for a short indoor football game between the Gold and the Black teams, made up of girls from the Senior One Class. The game, which resulted in a tie, proved to be very amusing to the spectators.

The Junior Play

The Junior Class presented the three-act play "No Bride For The Groom," to a moderate house Saturday night, December 16th, at the high school auditorium. Dixie Smoot, in the role of Sophia Selby, and Jackson Hill, Jr., as Digby Prindal, afforded the audience much entertainment with their hilarious courtship. Eugene Brown, as the colored boy, and Birtel Hill, as the gossipy spinster, received favorable comment from the spectators. Elsie Mae Herrod, as Jolly, the widow's niece, rendered an adequate performance.

Other members of the cast were the following: Alma Missildine as Bess, the widow's daughter; Earle Mills as Herbert Prindal, the squire's son; Sara Turner as Salamandy, the colored girl; Alta Dickinson as Libby Little; Louise Abbott as Prissy Paluna; Carl Golson as Tom Swanton. The play as a whole was quite favorably received by the audience.

CHRISTMAS MAIL

● Uncle Sam has a big job this Christmas — he even delivers Santa's mail!

Last year's Holiday mail was the biggest ever handled by the United States postoffice, and this year's will probably be bigger. Cards, childish letters to Santa Claus, carelessly wrapped and addressed packages and the always-present human element of waiting until the last minute complicate the job. First mail to be handled each year is that for foreign countries, shown above being placed aboard a transatlantic liner. Such packages must be mailed early.

Towns bearing Christmasy names like Santa Claus, Bethlehem, Nazareth and Christmas (they're real towns, too) always have a land-office business in re-mailing cards and packages forwarded from all parts of the country. Above, at Bethlehem, Conn., Postmaster Earl S. Johnson stamps the special postmark used last year. It is the shape of a Christmas tree with the words, "Greetings from the Little Town of Bethlehem." He handles about 80,000 pieces of mail each season.

Pity the poor postman at a time like this! Small town postoffices usually add more clerks at the holiday season. In big cities additional mailmen like these are pressed into service. Uncle Sam does a good job of it—just so your cards and gifts will be delivered by Christmas morning!

National Guard Goes To Gulf State Park

Approximately 400 officers and men of the 31st Division will participate in winter maneuvers at Gulf States Park during the week of January 7th-13th under Major James J. Alverez of Mobile, commanding officer of the special troop units of the National Guard division.

The companies to train at Foley will come from Mobile by truck and the location of the state owned park 10 miles south of Foley makes it ideal for the type of training to be given.

Actual war-time conditions will be simulated and training will be a continuation of similar maneouvers previously held during the summer months.—Foley Onlooker.

PATES CHAPEL

Mrs. Maurice Rainwater is still improving from the injuries she received in a car wreck Thanksgiving Day.

Mr. Ben Gibson has been confined to his bed for several days with cold but is greatly improved.

We are sorry to say that Mr. Archie Cleckler's sister passed away last Friday, December 15, and he and his family have our sympathy.

Mr. and Mrs. Olis Watley visited Mr. and Mrs. Eunice Dawson Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Robinson visited Mr. and Mrs. Bradie Patterson Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Franklin visited Mr. and Mrs. Ben Gbson Sunday evening.

Our Sunday School is still enjoyed by a nice crowd, and we are still having a good B.Y.PU. We are expecting our pastor to preach for us next Saturday night at 6:30 in place of Sunday night. Also preaching on Sunday at 11:00 A.M. and we welcome all others to come and join in worship with us. As this is Christmas Day, just stop and think if you have not, what a sacred day this is. It is the birthday of the greatest kind that ever lived—One who came into the world, laid in a manger—not laid in a soft silky bed, but straw for his bed. He came into the world to bleed and die on the cross for your sins and mine. He tried to show the world how to live and how to die. but they rejected Him, and one day they nailed Him to the cross, but still He loved them to the end. That is the first thing of which Christmas should remind us. That once upon a time there was a man who lived a life like this, and still there is a God in the world who loves us—that the blessed life which began in Bethlehem 1900 years ago is the image and brightness of our eternal love yet.

Now, how shall we celebrate Christ's birthday?

Brother Fred Lowery will preach here the fifth Sunday night, December 31, after B.Y.P.U., and also there will be a singing the fifth Sunday evening beginning about 2:00 o'clock. Everybody come and join in with us in singing praises to our Father above. The W.M.U. and Sunbeams will meet next Saturday afternoon at the Church about 2:30 o'clock, December 24.

Next Year's Yule Cards Already Being Designed

Workers on Christmas cards carry on steadily all through the year. The artists who draw them have already produced their designs for the 1940-41 season, and as soon as the holidays are over the printer will begin work on those cards. One big firm in England has 500 men and women employed in the production of these cards, sometimes with calendars added.

We suggest that when the Finns get through smacking down Russia, they go over and help England and France.

PROGRESS
means more than just growing up

RAILROAD freight rates down 23% since 1921; passenger fares 39% less; freight trains 44% faster; passenger and freight cars improved; pick-up-and-delivery; air-conditioning, utmost safety. These high-lights of progress are only part of what American railroads mean to every individual.

Every time the clock ticks the railroads pay $10.80 in taxes. In Alabama, add together the $2,558,419 in taxes, the $31,207,957 in purchases, the $22,743,352 for pay to 16,572 employes—and the railroads' annual expenditure in the State amounts to more than $20 for every man, woman and child.

Your neighbor, the Louisville & Nashville, alone, yearly pays about nine-hundred thousand dollars for taxes in Alabama and spends three million dollars for purchases and about seven million dollars for wages in this State.

• • • •

For an average charge of less than 1 cent a mile for freight and for fares lower than a cent and a half a mile to passengers in coaches, this railroad offers a progressively better and friendly service to the people of the South. And as for safety—no passenger has lost his life in a train accident on the L. & N. in the past 22 years.

THORSBY DEFEATS BUCK CREEK

On last Friday night the Thorsby Greenies motored up to Siluria where they upset the strong Buck Creek basketball team to the tune of 28 to 24. The game opened with the visiting team drawing first blood when Cofer sacked a field goal after about a minute of play.. Shortly afterwards he netted another. Then Buck Creek succeeded in looping a foul shot.

From this point of the game it was a nip and tuck affair, with the home team barely edging up to a tie, and pulling out to a 7 to 6 lead at the end of the first quarter. Thehalf closed with the home team holding a 13 to 9 lead over the Green Jackets. Both teams were playing a tight defensive game, yet the Greeners had been more successful thus far in breaking through. The third quarter ended with the Thorsby lads clinging to a slender lead of one point—19-18.

The final quarter found Wee Willie Smith, Adams slicing through the defense and registering 9 additional points to clinch the victory, while Pate, Cofer and Riggins were controlling the ball—play out toward mid-court. Jackson, rangy Thorsby center, was forced to retire from the game the first quarter due to illness. Hayes and McClain were unable to be with the team for this game. Massey was high point man for Buck Creek, ringing up 9 points, while Adams for Thorsby was sinking the ball for 11 marks. This gives Thorsby an even break with the dashing quint from Siluria, who had previously defeated them the week before by a score of 24 to 16

KIWANIS

The Clanton Kiwanis Club has had a very successful year under the leadership of President Page. The program of work has been well carried out, and to say the least, the year is replete with accomplishments. As the Club heads into the year 1940, it does so with the belief that under the leadership of Kiwanian Webb this program of civic betterment will not falter in the least, and that through cooperation and an understanding of the needs of Clanton and Chilton County, much can be accomplished toward creating an even higher standard of living for our people

On Thursday night, December 28, installation of officers will take place with the usual routine ceremony. Mr. Page will briefly review the year's work under his administartion, and Mr. Webb is expected to give a brief outline of the coming year's work.

The first meeting of the Club in the new year is one that is eagerly anticipated by all members each year. This night is known as "Ladies Night," at which time all members have as their guests their wives, friends or sweethearts, as the situation demands. In the past this meeting has always been one of the year's most gala affairs for Kiwanians. Every compliment and honor is paid to these ladies and this is truly "Ladies Night." the only one held during the year.

The Club will observe Christmas with a program befitting the occasion at the regular meeting at the Thomason Hotel tonight at seven-thirty. All members are urged to be present and on time.

BAD BREATH MAY SHOW YOU NEED THIS HELP

Bad breath is sometimes due to bad teeth and often due to sluggish bowels.

It offends, and to neglect it may invite a host of constipation's other discomforts; headaches, biliousness, loss of appetite and energy.

Don't let constipation slow you down. Take a little spicy, all vegetable BLACK-DRAUGHT tonight. In the morning there's an evacuation that's generally thorough. You'll feel fine again.

BLACK-DRAUGHT's principal ingredient is an "intestinal tonic-laxative" It helps impart tone to lazy bowel muscles. Millions of packages used yearly!

Methodist Church Clanton

Church School at 9:45 each Sunday, L. J. Stewart, general superintendent. Morning worship at 11:00 A.M. Sermon by the Pastor.

This week with touched hearts we want to say "Thank You, Lord" for those wonderful workers who have kept our Church traveling onward and upward and we want the workers to know they are being appreciated. Would that the whole world could have seen the pageant and received the message given last Sunday in the late afternoon and early evening. We appreciate the work of the ones who so tried and who so successfully gave us that message. We realize the work and efforts put on it and we hope every one in it and connected with it feels the thrill of successfully finishing a blessed thing. In this word of appreciation we would also thank God for those always—faithful members and our good pastor who have always and are continuing to carry on in an obscure way as well as in a distinguished way; those who work hard to financially support the work of the Church; those who study during the week and teach each Sunday; those who add more beauty to the church with flowers;! those who in the quiet pray; the officers of the church whose many and varied efforts are tirelessly made. We know, our pastor knows and God knows, who has been working, who has been faithful, who has done his or her best at all times without a selfish motive, who have been responsible for this wonderful spirit in our church and friends, fellow-members, fellow-servants of God, let's continue running this race for God and His Kingdom until our days are over.

There will be no Young Peoples' meeting or Junior League Service or evening worship service next Sunday. Let's make up for these services by filling the church for the Church School and morning worship services.

VOL. XVII CLANTON, ALABAMA, DECEMBER 28, 1939 FOUR PAGES NUMBER [illegible]

We Observe

. . . And A Happy New Year—

Christmas has passed; 1939 is making a hasty exit. Although this is still the holiday season, we're inclined to think this is "repentance week" for many. Don't get us wrong There's many things one may repent—not only from imbibing of the contents of that small bottle of "wine" one had been saving, but from spending that needed cash for a full Christmas, and from eating too much turkey and cranberry sauce.

A Merry Season —

"Christmas comes but once a year," you have often heard, but when it rolls around it does bring good cheer, warm fellowship, reunions. Memories that stick in the mind and heart throughout the coming year are accumulated when members of the family have the cherished privilege of "sticking their feet under Dad's table again." Sometimes there's too many of them to all get there at one time, but none are ever left out. Then there's he fun of gathering around the Christmas tree in the parlor and opening the presents a generous Santa has provided. Christmas is one holiday that will never grow tiresome in this country. Thanksgiving dates may be changed but not Christmas—the date nor the real meaning of that date.

A Generous Public—

We are sure we speak with authority when we extend the appreciation of the civic clubs of Clanton for the splendid cooperation on the part of the business firms and individuals in donating money, fruit, clothing, toys, groceries, and other necessities to fill the baskets delivered to the needy at Chirstmas. Many hearts were made glad through this splendid spirit—the true spirit of Christmas. Many gave their baskets indivdually. The way they were given was not the foremost factor.

Fireworks—

Although Clanton has an ordinance against shooting fireworks within the city, evidently it got misplaced this Chrstmas for there was certainly no restriction on them this year. On Christmas Day the streets of Clanton, right in the business section, were used as a playground for youngsters who threw them, large and small, loud and mild. If one drove an auto down the street or walked down the sidewalk without getting one tossed under him he was lucky. This is not only dangerous to the children themselves, and to pedestrians, but a fire hazard of no minor nature. We suggest that if the City fathers are not going to enforce this law that they strike it from the records. Many youngsters in Clanton got a juicy taste of law disobedience this Christmas. Some may conclude they have permission to violate other city laws after this. Some of the larger cities forbid the sale of fireworks in the city limits. This is one way of keeping down a nuisance.

Clanton Shines—

The pilot of the plane that crashed in the Enterprise community Sunday night evidently took Clanton for Montgomery and thought he was landing at Maxwell Field. Clanton wore, and is still wearing, a halo of lights that has never been equaled in the past.

INFANT SON OF MR. AND MRS. HUGH BRANCH DIED SUNDAY

The infant son of Mr and Mrs. Hugh Branch of this city died late Sunday night. The child lived only a few hours after birth. Mell Martin & Sons conducting internment.

Mrs. Erbye J. Courtney, age 87, widely known resident of the Eastview community, passed away at her home last Saturday afternoon. TWO SERIOUSLY INJURED IN WEEK END FIGHTS

JOHNNY MILLER AND WILLIAM DUNCAN IN HOSPITAL AFTER ALTERCATIONS

Johnny Miller is in the Central Alabama Hospital here in a serious condition as a result of a cutting fracas near the Cotton Mill Village last Sunday night in which he sustained knife-wounds in the abdomen inflicted by Dennis Duncan, according to members of the Sheriff's force here. His condition is reported by the hospital staff at the time of this writing as critical.

William R. Duncan, father of Dennis Duncan, is also in the Central Alabama Hospital. The senior Duncan, according to reports, was found lying on the ground with a serious head wound supposedly infliced by a heavy instrument wielded by someone. To date it has not been learned who struck Duncan, as he has been in an unconscious condition since arriving at the hospital where he was taken by a Martin ambulance. This occurred Monday afternoon.

The News was informed that Miller was cut by the younger Duncan at the home of T. J Reynolds near the Village, where both were boarding. The trouble is said to have started over some quilts that Duncan was alleged to have attempted to carry away from the house. Young Duncan's father attempted to interfere in the altercation, but left the secene before the officers arrived. Duncan was arrested on a warrant issued by Mr. Reynolds and placed in jail charged with assault with intent to murder.

A warrant was sworn out for the elder Duncan but he was not apprehended until he was found in an unconscious condition Sunday afternoon.

Several Injured By Fireworks

~~Fireworks seemed to be one of the~~ chief means of the younger people of Chilton County to celebrate Christmas this year. From reports, there were more shot this year than in years past. They took their toll, too, as many doctors have reported they rendered first aid to children who had fallen victims of untimely explosions.

Sam Avery, youth of near Jemison, was given first aid at the office of Dr. N. S. Johnson, after a carcker had exploded on his foot, pitched there by a companion. One of Avery's toes was seriously burned. A son of Mr. Parker Mims of Billingsley was given medical aid at the Central Alabama Hospital here for a badly burned hand. He remained there overnight for treatment. Several other victims were reported.

THANK MERCHANTS FOR SUPPORT

We, the P.-T. A. members of Thomas Jr. High School, wish to thank the merchants and business men of Clanton who contributed to the success of the Fiddlers Convention held Friday night, by donating the prizes.

The proceeds will go for final payment on the girls and boys basketball suits.

Springs.

The young newly-weds made a brief wedding trip to Greensboro, Ala., and will be at home in Pinedale community.

Spigener Funeral Home of Clanton was in charge of burial

Jemison F.H.A. And F.F.A. Have Annual Mother-Daughter-Father-Son Banquet

On December 20, 1939, the F.H.A. and F.F.A. had their annual Mother-Daughter-Father-Son entertainment.

This year this consisted of a barbecue. The menu was as follows: Barbecue pork, beef, and kid, potato salad, cole slaw, brunswick stew, hot chocolate and coffee and fruit cake.

About two hundred parents, guests, and students attended this occasion. The out-of-town guests were: Dr. and Mrs. T. H. Napier of Alabama College; Mr. H T. Gibson, supervisor of agriculture from Auburn; Miss Elnora ~~Gammage, supervisor of home economics~~ from Montevallo; Mr. and Mrs. Rascoe Maddox, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Fant.

The program opened with Leslie Glass in charge. The welcome was given by Willie Jean Northcutt, the response by Mr. Fred Smith. A short play, "Can You Sell Yourself?"; a talk by Dr. Napier on "The Values Boys and Girls Derive From Vocational Training In High School"; a reading by Ann Turner; two readings by Lucile Rasberry; a dance by Jackie Jackson and Christmas carols by a group of boys and girls all completed the program.

This brilliant affair was a success in every way and is enjoyed yearly by these two organizations, members of their families and guests.

THANKS!

We want to thank the good people of Cane Creek Church for all the nice things that were brought to us by Mr and Mrs. J. Lee Yates Christmas eve. Also we thank Mr Calvin P. Jones and family of Corinth for the nice gifts they sent. We appreciate them very, very much.—J. D. Hughes and Family.

ATTEMPT TO BURGLARIZE POLK BROTHERS MOTOR CO

An attempt was made to burglarize the Polk Brothers Motor Co. here last Monday night. The attempt failed when the burglar or burglars were apparently scared away. A safe in the office had been prepared for blasting as soap and nitroglycerine were in evidence. The combination of the safe had been pried off.

A member of the firm stated that the burglar, or burglars, entered through a window which was forced open, and that nothing had been taken as far as it was able to ascertain at that time.

Prizes Awarded For Decorations

A contest sponsored by three of Clanton's civic clubs, Kiwanis, Lions and Pilots, in which prizes were awarded to the home having the best Christmas decorations and lighting effect, exterior, was judged Monday night and prizes awarded.

First prize went to Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Page, second to Mr. and Mrs. Otto Jones and third to Mr. and Mrs. Grady Heflin. Their decorations were voted the City's best by out-of-town and impartial judges. Several other decorations were given honorable mention, as Clanton boasted as beautiful Christmas lighting found anywhere.

MRS. LESSIE CARTER

Mrs. Lessie Carter, age 38, wife of Will T. Carter, of the Pilgrims Rest community, died at her home last Saturday night, December 23. Funeral services were held from the Pilgrims Rest Church Sunday afternoon with burial in the nearby cemetery. She is survived by three sons, four daughters and other relatives.

One of the negroes suffered a crushed jaw and other serious injuries. One sustained broken ribs and minor bruises; another received lacerated legs, and the fourth was uninjured. They were given first aid at the oficie of a local physician, and from there transferred to Birmingham.

Rain Fails To Dampen Brisk Christmas Trade

Despite unsettled weather and intermittent rains last Saturday, last day Christmas shoppers made their way about town making their purchases, and reports from several Clanton merchants business was far from bad.

The Christmas spirit seemed to prevail in abundance among the people of Chilton County this year. Many observers have voiced the opinion that never before have they seen Christmas buying as it was during the preholilay season. Practical gifts in the way of clothing and other necessary items appeared to get first choice of the shoppers. Although Chilton has had a bad crop year, this failed to keep Santa away to any great extent, and those who were financially hard pressed spent freely what they had.

Therefore—starting with the reliable Clem Ross—Mr. Butler spent the next morning and part of the afternoon visiting a meticulously selected list of friends. Men who had grievances against the constituted authorities. Men in whom class hatred was deeply rooted. He drove from cabin to cabin in a battered old farm-wagon, the wheels of which tilted at crazy angles; and in the back of that wagon was a five-gallon jug of raw corn whiskey. Mr. Butler was shrewd enough to understand that liberal draughts of the yellow fluid gave additional persuasiveness to his exhortations.

The response was invariably satisfactory. Mr. Butler, in each case, approached the matter circuitously; taking great pains to keep himself reasonably sober, though not so sober as to find himself tongue-tied.

There is never too great difficulty in organizing a crusade, nor appreciable trouble in rousing men of limited intelligence to venture forth in an effort to improve the moral tone of the world, particularly when there is no danger attendant upon the enterprise. Jeff Butler was shrewd enough to know how to approach his men, keen enough to understand how much to say and when to stop saying it . . . and so, by four o'clock that afternoon they commenced to gather on the dogtrot of Jeff's house where a meal of corn-bread and sausage cakes and gravy had been prepared by an ancient Negro woman.

Seven men in all: seven men with leathern skins; calloused, overlarge hands, stolid faces, unkempt hair and more-or-less tattered clothes; men who had been born in the swamp and raised there; who tilled tiny tracts of clayey earth when the spirit moved; who had ruined their digestions with too much fresh pork; who fished indifferently for porgie and mullet and eel and sucker and sunfish; who shot—in season—deer, possum, coon, rabbit, squirrel, duck, quail and turkey; who accepted the gray drabness of Big Moccasin Swamp as the only thing they knew; whose private lives were sodden and, on occasion, unesthetically immoral . . . but who prayed loudly and frequently and considered themselves very virtuous men indeed.

The assembled crusaders appeared to be startlingly indifferent to the fact that they were about to take human life. All except one little man—a man smaller even than Clem Ross—who had been quaffing sparingly from the jug and whose beady eyes moved furtively from face to face, as though to find an ally in his contemplated desertion. He said, whiningly, "You reckon there ain't no danger, Jeff?"

"Who's a-goin' to know we done it?"

"Somebody's li'ble to suspeck, ain't they?"

"Naaa! Whole county will say Thank You when we finish."

"But Jeff . . ."

"Ain't gittin' skeered, are you?"

"No-o. But if anything went wrong . . ."

"Nothin' ain't goin' wrong."

"S'posin' . . . s'posin' there's trouble?"

"Ain't a-goin' to be no trouble. We got guns an' a rope. We take him out an' string him up. Oh, if things look mean, a gun can go off—kind of accidental — an' Barney Hamilton will be just as dead. Don't the Good Book say 'A life fo' a life?' "

"It sho' do."

"Ain't we been commanded to do this by the preachers?"

"Yeh . . . but they didn't ezackly say nothin' 'bout no lynchin'."

"An' besides," stated Jeff, "if the She'ff was to git set on making' trouble fo' somebody, he'd arrest these city folks. Not us."

"You reckon?"

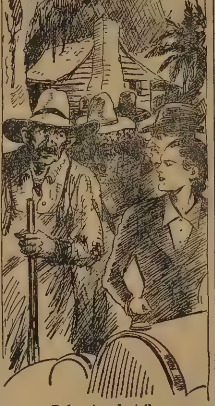
"I'm sure. We got votes."

Mob spirit. Courage of numbers. Colossal ignorance and stupid piety. Class hatred. Sense of security. Stimulus of raw whiskey. Righteousness. False logic. Herd instinct. Leadership. Grim hysteria.

Thus mobs have always been created; thus they are aroused to peaks of insensate, homicidal fury. Thus they justify the unjustifiable. And dusk—closing down over Big Moccasin Swamp—cast sinister shadows and evil invitation.

Just before dark an automobile appeared, bumping nervously over the corduroy road. Dan Creedon and Babe Henkel stepped out. Babe was dressed in unobtrusive brown. Her lips were tight and there was high unnatural color in her cheeks.

Babe stared at the swamp angels. But she said nothing, gave no sign of approval or disapproval.



Babe stared at the swamp angels.

It was Dan Creedon who talked. He asked, "Everything ready, Butler?"

"I reckon."

"When do we go?"

"Not yit awhile. Got to wait until they have a chance to finish supper."

"Why?"

"Give the darkies a chance to git away. We don't crave to be seen by nobody."

"How do we get there?"

"Walk. 'Tain't fur."

"O. K." Dan Creedon joined Babe and spoke in a whisper. "What a lousy gang."

Babe said, briefly, "They'll do."

"Yeh . . . they'll do anything." Then, "You're not changing your mind, Babe?"

Her eyes were like ice. "Barney Hamilton didn't give Kirk a chance to change his mind."

They seated themselves on the top step of the dog-trot; near—yet not too near—the swamp angels. They refused the proffered jug. They sat and stared into the pines, into the impenetrable darkness of the swamp . . . felt the night close in on them like something tangible. Like black velvet. Heard the voice of the swamp: hoarse croaking of frogs, chirping of crickets . . . other sounds; vague, scarcely discernible . . . symphony of death.

The swamp angels drank steadily. Drank until their brains were clouded and their emotions aroused. They talked among themselves, in low voices, fanning their courage to white heat. At nine o'clock Jeff Butler's elongated figure lifted from a chair. He said, "Time to git goin'."

They moved slowly at first, adjusting their progress to Babe and Dan Creedon who were unaccustomed to the woods at night.

Dan's face was stony. Babe clung to his arm. But whatever of faltering there may have been in her step was due to the uncertain footing. He was sure of that. He did not argue. It was a crazy, reckless enterprise. He had warned her —time and again. But she had blazed with determination to carry through. And Dan Creedon adhered to his own peculiar code. He was sticking it out—whatever the cost . . . not so much because of any desire to avenge the death of his friend, as because it seemed the proper thing to do.

It was an oddly sinister procession which trudged through the blackness of Big Moccasin Swamp. A man from the city and a vividly beautiful woman. Seven alcohol-fogged swamp angels, exalted by false righteousness.

They moved slowly.

They moved toward Cathedral Gardens.

They moved upon Barney Hamilton. To lynch him.

Margaret Hamilton entered the big kitchen and smiled at the huge, ebony Negress who presided there.

"Company for supper, Flagrant."

"Yassum, Miss Margaret—they mos' usually is." Then, "Mistuh Owenby?"

Margaret shook her head. "Not tonight."

"How come not?"

"He's busy."

"Lawsy, Miss Margaret—was I a man I'd have to be awful busy not to come see a purty gal like you."

"Well he's just that busy. Miss Kay is coming, though."

"Yassum." Flagrant's black eyes twinkled. "Reckon it ain't so long off when Miss Kay will be remainin' heah pummanent."

"Maybe . . ." Margaret looked around the immaculate kitchen. "Isn't this Zero's night off?"

"Yassum."

"Then I'll help with supper."

"No'm—that's the most thing you ain't gwine do. So git you gone." Flagrant made clucking noises and Margaret fled. She passed through the hall and thence onto the veranda.

The sun was sinking over Cathedral Gardens in a crimson blaze. The effect was bewilderingly beautiful.

Kay was with Barney and their faces were turned toward the sunset. They walked down to the lagoon, unconscious of the striking picture they afforded: a picture of healthy youth, of youth oblivious to everyone and everything save themselves: Barney tall and broad and blond; Kay looking infinitesimal beside him. They disappeared behind a screen of radiant azalea.

They seated themselves on a bench of hewn cypress logs, and for a few moments neither spoke. Night was closing upon them. Barney's first words were light. His lips smiled, but his gray eyes were serious.

"Behold," he said, "the figure of a young man about to do something."

Kay sensed that there was something deeper than badinage in Barney's words. She knew that he was more serious than she had seen him for days. And so she asked, "To do what?"

Barney laughed. Awkwardly. As though in apology for his embarrassment.

"Want to hear all about it, honey?"

"Yes . . ."

"Well . . ." He took a deep breath ". . . it sounds screwy coming from me, but then I've never deceived you about being the undisputed world's champion ne'er-do-well."

She said, "You used to be proud of that title."

"Used to be is right. Maybe it was my fault, maybe the fault of the way I'd been raised. So much of everything I wanted—when I wanted it—that I never could see an awful lot of sense in minor things like jobs and ambition. I—well, I don't even know how to describe what I mean."

Renewing a RESOLUTION

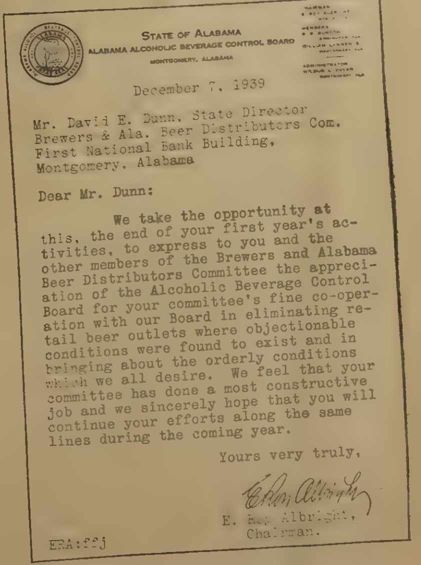
EARLY in 1939, the beer industry in Alabama united in a campaign to aid the authorities in keeping beer retailing on a high level. The word to disorderly places was blunt: "clean up or close up."

The industry was given whole-hearted cooperation by legitimate beer dealers and by Alabama's ABC Board. It was gratifying, of course, when we received this letter a few days ago:



STATE OF ALABAMA
ALABAMA ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGE CONTROL BOARD
MONTGOMERY, ALABAMA

December 7, 1939

Mr. David E. Dunn, State Director
Brewers & Ala. Beer Distributors Com.
First National Bank Building,

Dear Mr. Dunn:

We take the opportunity at this, the end of your first year's activities, to express to you and the other members of the Brewers and Alabama Beer Distributors Committee the appreciation of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board for your committee's fine co-operation with our Board in eliminating retail beer outlets where objectionable conditions were found to exist and in bringing about the orderly conditions which we all desire. We feel that your committee has done a most constructive job and we sincerely hope that you will continue your efforts along the same lines during the coming year.

Yours very truly,

E. Roy Albright
E. Roy Albright,

We think that's a fine thing for the Board to tell us. Consequently, we would like to assure the Board and the public that our program is permanent. We'll say it this way:

MEMORANDUM

Alabama Power Company

For

Subject

from those who had, making them poorer and adding nothing to the wealth of the community,

"Business is like a clock—everything of the finest, but it can't go unless wound up, and a hair rubbing on the pendulum will stop it eventually . . . . . .

"Profits from creative work, not profits by taking something from those who had, making them poorer and adding nothing to the wealth of the community."

These phrases, written with lead pencil, were observed on a yellowing sheet of memorandum paper by Thos. W. Martin, president of Alabama Power Company, while searching through some old papers recently. They were written by the hand of James Mitchell, president of Alabama Power Company from 1912 until his death in 1920. The use to which the phrases were to be put is unimportant. Nor is their age—20 years—so impressive.

Significant, however, is the ideal expressed—the ideal of a true builder of Alabama—the ideal that has characterized, and today characterizes, the policies of Alabama Power Company—"A Private Agency for the Public Good."
